Sen. Guffey Widens Lead Over Jones In Primary

Pennsylvania G. O. P. Polls Heavy Vote; Few Write-ins Against Roosevelt

The Political Wars

POSTMASTER GENERAL FARLEY said no politician should seek favor of the voters by "making believe that one man can keep out of war better than the other fellow." Page 2.

FRIENDS OF SENATOR BARKLEY urged him to reject any Democratic Convention position that might damage his Presidential prospects. Page 2.

Jones Trailing

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP).—Pennsylvania's junior Senator, Joseph F. Guffey, built a steadily increasing lead tonight in his fight for the Democratic nomination for a second term.

In the Pennsylvania primary campaign's hottest contest, he started with a margin over his chief opponent, Walter A. Jones, fellow Pittsburger, in the first Philadelphia districts reported. His gains increased as tabulations came from other parts of the State.

Unofficial count for 2,920 of the States' 8,105 districts for Democratic nomination for Senate gave:

Guffey, 154,626.

Jones, 118,987.

In a less spirited Republican contest, Jay Cooke, 43-year-old Philadelphia City chairman, supported by the State organization, led rivals for Senatorial nomination by a wider margin.

Unofficial count from 2,935 districts gave Cooke 261,686; Albert H. Ladner, 83,053.

Roosevelt Gets 103,872

President Roosevelt got 103,872 votes in 2,137 districts in the Democratic Presidential preference primary. Write-ins on the Republican ballot, for which no name was officially filed, gave Thomas E. Dewey 1,613; Gov. Arthur H. James, 511; Senator Robert A. Taft, 71; Senator Arthur Vandenberg, 18; Frank Gannett, 7, and Herbert Hoover, 1.

Some Republicans wrote in the their Presidential preference. The write-in on Republican ballots of ten districts in Williamsport gave Mr. Roosevelt four votes to ten for Thomas E. Dewey and seven for Gov. Arthur H. James.

Mr. Roosevelt's name was the only one on the Democratic Presidential preference ballot. His consent was not necessary, and his name was filed by the Democratic State Committee which indorsed him for a third term. Republicans filed no names but left spaces for write-ins.

Republican leaders counted on their registration of 2,572,100 voters to the Democrats' 2,046,129 to keep their totals elsewhere on the ballots heavier than the Roosevelt vote.

Lawrence Backs Jones

The only free-swinging scrap—a contest on which hinged leadership of the State organization—was the fight between Guffey, Pennsylvania's junior Senator and Jones, Pittsburgh oil operator who had the support of Democratic State Chair-

Super Silver Spoon

Cromwell and Doris Duke Expect Stork in August

Riches on Both Sides Await First Child Of Tobacco Heiress

By the Associated Press

New York, April 23.—A baby who will be born with a super-silver spoon in its mouth is expected in the household of James H. R. Cromwell and his wife, the former Doris Duke, one of the wealthiest women in the world.

A bright financial future assured by riches on both sides of the family awaits the child, due in August—the first baby of "The Golden Girl" who has inherited the bulk of the late James B. Duke's vast tobacco fortune and will receive more.

Cromwell, United States Minister to Canada and aspirant for the New Jersey Democratic nomination for United States Senator, is not only prosperous in his own right, but is in line for a share of the Philadelphia Stotesbury fortune as the stepson of the late banker, E. T. Stotesbury.

The child will have a 2,400-acre playground with huge trees, velvety lawns and gleaming statuary in Duke Farms, Mrs. Cromwell's estate at Somerville, N. J.

Its nursery prospects are virtually unlimited, including the Cromwells' Hawaiian seaside retreat, Shangri-La; their cottage at Antibes, their North Carolina place and villas in Palm Beach and Newport.

Cromwell, who announced yesterday that he would resign his post as minister May 21, the date of New Jersey's primary election, confirmed the expected birth today in Ottawa.

The Cromwells have been "Mom" and "Pop" to each other, in the presence of their close friends, since their marriage in 1935.

DORIS DUKE
Awaiting Stork

She is 27, he is 43, and the father of a debutante daughter, Christine, 16, by his first marriage to wealthy Delphine Dodge.

At 22, she inherited her first $10,000,000 from her father's estate. Another $10,000,000 share went to her at 25, and she will receive a third of $10,000,000 at 30.

Cromwell's father was an affluent corporation lawyer. The Stotesbury family into which his widowed mother married, once had the greatest fortune in Philadelphia. The Stotesbury wealth now is estimated at about $10,000,000.

Marine Shot In Mystery At Quantico

Attempts to Halt Man Who Lurked In the Shadows Near Hangar

A sentry at the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., was shot by a trespasser he discovered trying to break into a hangar on the air field in the early hours of Monday morning, it was learned last night.

News of the incident came from civilian workers at Quantico, who suggested that the prowler might have been trying to steal a bomb sight, America's most precious military secret.

Marine Corps officers said that the particular bomb sight which is so closely guarded is not used by the First Marine Aircraft Group, based at Quantico.

Sabotage Suggested

It was suggested that the stranger's motive more likely would have been sabotage. The sentry, whose identity was not made known immediately, was quoted as saying that the man carried what appeared to be a potential torch.

Seeing the man in the shadows of the hangar, the sentry cried out: "Halt, who goes there?"

The stranger answered with a shot from a pistol, which struck the sentry in the stomach.

He was taken to the post dispensary, where it was found that the wound was slight.

The trespasser had disappeared when other Marines came running to the scene.

Marine Corps officials communicated with J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, who assigned agents to the case.

Official Lips Sealed

The airfield, where the shooting took place at about 2 a. m., Monday, is about 1½ miles from the main part of the Marine Base at Quantico.

Marine officials were tight-lipped when asked details of the incident. So, too, were officials of the FBI.

Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, refused to discuss the matter.

Nazi Press Begins Drive On Sweden

Efforts of Allies To Cut Off German Routes to Norway Alarm Stockholm

By Harold Callender.
Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, April 23.—Reports of new Allied efforts to cut Germany's communications with Norway today combined with a strong anti-Swedish tone in Germany's press to raise Sweden's fear of involvement in the war.

All calculations here are based upon the assumption that extension of the war to Swedish soil would become more likely if the German communications by sea were cut or seriously endangered. Thus the time might come when Germany would like an alternative route through Sweden.

Reports from Berlin said today's issue of the Boersen Zeitung and the Nachtausgabe had begun a campaign against Sweden. These papers complained of publication in the Swedish press of reports of machine-gunning of civilians in Norway, saying that the Swedish government tolerated such publication and that it must cease before it was too late.

Campaigns Recalled

Recalling such German press campaigns in connection with Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, observers here wondered whether this one foreshadowed some demand upon Sweden which might strain her neutrality.

It was recalled, also, that German ships filled with troops at Stettin, Memel and in East Prussia, were reported as being augmented by new arrivals of supplies and men from western Germany.

The outer harbor of Stockholm has become full of German ships in the last two days and others have been announced as on the way to Stockholm and other Swedish Baltic ports. Fifteen are unloading here and others are waiting. They have brought coal, it is said, and nothing else. Some have put in at Goteborg on the West Coast, which is on the edge of the war zone and now has little traffic.

Trawlers Strafed

The Swedish government did not file a formal protest today about yesterday's German aerial attack on Swedish trawlers, pending an inquiry into details. One fisherman said the plane was not 200 feet high and the pilot must have seen the Swedish flags and hull markings.

It is understood the German government has expressed regret at the flight of German bombers over southern and central Sweden Sunday and assured Sweden there was no intention to violate her neutrali-

Battles Crucial

By Otto D. Tolischus
Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, April 23.—According to all indications tonight, the Allied and German forces in Norway are now engaged in two major battles—north of Oslo and north of Trondheim—which may prove decisive for the whole Norwegian campaign.

The outcome of these battles is still very much in doubt, and the whole Norwegian war situation is shrouded in that mystery which always accompanies decisive events in war.

Both sides are utilizing the mountain, fjord and lake terrain of Norway in apparent attempts to outflank each other, until their forces seem to be inextricably interlocked and only the final result can determine who has succeeded in the flanking movement and who has been cut off.

Positions of Battle

The battle north of Oslo centers in a rectangle formed by Hamar, 60 miles north of Oslo; Elverum, 20 miles east of Hamar; Rena, 20 miles north of Elverum, and Lillehammer, which is 20 miles west of Rena and about 30 miles north of Hamar.

This space, flanked on the west by Lake Mjoesen, lies at the southern end of both of the two great parallel valleys of central Norway—Gudbrandsdal—through which runs the main Oslo-Trondheim railway, and Osterdal, about 25 miles eastward, which is the route of a secondary Oslo-Trondheim railway.

According to absolutely authentic reports brought back by neutral sources, British troops had joined the Norwegian forces at Lillehammer toward the end of last week. Latest reports available here today said these forces had reached Noelv, south of Lillehammer, in an advance on the German positions at Hamar, while other Allied forces had entrenched themselves at Rena, where they were under pressure from German troops coming up from Elverum.

Nazis Use Armored Troops

At the same time, however, the Germans, who are employing mobile armored troops in that area, took Gjoevik on the western shore of Lake Mjoesen and now claim to be masters of Lillehammer as well as to have advanced north of it.

If that is true, they may have reached Lillehammer along the highway from Gjoevik while the Allied forces were still advancing

Record British Budget Sets Heaviest Taxes

Drastic Levies Imposed As Outgo Is Predicted At Nearly 10 Billion

By the Associated Press

London, April 23.—Great Britain, less than eight months at war, today geared her spending for the 1940-1941 fiscal year to virtually the same staggering total she paid in the final, exhausting year of the World War. At the same time, she imposed heavy new taxes to meet part of the cost and gave official impetus to a revolutionary economic scheme under which the British consumer is expected to rigidly "do without."

The total of the budget which Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon disclosed in Commons is £2,667,000,000 or $9,334,500,000 at the New York Exchange rate of approximately $3.50 and considerably more at the British "pegged" rate of $4.02-$4.04.

It amounts (at the New York rate) to $230 for every man, woman and child in Great Britain. More than half must be borrowed.

Moreover, this budget figure (an estimate very likely to be exceeded by supplementary war expenditures,) compares with expenditures in the 1917-1918 fiscal year of £2,696,221,000.

That per capita bill would be more than three times the per capita cost of the United States Federal Government in 1939—$70.

As for the cost of the war itself, Sir John told the House that Great Britain spent £905,000,000 (about $3,167,000,000) in the first seven months of the conflict.

He declared that figure indicated an annual war expenditure of about £1,500,000,000 ($5,250,000,000), but that the estimate was rising and the annual cost would be £2,000,000,000 (about $7,000,000,000) by the end of the fiscal year next March.

The budget represents an increase in the expenditure of £850,000,000

Planes, Ships Wage Battles In Skagerrak

Fighting Held Most Severe Since Nazis Invaded Norway

By the Associated Press

Stockholm, April 23.—Fierce sea-and-air warfare, sparked by an attack on a German transport convoy, was reported raging in the Skagerrak tonight.

The Stockholm newspaper Nya dagligt Allehand reported from Sweden's west coast that warships and airplanes were engaged in two battles in the Skagerrak.

From the roar of gunfire off the coast, it said, the fighting seems likely to prove the most severe in the two weeks since Germany invaded Norway.

Many fighting planes were involved in the battles and at one coastal vantage point, 10 destroyers could be seen speeding past, all of them with their guns spouting.

Two Bandits Confess They Killed Sirkis

Revolver Clew Traps Slayers Who 'Knew Too Much'

Two colored men, 23 and 27, last night confessed the holdup-slaying of Herman Sirkis, 42, who was shot through the heart by bandits at his liquor store, 4824 Deane avenue northeast, February 26.

Identified by victims in 25 robbery cases, the suspects broke down under continued questioning and admitted shooting the former Baltimore policeman after taking $54 from the cash drawer. They signed confessions.

Stymied for more than two months in their investigation of the vicious murder, detectives were elated when they realized they had "a break" at last.

Second Precinct patrolmen were given credit for the capture of the bandits. Ballistics examination of a .38-caliber revolver by Detective Lieut. John H. Fowler furnished the first lead and repeated grilling by Detective Sergts. Jeremiah Flaherty, William J. Liverman and Lieut. George Darnell brought about the confessions.

Patrolmen Charles Burns and C. G. Edwards, Second Precinct, first got on the trail of the men following a holdup of a liquor store at 1410 Ninth street northwest, Friday night, by three armed colored men.

With the threat they would do "what we did in Deanewood," the

100 Perish In Dance Hall Conflagration

Colored Patrons Trapped by Blaze In Natchez Club

Natchez, Miss. (Wednesday), April 24 (AP).—Sheriff Hyde R. Jenkins said at least 100 negroes were burned to death in a dance hall fire here late last night. Others estimated the death toll at possibly as many as 150.

R. E. Smith, managing editor of the Natchez Democrat, said the bodies were "piled up like cordwood."

Almost all the negro population of Natchez gathered at the scene after midnight.

Smith, who also is county coroner, said the building in which the dance was held was formerly a church and had an exit only at the front. The windows had been boarded up.

The hall was decorated with Spanish moss, which is highly inflammable, apparently caught fire near the front, trapping the Negroes inside.

Most of the bodies were found in a heap near the bandstand at the rear. It was estimated that several hundred Negroes were in attendance.

The hall, known as the Rhythm Night Club, featured regular dances at which music was furnished by nationally known bands.

Much-Maligned Hula-Hula Bringing Hawaii to Folk Fete

Delegate Samuel W. King receives a lei from his Hawaiian homeland. With him are Rosalie Montgomery, chanter, and Iolani Luahine, hula dancer, who arrived from Honolulu yesterday and will appear tomorrow on the opening National Folk Festival

To the untutored layman, mention of hula dance calls for raised eyebrows. But to the native Hawaiian, learned in the tradition of the island territory, the word embraces the history, religion, folklore, literature and opera of his land.

For the first time in the seven-year history of the National Folk Festival, arrangements have been made to include the hula on the program. Iolani Luahine, outstanding hula artist of Hawaii, arrived in Washington from Honolulu yesterday and will appear on all six programs of the festival, which opens tomorrow at Constitution Hall.

Her accompanist is Rosalie Montgomery, who beats a gourd and sings the ancient chants which traditionally accompany the hula. The two women are traveling with Miss Alice Brown, of Honolulu. They were greeted here by Delegate Samuel W. King, of Hawaii, who expressed his delight that the authentic dances of the territory are

Three Convicts Flee Lorton, Smashing Fence With Truck

Three convicts escaped from the District Reformatory at Lorton, Va. at 7:30 o'clock last night after stealing a prison truck and crashing it through a fence at the edge of the reservation.

The men were still at liberty early this morning. They had been hunted during the night by a posse of more than 60 reformatory officers and Fairfax County police with packs of bloodhounds.

The convicts are Charles E. Leapley, 23, serving a term for housebreaking, and William R. Crosswhite, 24, and Robert C. Chappell, 23, both sentenced for robbery.

They stole the truck from the prison garage and dashed in it toward the north entrance in the wall-less section of the reformatory. As they passed a guard tower near the entrance the escape alarm was sounded.

The felons attempted to drive the truck through the locked gates but were unable to break through. They then crashed the heavy vehicle through the fence below the gates. When the truck stalled in a ditch a short distance away, the trio leaped out and fled on foot down the Silver Brook road.

The posse, led by Ray Huff, superintendent of District penal institutions, followed the convict trail with the hounds for about 5 miles to within about 6 miles of Alexandria, where it was believed the men separated and took refuge in dense woods.

Threat Recalled

Ex-Worker at Apartments Sought After Fire Routs 100

A former employe of the Oakland Apartments, 2006 Columbia road northwest, who allegedly threatened to "get even" when he was discharged several weeks ago, was sought last night in connection with an incendiary blaze which drove 100 residents from the building at 3:30 a. m. yesterday.

The discharged worker, according to Richard White, co-owner of the 5-story apartment building, was seen watching the fire soon after it was discovered. The man had not appeared in the neighborhood since he lost his job, White declared.

"When we let him go," said White, "he said he would come back sometime and get even. I never gave his threat another thought until this fire."

White and his sister, Miss Marian White, are co-owners of the Oakland Apartments.

Fire Marshal Calvin Lauber said the two-alarm blaze had "all the earmarks" of having been set by a fireburg who terrorized the community last winter. Apparently the flames started in a basement locker room and as the pyromaniac fled, he fired two overstuffed chairs in a first-floor hallway.

Sleeping residents were aroused by Chilton H. Johnson, 32, a private investigator, of 1807 Biltmore street northwest, who happened to be passing. He climbed a rear fire escape, smashed exit doors and shouted warnings on each floor. Cut and bruised and finally overcome by smoke, Johnson was taken to Emergency Hospital for first-aid treatment.

Over the Coffee

CAPITAL'S 3-RING CIRCUS

JITTERS: For the last week or so, behind their calm fronts, our professionally impassive gentlemen at the State Department have been as close to the jitters as they ever get. The phrase oftenest heard to sum it all up: "The next four or five days may determine the outcome of the war." What this implies is more—victory by the wrong side.

Specifically, what they anticipate with dread is (1) invasion of Holland, and (2) the bombardment of London perhaps over the weekend.

Calloused as Americans have become to Hitler's blitzkriegs—his invasion of Norway caused about as much stir as the Schmeling-Louis fight—they fear the consequences of these attacks would detonate across the Atlantic, jar even the isolationists.

ROOSEVELT BIRTHDAYS: Recently Mrs. Roosevelt has complained comically to friends that her children almost invariably forget the family birthdays and other anniversaries.

Some of them even forget the President's birthday, despite the national fanfare.

Her sons forget their wives' birthdays and wedding anniversaries so regularly that Mrs. Roosevelt has taken to telegraphing them a reminder a few days before the dates. Then, it seems, they mislay the wires and forget to do anything about them.

Mrs. Roosevelt herself never forgets a birthday.

"—less friction by phone?"

PEACE BY PHONE? A gentleman who inadvertantly overheard part of a telephone conversation the other day between the White House and John L. Lewis thinks FDR and the CIO generalissimo are patching up their quarrel.

Partly this is due to the way the CIO rank and file ignores John L.'s blasts against the President. Watch for the flight of the peace dove.

WILLKIE BOOM: Part of the current presidential boom for Wendell Willkie is due to his literary facility. During the last month, besides all the articles about him, articles written by him appeared in these five magazines: Fortune, New Republic, Survey, Saturday Evening Post and Atlantic.

* * * *

Mr. Willkie's duties at the power house apparently permit him not only, as Clifton Fadiman said on the Information Please radio program, to read a book occasionally, but also to write more prolifically than most writers. Henry Luce of Time Magazine is backing his candidacy vigorously, and has loaned him an editor to act as a brain-truster—a help which seems almost unnecessary.

GOAT SONG: After writing a letter opposing the use of goats to try out Lester Barlow's new super-explosive, Secretary of War Woodring blushed a furious pink when he discovered that his War Department has been using goats, rabbits and guinea pigs in other warlike experiments.

"—not exactly in chains"

But in a manly way he told the secret joint Congressional committee of this paradox. Goat lovers, who seem to have more courage and standing here than they would in Germany, are trying to block the use of goats. But the secret committee insists that the goats must be patriotic and risk their hides in the public interest. "They'd never know what hit 'em," says the committee.

NAZI TRIUMPHAL: It's cafe gossip in Berlin that Herr Goebbels wants to stage a big victory celebration as soon as possible. His plans are said to include Kings Haakon, of Norway, and Christian, of Denmark, in the parade, along with Schussnigg, of Austria, one-eyed Gen. Jan Syrovy, of the Czechs, and maybe Mayor Starzynski, of Warsaw. Not in chains, exactly; just symbolic chains.

CLAIMS, JUST CLAIMS: If you total the round numbers of delegates claimed by the various GOP candidates, they add up to almost twice as many delegates as will sit in the convention. Taft's 300, Hoover's 200, Dewey's 400 and Vandenberg's 200 should be all the delegates there are; but the claims of the favorite sons swell the total to almost 2,000. It's always safe to divide a claim by two.

Barkley Urged For President By Chandler

Majority Leader Advised to Reject Convention Posts

By Robert C. Albright

Post Staff Writer

Friends of Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley yesterday urged his "availability" for the Democratic Presidential nomination and advised him to reject any convention office that might damage his Presidential prospects.

Barkley has never announced he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination and has remained strictly aloof from discussion of the third term and other intraparty controversies.

Senator A. B. ("Happy") Chandler, his Kentucky colleague, yesterday stressed Barkley's qualifications as the type of "liberal" referred to by the President in his Warm Springs speech and said if the President names the candidate he sees no reason why it should not be Barkley

Hatchet Long Since Buried

"I don't think he should accept appointment either as permanent chairman or keynoter of the convention," said Chandler. "He has had all of the honors the convention can bestow. No man will receive the nomination without the President's support. I think my colleague should keep himself available."

Senator Chandler Democratic national committeeman from Kentucky, who unsuccessfully contested the Senatorial nomination with Barkley in a bitter 1938 campaign during which the President intervened in behalf of his Senate leader, long since tossed aside past differences.

Barkley, who served as Democratic convention keynoter in 1932 and 1936, and was recently mentioned by Postmaster General Farley as a good choice for permanent chairman, is understood to have made no decision on what he will do if the convention post is proffered to him.

Chandler Sees Colleagues

Observers believe that if Barkley rejects the convention office it will be tantamount to his announcement of candidacy.

Chandler disclosed that not only had he talked on this score with Barkley and other New Deal Senatorial colleagues, but as national committeeman from his State he intends to do all in his power to further Barkley's interests with others.

Rated high as a 1940 Presidential favorite at the time of his Senate campaign, and personally designated by the President as his choice for Senate leader, Barkley has made no move for the nomination during this year of general hat flinging. His White House stock rose again following successful conclusion of the reciprocal trade fight, and last week he was the President's luncheon guest.

President Must Choose

Friends argue he could have adopted no better campaign strategy if he sought the nomination, inasmuch as it is the President in the end who will point the choice, and it would be useless to run in the face of his veto.

Secretary Hull, often reported the President's top choice, has similarly remained aloof from the race and has emphatically denied he is a candidate. Virtually all of the other Democratic possibilities have announced their conditional or unqualified candidacy.

With the third term door left ajar by the President, a more serious turn in the international situation may change the Democratic race into a free-for-all contest for he Vice Presidential nomination. Vice President Garner has indicated he would not take second place on the ticket again, and some interpreted the President's "liberal pair" declaration as ruling out Garner should the President run.

Both Senator Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, a candidate only if the President steps down, and Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, who stopped a "favorite son" move in his behalf, have been prominently mentioned for the second choice post on a third-term ticket.

Wheeler to See Chief

Wheeler, who has been plugging as hard as the President for selection of liberal candidates, is expected to confer with Mr. Roosevelt on his return here. Byrnes has been mentioned along with Speaker Bankhead as the possible convention keynoter. Friends of the South Carolinian believe he may not accept convention office if the President seeks a third-term mate.

Although interest focused on the Senatorial race, there was a three sided contest for all other State nominations on both party ballots except for Democratic nomination for State treasurer. There, two others withdrew in the last week and left F. Clair Ross, incumbent, with a clear field.

Attempts to Label Democrats as War Party Have Little Effect so Far, Survey Finds

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., April 23.—Which party is more likely to keep the United States out of war—the Republicans or the Democrats?

When the Nazis released their recent white paper on alleged American machinations for war, many observers believed the purpose was to influence the public into thinking that the Democrats might lead the country into war.

A national survey just completed by the American Institute shows that, if this were the purpose of the Nazi white paper, it had a negligible effect on public sentiment. The survey finds that voters do not consider the Republican Party any more peace-minded than the Democratic Party.

GALLUP

In fact, a slightly larger group of those polled think the Democrats are more likely to keep us out of war than the Republicans, while many say it makes no difference what party is in power.

Majority Sees No Difference

The issue put before a cross-section of voters in the survey was as follows:

"Which political party do you think is more likely to keep us out of war—the Republicans or the Democrats?"

A poll was taken on the identical question last December, and trend is as follows:

	Dec.	Today
Republicans More Likely	21%	33%
Democrats More Likely	27	35
Makes No Difference	52	32

An average of one voter in every six expressed no opinion on the issue in the recent survey.

'Peace' Party Stressed

The results are particularly interesting in view of the attempts of some G. O. P. leaders to establish the Republican Party as the "peace" party. In his speech at Oklahoma City last week, Thomas E. Dewey, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, told his audience that continued neutrality would be in "safer hands" under a Republican administration.

The survey indicates that Republican efforts to establish this argument have borne little fruit as yet.

While there has been a decline since December in the number of voters who say it makes no difference which party is in power, nevertheless neither of the major parties is singled out by the rest of the voters as being particularly war-minded.

Vote By Party Lines

As might be expected, sentiment on this issue divides sharply along party lines, with a majority of the Democrats saying their party is the more likely to keep us out of war, and a majority of Republicans picking the G. O. P. as the more likely. However, nearly a third of voters in each party say it makes no difference.

The party vote follows:

"Which party is more likely to keep us out of war?"

	Rep.	Dem.	No Difference
Democratic Voters Say..	6%	62%	32%
Republican Voters Say..	65	5	40

The chief complaint made against the Democratic Party by voters in the poll is that "the Democrats got us into the last war," that "Roosevelt is too pro-Ally," and that the Democrats favor war "in order to keep themselves in power." Others declared, however, that the Roosevelt foreign policy has been "excellent to date," and that the Democrats have men better trained to handle foreign affairs.

Those favoring the Republican Party said they felt it was "more stable and conservative."

Byrd Hits Fund Switch as Plan 'To Evade Legal Debt Limit'

Roosevelt Proposal to Transfer $200,000 From Capital of Land Banks Would Peril Farm Credit System, Says Senator

By Felix Cotten.

Post Staff Writer

Senator Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, yesterday characterized as "a subterfuge to evade the legal debt limit" President Roosevelt's proposal to recapture $700,000,000 from Government lending agencies.

He declared he would oppose any legislation which the President may suggest to carry out the plan.

In more detailed objections, the Senator expressed the view that proposed transfer to the Treasury of $200,000,000 from the capital of the land banks, he believed, would threaten the continuance of the Federal farm credit system as it was originally created.

"The land banks," he declared, "should not be disturbed in their present system of operation. It would be nothing less than a national disaster if the present farm credit system were destroyed."

Basis for Criticism

Byrd's criticism was based on an itemized statement submitted by the President listing parts of the total which different agencies would be called on to supply. The statement was furnished in response to a resolution offered by Byrd and passed by the Senate.

The President's plan contemplates the return to the Treasury of a large part of the money previously advanced to certain agencies as capital. The effect would be to prevent an additional $700,000,000 rise in the National debt, since the money paid back would be used for the Government's running expenses in the same way that borrowed money is used.

Byrd declared that, in striving by this means to keep the debt from going over the $45,000,000,000 statutory limit, the President would weaken the agencies which would be called upon to pay back money.

The proposal, he said, "would greatly impair the capacity of Farm Credit Administration agencies to meet the demands of farmers for loans."

"It may make it necessary," he said, "for some of them to liquidate assets in order to supply loan demands. In the case of the Federal land banks, the ownership by farmers of stock in the banks is involved. It becomes a question, therefore, to what will be done about this private interest in the banks, as well as the entire cooperative farm credit system."

Byrd expressed the view that the "whole scheme for diversion of funds from lending agencies is objectionable." It would throw on the Treasury, to be paid for out of future appropriations, he declared, losses on loans experienced by the agencies affected.

Administration experts, it was learned, are at work on various legislative proposals which may be submitted to Congress to make effective the $700,000,000 diversion.

With regard to the recapture of capital from the land banks and other agencies, it is said, legislation will not be necessary. A bill may have to be offered, however, it was explained, to enable the President to call on the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation for $100,000,000 of its capital, if he decides to do this.

Gives Breakdown

Mr. Roosevelt explained, in his letter to Vice President Garner giving a breakdown of the $700,000,000, that, instead of recapturing $200,000,000 from the land banks, he may take only $100,000,000 and the remaining $100,000,000 from the Farm Mortgage Corporation.

Legislation may also be necessary if the President elects to have the Reconstruction Finance Corporation buy from the Treasury the $125,000,000 capital stock of the Federal Home Loan Banks and return $175,000,000 to the Treasury instead of paying $300,000,000 over to the Treasury.

Administration officials who have been at work on the diversion plan are inclined to the belief that there is no need for a capital cushion for Government agencies in cases where the Government guarantees the securities of the agencies.

Farley Says No One Man Can Keep U. S. Out

3d Term Criticism Implied in Speech To New York Club

By International News Service

New York, April 23.—Postmaster General Farley, avowed Presidential aspirant, today declared that "no politician should attempt to gain the favor of the electorate by making believe that one man can keep out of war better than the other fellow."

The National Democratic Committee chairman was believed to be referring to the common New Deal argument that President Roosevelt must be kept in office for a third term to avert the threat of American implication in Europe's conflict.

"Public officials should not take advantage of the positions they occupy," he said, to advance any theory except what is "representative of the majority will of the people."

In remarks on foreign affairs, Farley, speaking before the Sales Executives Club of New York, implied criticism of third term campaign methods, saying:

"In discussing this topic, politics should go out the window.

"Everybody should keep his feet on the ground, not talk too much, and have one thing in mind constantly—what is best for America."

Wheeler Asks Action on Farm Debt Problem

Failure Will Benefit Fascism, Communism, Campaigner Warns

By the United Press

Chapel Hill, N. C., April 23.—Senator Wheeler, of Montana, tonight brought his campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination into North Carolina by asserting that failure to take "liberal action" on America's farm debt problem means "action, Fascistic or Communistic."

Wheeler told the Carolina Political Union of the University of North Carolina that "ours is a democracy which has roots in individual ownership of land by millions of independent farmers."

He wraned that ideals which are being stricken from the map of Europe by "militaristic gangsterism" may be stricken here "unless each of our citizens is assured the economic rights which are a promise of American life."

Thousands Quit Farms

He continued, "Farmers are being driven from the farm. This is dangerous, un-American and perilous — economically and socially. Foreclosure, drought and mechanization since 1930 have pushed hundreds of thousands of farm families from the land."

Referring to proposed legislation to establish lower interest rates on federal loans to farmers, Wheeler said: "This legislation would do more than reduce the interest rates and provide a formula for adjustment of farm debts. Failure to take liberal action on the farm debt problem means drastic action, Fascistic or Communistic, tomorrow."

He defined a "genuine liberal" as one who does not believe that "Hitler or his ideology will come over here if we have sufficient sense not to go over there. In this country, a liberal is not pro-French, pro-English, or pro-German—he is pro-American and pro-democratic."

"A liberal believes in a limitation of the power vested in any individual. Any deviation from this basic concept is destructive of democracy and the American way. The trend towards a greater and greater concentration of wealth necessitates greater and greater centralization of government—a departure from democracy and liberalism. Power, political or economic, begets power.

"A liberal believes in competition and would regulate or control business only to prevent injustice and to protect the weak from strangulation by the strong. He believes there must be equality in economic opportunity."

Fear Chokes U. S. Business, Dewey Asserts

Carries Campaign For Delegates Into Colorado

By the Associated Press

Denver, April 23.—Thomas E. Dewey, New York district attorney, assailed the Roosevelt Administration tonight for "vengeful policies toward business" which he charged had throttled the "traditional desire of Americans to go into business for themselves."

Carrying his campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination into Colorado less than two weeks before the Colorado Republicans name their 12 delegates to the national convention, Dewey centered his attack on New Deal policies he contended injured small enterprises more than big business.

"It is clear," he said in a prepared address, "that our first task is to repair the damage done during this New Deal depression."

Earlier Dewey told a press conference that, if elected, his first step would be to "pick a Cabinet of men who were somebody before they took office and would be somebody after they left office," he asserted today.

The second step, he said, would be to "reduce expenses and shrink the governmental establishment by trimming Federal pay rolls."

In his night speech, he said:

"The number of new enterprises started in 1929 fell below the average of the 1920's by 21 per cent. In 1937 there were still 42,000 less manufacturing companies in this country than there were in 1929.

"What does this kind of thing mean in terms of jobs? There were still 1,618,000 less jobs in factories in 1937 than there were in 1929.

"Where is the greatest proportionate deficiency of jobs? It is in the small businesses. The working forces of the biggest corporations—those with sales over a million dollars a year—were less than 2 per cent smaller than in 1929.

"But the working forces of the business concerns with a sales volume of from $5,000 to $20,000 dollars a year were over 20 per cent less than in 1929. That calls for prompt correction."

Business has been deprived of needed "funds for expansion," Dewey said, because "the New Deal, by its destructive taxes on individuals, has driven investors of large means into tax-exempt bonds of Federal, State and local Governments."

House Passes Promotion Bill for Army

Retirement Age Lowered in Measure Sent to the Senate

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday passed and sent to the Senate a bill providing automatic promotion and earlier retirement for Army officers.

The measure, designed to vitalize the officer corps by eliminating "stagnation" among the World War and post-war group, would advance some 1,350 officers immediately. For years, the presence of nearly 5,000 officers who entered the service in 1917 has plagued the Army, with some officers of the same age and service being as much as two grades apart.

Brought up under a special rule, the bill went through without dissent. Only about 40 members were on the floor.

Under the existing system, the 10,930 officers on the promotion list are promoted when vacancies occur, except that second lieutenants advance to first lieutenant after three years and first lieutenants to captain after a total of 10 years' service.

The new measure would promote captains automatically to major after 17 years' total service, majors to lieutenant colonel after 23 years and lieutenant colonels to colonel after 28 years. The number of colonels would be limited to 705, which would delay many officers from reaching that grade at the 28-year mark.

The compulsory retirement age would be lowered from 64 to 60 years, except for brigadier generals and selected colonels at 62, and major generals, 64, but this section would not become effective until June 30, 1942. Lieutenant colonels with 28 years' service would be made eligible for appointment as brigadier general or chief of a branch.

While the promotions would boost the number of officers in the grade of major and above to 52 per cent of the total, this would eventually drop to 34 per cent as the World War group retires.

O'Shea testified that he had been appointed president of the Transport Workers Union by John Santo, district representative of the Communist Party. The witness said he joined the party shortly before taking office in 1934, but quit in 1936.

O'Shea replied in the affirmative when asked if the transport workers had "uns" for the same reason as the Christian Front members who were recently arrested in New York on a charge of plotting the overthrow of the Government.

The witness declared that Communists, besides dominating the Transport Workers Union and the United Radio, Electrical and Machine Workers, were "exceptionally strong" in the National Maritime Union as well.

A "general strike situation" could be brought about "very quickly" through Communist infiltration of these unions, he said.

Asked by Chairman Dies if "sabotage" was "a definite part of the Communist program," O'Shea replied, "Absolutely." As an example of "sabotage," he alleged that the present treasurer of the New York City local of the transport union had been convicted of "slashing taxi tires" during the New York taxicab strike in 1935.

Earlier in the day, Andrew Rudolph Onda, secretary of the Communist Party in Cleveland, refused the committee's request to identify party or produce party records.

Railroads Seek Investment Bill Exemption

Carriers Regulated In Such Matters, Association Claims

By the Associated Press

The Association of American Railroads asked yesterday that the railroads be exempt from proposed legislation to regulate investment trusts and investment companies, contending that the carriers already were regulated with respect to such matters.

R. V. Fletcher, general counsel of the association, was assured by Senator Wagner (Democrat), of New York, chairman of a banking subcommittee, that an amendment to exempt carriers and their subsidiaries virtually had been agreed upon by Securities Commission proponents of the investment trust legislation.

Fletcher said in a statement filed with the committee that "much conflict and confusion" might arise unless carriers and their affiliated companies were exempted.

Previously, Prof. E. Merrick Dodd, jr., of Harvard Law School, told the committee that regulation of investment trusts was necessary to prevent "abuses" which he said had occurred in the industry.

He contended there was nothing in the proposed measure which "goes farther than is reasonably necessary to cure those evils which have occurred.

Robert N. Loomis, president of Loomis, Sayles & Co., and James N. White, partner in Scudder, Stevens & Clark, protested the proposed regulation of investment advisers.

They contended that the bill would injure reputable business organizations in an effort to restrict the activities of "the racketeering fringe" and the "tipster minority."

Gasoline Stocks Reach New High

New York., April 23 (AP).—Gasoline stocks rose last week to a new record high of 102,817,000 barrels, compared with 101,837,000 the previous week, and $87,394,000 a year ago, the weekly report of the American Petroleum Institute disclosed yesterday.

A high rate of refinery operations and unseasonable weather for motoring contributed to the gain in finished and unfinished stocks, which usually decline at this season.

First Lady's Criticism of D. C. As Place to Live Stirs Leaders

Capital's Greatest Need Is for 'More Active Citizenship,' Says Mrs. Roosevelt; Claims Suffrage Might Help This Failing

Mrs. Roosevelt's opinion that "Washington is not a good place to live in" and that "suffrage might help," last night aroused many District civic and business leaders to defend their native or adopted city and then join the First Lady in a demand for the vote.

"For the average citizen," said Mrs. Roosevelt at her White House press conference yesterday, "Washington is not a good place to live." The average citizens," she explained, were the non-Government workers, who despite common belief, form a majority of the workers in the Capital, according to statistics cited at the conference.

Washington's greatest need, continued the First Lady, who recently toured District institutions and denounced many of them for inadequate facilities and deplorable conditions, is for a "more active citizenship." This failing, she added, might be helped through suffrage.

Responded Harry N. Stull, president of the Federation of Citizens Associations:

"The federation comprises 66 organizations and 40,000 people. Certainly that isn't a sign of 'inactivity' by the citizens here. The citizenship association is the only means the 'average citizen' has of making his voice heard. Suffrage will certainly help, and maybe Mrs. Roosevelt can help us get it."

A similar viewpoint was expressed by Wilbur Finch, president of the District Suffrage Association. He said:

"The District is the most civically organized city in the Nation. The trouble is that the officials in high positions won't listen to us. Well suffrage would help, but we still can't get it after years of effort."

Mrs. M. O. Lorenz, president of the Voteless District League of Women Voters, suggested that it was impossible for District residents to be "good citizens" without having the opportunity to exercise their citizenship. The citizens sought to be able to control their own affairs through the ballot, she said.

"Conditions in the District are largely due to acts of Congress," declared Francis W. Hill, jr., president of the District Bar Association. "We can have only what it gives us.

Refers to Tax Muddle

"Mrs. Roosevelt is right. We need many things; a new corporation law, for example, and a modernized general code."

The people would feel more responsibility if they had a voice in their own government, believes Mrs. C. D. Lowe, president of the District Congress of Parents and Teachers. "Even persons who have lived here for years do not feel as if they were permanent residents because they have no vote. There are many improvements in conditions that could be made—and might be made with the vote," Mrs. Lowe observed.

Another advocate of suffrage as a means of solving the District's problems is Etta L. Taggart, president of the Washingtonians. The citizens could do a better job than Congress is doing, she asserted, referring to the Congressional District tax law stalemate.

James E. Colliflower, vice president of the District Board of Trade, commented he was satisfied to live in Washington "and I'm not a Government worker." He felt that national representation would prove beneficial to District residents.

"We have an active citizenship all right," averred Louis L. Bowdler, head of the Federation of Businessmen's Associations and president of the Society of Natives. "But it doesn't do us any good because we can't accomplish anything without the right to run our own government as we see fit.

"Washington, contrary to what Mrs. Roosevelt said, is a good place to live. It may cost a little more to live here, but wages—of non-Government workers—are higher than anywhere else in the country. We have the finest of educational and recreational facilities."

Likewise, Fred A. Smith, president of the Washington Real Estate Board, praised the city as "one of the greatest" in respect to fire and police safety. He said he believed that suffrage would not be as good a solution to the vote problem as national representation.

Code Criticism Upheld

Cecil Owen, president of the District Iudustrial Union Council, agreed with Mrs. Roosevelt's further remarks that failure of the District to comply with an industrial safety code was an indication that conditions were not as they should be.

"We do have some laws that are not enforced," he said, adding that suffrage would be a move toward improving conditions.

Suffrage alone is not enough, maintained Mrs. Lucy S. Howorth, Business and Professional Women's president. She believes as Mrs. Roosevelt does that the residents must increase their citizenship activity.

Mrs. Ernest H. Daniel, president of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, a native of Virginia and a resident of the District for 35 years, expressed the sentiments of most comments when she said:

"Washington is the grandest place in the world."

Communists Said to Direct Transit Union

They Can 'Paralyze' New York Subways, Dies Inquiry Hears

Communists are in a position to "paralyze" New York City's transportation system, the Dies Committee heard yesterday from a witness who said he was first president of the Transport Workers Union.

Thomas H. O'Shea, with a rich Irish brogue, testified that only 5 per cent of the union's "rank and file" are Communists, but that 90 per cent of the "leadership" belong to the party.

A former Communist, he testified that he and former New York City Councilman Michael J. Quill, present head of the union, at one time belonged to the same party unit.

O'Shea alleged that transport union members had organized "gun clubs" for target practice and that the union had "made inroads" in Alaska for the "main purpose" of committing sabotage if the United States becomes involved against Soviet Russia.

In New York, Quill denied that Communists dominated the union or that "gun clubs" had been organized. He declared that O'Shea had been president of the union's New York City local in 1935, but had been "completely discredited" and ousted from office the same year, and had been finally expelled from the union in 1938.

Police to Keep Spot Map Record Of Traffic Crashes

To determine the city's traffic "danger spots," police in various precincts yesterday were provided with "spot maps" to keep a monthly record of mishaps.

Each reported accident will be recorded and a comparison made with the previous month. Police hope to reduce considerably serious crashes.

southward along the other side of Lake Mjoesen. But if that is true, there is no doubt among foreign military experts here that it represents a major Allied reverse, especially since the Germans likewise claim to have advanced beyond Rena to Amot, on the other side of the rectangle.

If the German claims are true the Allied troops inside of the rectangle may find themselves caught in a bag and there are, in fact, unconfirmed rumors in German quarters that a substantial Allied force has been trapped in that region. On the other hand, of course, if the Allied forces are strong enough the Germans in and around Lillehammer and Rena may find themselves cut off, in turn.

Troops Landed

A similar situation appears to have developed north of Trondheim, where fighting is under way from Steinkjer to Vaerdal and Stiklestad and where the Germans are likewise employing motorized troops.

At the same time, however, German destroyers, which command the Trondheim Fjord, are reported to have landed troops in several places on the Inderoy Peninsula south of Steinkjer, which would be in the Allied flank or rear. But reports about the progress of this battle are even less illuminating than those about the battle north of Oslo and nothing can be said, therefore, about the chances of the rival corces.

Of the situation just south of Trondheim, where yesterday British forces were reported only 15 miles from the important seaport, nothing further was heard today.

Nazis at Narvik Trapped

The German claim that they have cut off the Allied forces from their landing bases in both Namsos and Andalsnes are discounted here, but the reported destruction of Dombas, junction of railways from Andalsnas and Trondheim, may cause erious embarrashsment to the Allies for the moment because it might delay reinforcements and supplies at a decisive moment in the battles in central Norway and south of Trondheim.

Swedish reports concerning the far northern iron ore port, Narvik, say the German garrison there is almost trapped with British-Norwegian troops ringing it by land and British naval units hemming it in from the sea.

Swedish sailors who left Narvik Sunday declared that by masterful marksmanship the British had destroyed only four buildings in their repeated bombardments of the Germans in Narvik. German reports acknowledged another barrage of shells from British warships but said there had been no effort to land troops.

(Reuters, British news agency, said in London that British and Norwegian troops were reported attacking north of Hamar for possession of the "gateway" to Oslo through the great Gubrandsdal Valley, and that British-Norwegian pressure is forcing the Germans back from Elverum, farther east.)

100 Nazis Captured

Stockholm, April 23 (AP).—The Norwegian command's communique tonight said German attacks on both sides of Lake Mjosen were supported by artillery, tanks and aircraft.

The Germans were attacking in Osterdal, the river valley running north from Elverum, the command said, while the Norwegians advanced in Valdres River Valley, west of Lake Mjosen, and captured 100 German prisoners.

The Norwegians are in control of the railroad from Andalsnes, British disembarkation point, to Lillehammer, the Norwegian communique said, and have transported reinforcements with mountain artillery to the latter place.

"The Norwegian defenders are being equipped with arms by the Allied powers," said the announcement.

Reports from Norway persisted that the Allies, moving south from Namsos, had met a German detachment at Levanger, 35 miles north of Trondheim, after advancing 85 miles by railroad.

Russia to Stay Out

London, April 23 (U.P.).—The Moscow radio in a broadcast summary of the Norwegian confict said tonight that "Russia is not going to participate in this war."

"Whether or not France and England like it, Russia in the future will continue to pursue her own policy of neutrality and nonparticipation," the broadcast, made in both the German and English languages, said.

It was noted, however, that Russian broadcasts pointed at domestic consumption included more news from Allied sources than from German.

Talk With Mackenzie King Means Nothing, Says Roosevelt

Reporters Ask Whether Premier Had Copy Of Monroe Doctrine, Recall President's Speech Assuring U. S. Aid If Canada Is Attacked

By Douglas Cornell,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Warm Springs, Ga., April 23.—President Roosevelt sketched a puzzle picture today—a picture of the heads of the Canadian and American governments, skipping in a conference such topics as politics and policies, although Canada is fighting a war and the United States is affected vitally by it.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, the only top executive of one of the warring nations to talk with the President, arrived this morning from Atlanta and was received immediately at the Little White House on Pine Mountain.

In a matter of minutes, through Secretary William D. Hassett, the President insisted the visit had no political meaning, that it involved "no question of American or Canadian policy." Hassett even added that "it would not be good for the American position" for the prime minister to be interviewed "while he is on a purely vacation trip."

Joshingly and with a touch of skepticism, reporters asked Hassett whether Mackenzie King had brought with him a copy of the Monroe Doctrine, whether the President had here a copy of a speech he made some years ago at Kingston, Ontario, assuring Canada of American assistance in repelling any attack from beyond the seas.

The newsmen got no answers.

They found it difficult to believe that President and prime minister would fail to talk over problems arising from the war, and perhaps a pending treaty for development of the St. Lawrence waterway.

But they had the President's word for it that Mackenzie King's visit "literally means nothing."

"The President has authorized me to say," Hassett declared, reading from notes dictated by his chief, "he hoped no unwarranted conclusions, deductions or assumptions would be drawn from Mr. Mackenzie King's visit. He said it literally means nothing. Mr. King and the President are very old friends. They have known each other for 30 years."

After asserting that the prime minister always comes South for a spring rest and holiday, and always drops in on the President, Hassett added that "there never has been anything of political significance in these visits and there isn't in this one."

Regardless of how devoid of significance previous meetings between Mr. Roosevelt and the Canadian leader may have been, they were conferring for the first time since Canada declared herself at war with Germany.

The occasion was regarded as propitious for a study at least, of the manner in which the conflict has touched the Western Hemisphere, and Canadian-American relationships. But the President described the prime minister's visit as meaningless and there the matter rested.

Admiralty Tells How British Ships Stormed Narvik 3 Times

By Robert P. Post
Copyright by New York Times

London, April 23.—Three times the flotilla leader Hardy took her squadron of destroyers into Narvik Harbor through German shell fire, until finally she was beached, one gun still firing, her bridge a wreck, her captain dying, and the paymaster-lieutenant—the man whose job it is to handle the ship's accounts—in command.

Thus did the admiralty communique today tell the details of one of the most daring destroyer actions in naval history, fought out against superior forces in the snow and mists of an early northern dawn on April 10.

Before she got her death wound official accounts show that the Hardy ran interference for the rest of the flotilla, which included the Hotspur, Hostile, Havoc and the Hunter. The latter was sunk and the Hotspur was damaged.

Fires Several Torpedoes

The Hardy first went in alone. She saw one merchant ship near the entrance, then a mass of other shipping, including one large German destroyer, appeared. The Hardy turned hard to port, increased her speed and fired several torpedoes.

As she swung, two more enemy destroyers came into view. The Hardy opened fire and let go more torpedoes. A loud explosion, followed by a sheet of flame, told that the first set had found their mark.

The Hardy withdrew, engaging the other two German destroyers and the shore batteries. The other British destroyers dashed in, in turn firing at the German supply ships with torpedoes and hammering at the destroyers with their guns.

The British pulled out and then the Hardy led in again with shells from the destroyers and the shore batteries falling all around her. The others followed and this time they silenced the shore batteries and the German destroyers in the harbor.

Return to the Kill

The flotilla went in again, hammering at the supply vessels, but as the Hardy was leading the way out, three more German destroyers were sighted, coming out of Rombaks Fjord, which runs in behind Narvik.

B. A. W. Warburton-Lee, commander of the flotilla aboard the Hardy, signaled the final withdrawal and increased the Hardy's speed to 30 knots. But two German destroyers blocked their way and all fire was concentrated on the Hardy. It was then that German shells found the British leader and she was forced to the beach.

Paymaster Lieut. G. H. Stanning was the only man conscious on the bridge. He was badly wounded. An enemy salvo had killed the helmsman and wounded the commander, and the ship was storming along at more than 30 knots.

Crawling to the wrecked wheelhouse Stanning took the helm, looking out through a shothole, for he was unable to stand. Soon afterwards a seaman appeared and to him.

Then Stanning returned to the Stanning turned over the wheel shell-torn bridge and took command. Stanning said he had a vague idea of ramming an enemy who had come up abreast of the Hardy and was pouring in salvos at almost point blank range. Just then a shell found the Hardy's vitals.

Steam escaped and the vessel's bow came down in the water as she lost way. Stanning ordered the helm over and headed for the beach.

One gun was still barking from the stern as she was beached and the Germans kept pouring shells into the crippled ship.

Commander Dies

It was then the task of Lieut. Comdr. V. G. D. Mansell, who by now had left the stern guns and taken command, to disembark the crew under heavy fire with no boat seaworthy and many wounded. German destroyers, however, soon drew off.

Warburton-Lee died before he was landed. Others swam or floated on debris to shore then went to houses where the ship's doctor, himself wounded, did what he could.

The more seriously wounded were landed and taken either by ambulance or sledge over the rough roads to Ballanger, 15 miles away. One man died on the way and was buried in the snow.

At Ballanger the British contacted the Norwegians and after three days were taken off by the destroyer Ivanhoe which was with the British squadron which finished off the job begun by the first destroyer flotilla.

able" battleship ideal more nearly than any ship yet built.

"They are the largest battleships ever built in this country," says Bywater, "and are exceeded in size only by the Lion and Temeraire and two others not yet named which still are under construction and will displace at least 40,000 tons."

They Do 30 Knots

Giving the most exact description yet published of the new ships, Bywater says they mount ten 14-inch guns, 16 5.25-inch guns and many smaller guns, will have a speed of 30 knots and carry 1,500 men and officers each.

The British submarines Sea Lion, Sunfish and Snapper, operating in the narrow waters of the Skagerrak, were declared to have sunk nine and possibly ten German merchantmen, five of them in convoy—a total tonnage of 30,000, according to informed naval sources.

Eight German ships of 53,108 tons were announced to have been sunk at Narvik, the small ship Rhein captured and the 4,485-ton Torgen Fritzen reported sunk south of Stockholm.

On the other hand, London emphasized a steady drop in British sea losses. Three British ships, the Swainby, Mersey and Hawnby, went down last week, bringing the British-figured total of war losses to 672,778 tons. British shipping experts complacently compared this figure with the German total of 451,000 tons which they computed as lost, and said the smaller German merchant fleet was far less able to stand such losses than the British.

The House of Lords was informed officially that British losses in the first week of fierce but sporadic sea fighting in Norwegian waters were three destroyers, one submarine and one trawler sunk. The government spokesman, Lord Hankey, minister without portfolio, indicated that none of 12 other war ships damaged was vitally hit except for the destroyer Hardy, which was beached at Narvik.

Mine Sinks Steamer

A mine sank the 1,969-ton British steamer Lolworth off the southeast Coast of England late tonight and the fate of another ship, also reported mined, was a mystery.

The sinking of the Lolworth, with the loss of two crewmen and injuries to eight others, followed a big aerial battle Monday night off the English coast when mine-laying German warplanes flew low over the Thames and Humber estuaries.

A lifeboat went to the assistance of the Lolworth's crew but another craft which put out in search of the second vessel reported mined could find no trace of it.

Allies Bomb Oslo Airport, Crater Left Near Nazis' Hotel

Leaflets Warn Civilians of Raid, Which Lasts for 2½ Hours; Germans Keep Norwegians in City

By Francis McEachen.
United Press Staff Writer

Mellerud, Sweden, April 23.—Squadron after squadron of Allied planes swept upon German-held Oslo early today and, for two and a half hours, bombed Fornebo airport on the northern outskirts.

I watched in the blacked-out streets while a ring of German anti-aircraft guns around the city thundered away at the Allied raiders and searchlights criss-crossed the sky.

The Germans redoubled guards around railroad stations to prevent evacuation of the frightened Norwegian residents of Oslo but I was informed that many of them somehow succeeded in fleeing despite the German precautions.

Bomb Lands Near Hotel

The first bomb of the attack landed near the center of the city, just around a corner from the Continental Hotel, left a crater and did considerable damage but that was the only evidence of bomb damage inside the city which I could find when I left Oslo this morning.

The hotel is headquarters of the German general staff. The faces of people were awe-stricken when the bombs began smashing. Hundreds watched the flash of the bombs and antiaircraft shells from windows.

It was impossible to determine the extent of the damage at the German-held Fornebo airdrome since civilians are forbidden to leave Oslo proper. However, the airport area was heavily bombed and the airdrome was reported badly damaged.

Nazis Blame Gas Main

The Germans said the explosion near the hotel was due to a bursting gas main, but many pieces of shrapnel were found nearby and there was no smell of gas.

The squadrons of Allied bombers swept upon the city a few minutes after midnight.

Shortly after noon yesterday two French planes flew over Oslo at 20,000 feet and began scattering leaflets which, relayed by word of mouth among the civilian population, gave warning of the impending attack.

The leaflets, printed in Norwegian, French and English, said:

"We are coming to help . . . Evacuate to the country . . . We won't bombard the city, but the attack will be centered on Oslo . . . don't be afraid."

The dropping of the leaflets was followed by a statement by the German military authorities asserting that the pamphlets were only an "Allied bluff," and that nothing was to be feared.

The thunder of the bursting bombs continued without interruption for two and one-half hours.

When I left Oslo there were rumors that one British plane had been shot down. No German planes appeared to have left the ground to give battle to the raiders.

(In London, an air ministry statement said that one British plane failed to return from an attack on Fornebo airdrome at Oslo which was said to have been set on fire by incendiary bombs and on the Danish Airport at Aalborg, across the Skagerrak from the Norwegian coast.)

This morning none of the shops in Oslo were open. Streets were deserted and the population remained indoors.

Interned in Hotel

I have just returned here from Oslo after bicycling through the German and Norwegian lines north of Kongsvinger and going directly to the German-held Norwegian capital.

In Oslo I was interned in my hotel for two days before I received authorization from the Germans to tour the city and return to Sweden.

During my bicycle trip to Oslo I received the impression that the Norwegian resistance north of the capital was stiffer than the German general staff had anticipated.

The Germans were working their way slowly but surely northward, but farther north they undoubtedly will meet stronger opposition because the bulk of the Norwegian army is concentrated there, together with fully-equipped Finnish and Swedish volunteers.

Record British Budget Sets Heaviest Taxes

Proposed Expenditures To Carry on War Call For Nearly 10 Billions

The heaviest taxation ever proposed in British history is expected to yield £1,234,000,000 ($4,319,000,000), but the government still must borrow £1,433,000,000 ($5,015,500,000), in the 1940-41 fiscal year.

The British national debt already is £8,931,000,000 ($31,258,500,000), or about $800 per capita as compared with the United States national debt of $308 per capita in 1939.

Sir John announed a proposed new wholesale sales tax, the rates of which have not been determined and which would "reduce the demand for supplies and conserve manpower."

37 Per Cent Income Tax

Taxes were hiked on several other items, but the heavy income tax schedules announced in the war emergency budget last fall were not changed except that the surtax will begin at £1,500 ($5,250) instead of the old minimum of £2,000 ($7,000).

(The British income tax begins at £125 ($437.50) for a single person and £200 ($700) for a married person with no child.)

Beginning April 1, Britons pay 7½ shillings on the pound (37½ per cent).

Other new taxes included one penny a pint (about 1⅛ cents) on beer, to yield annually an increase of £18,000,000 ($63,000,000); three pence (about 5 cents) per ounce on tobacco for an increased annual yield of £23,000,000 ($80,500,000); and an increase in the ordinary letter rate from one pence half-penny (about 2 cents) to two pence half-penny (about 3 cents.)

Declaring the nation faced the task of "transforming the whole economy," Sir John announced that new legislation would be introduced to stimulate exports.

The new wholesale tax was fitted into this economic revolution under which the Government will use taxes, monopolies and rationing as a means of reducing the standard of living at home to sell more abroad.

In the main, the taxes were imposed on products not essential for subsistence.

Fish Criticizes Navy Officers As 'Warlike

Prediction of U. S. Conflict With Japan Called Propaganda

American naval officers were accused yesterday in Congress of making "war-like" statements in an effort to obtain larger appropriations for warships.

Representative Fish (Republican), of New York, frequent critic of the Administration's foreign policy, charged that Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig's prediction of an inevitable war with Japan was part of a Navy propaganda campaign to push through a fleet expansion bill. He asked a Congressional investigation of such remarks.

Representative Hobbs (Democrat), of Alabama, immediately jumped to the defense of Taussig and the Navy. He took Fish to task for criticizing a man for voicing "his sincere convictions and views" and asserted that "no one is more sincere or better qualified to speak on defense questions than the admirals of our Navy."

Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Navy Edison, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of Naval Operations, have disclaimed any responsibility for Taussig's testimony and declared it is contrary to the official or naval viewpoint.

As Senate hearings ended on the $655,000,000 fleet expansion measure, Fred Libby, of National Council for Prevention of War, criticized Admiral Taussig of "attempting to frighten the American people by conjuring up a coalition of four nations attacking the United States.

"If we are to have war with Japan," he said, "it will be because of such statements as Admiral Taussig's and moves such as Senator Pittsman's Japanese embargo plan rather than anything done by Japan."

13 German Bridges Worry Luxemburg

Tiny Grand Duchy Builds Tank Traps To Meet New Threat

By Robert Okin.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Luxemburg, April 23.—Ominous preparations across the German frontier of this tiny grand duchy, wedged between Germany and France on the Western Front, gave Luxemburgers fresh cause for anxiety tonight.

I counted 13 German bridges under construction on the Moselle River and several of them extended to mid-river. The Luxemburgers hastily have begun to build tank traps on the banks opposite the bridges.

On the German side of the Moselle and in an area farther north along the Sauer River, large numbers of German troops were visible. Guards peered through field glasses at all automobiles passing on the Luxemburg side.

On the German side, the construction of fortifications still is under way. I could see German military trucks and trains roll by undisturbed within easy range of the French guns.

Sweden Is No 'Pushover,' Say Military Experts Here

1936 Defense Law Revamped Army And Navy and Modernized Equipment; Country Can Support 25 to 40 Divisions

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Military men here said yesterday that Germany, if she decided to broaden her conquest or "protection" in Scandinavia, would find Sweden no "pushover."

Sweden, largest of the Scandinavian countries, is by far the strongest in a military sense.

The Foreign Policy Association recently pointed out that Sweden, in 1936, enacted a new defense law which provided for great changes in the country's military forces. There were shifts of personnel and rank, more divisions were created, and provisions was made for modernized equipment, heavier ships and greater coastal defenses.

Nevertheless, when war came to Europe last September, Sweden had a standing army of only 60,000 men. Her total trained manpower, according to one military expert, is probably between 800,000 and 900,000. But it is doubtful if she could organize, equip and support more than about 500,000 to 600,000, perhaps 25 to 40 divisions.

The Swedish navy consists of eight second-class battleships, four of them obsolescent; a modern aircraft cruiser, the Gotland, only ship of its type in the world; about 16 destroyers, 16 submarines, and a large number of minesweepers, minelayers, motor torpedo boats and smaller types.

Like Norway and Denmark, Sweden has always been weak in the air. She is said to have 200 to 300 fighting planes. Just before the invasion of Norway, she acquired some new planes from Great Britain and she also placed an order for 80 in this country with the Republic Aircraft Co.

Ex-Minister, 2 More Seized In Yugoslavia

Further Steps Taken To Insure Safety In Case of Crisis

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Belgrade, April 23.—Yugoslavia today took further steps to insure national safety in case of a crisis. Milan Achimovitch, long police chief of Belgrade and later minister of interior, has been arrested and interned in the town of Brouss.

At the same time, Milan Stoyadinovitch, former premier and foreign minister, who had been placed under guard in the village of Rudnik, has been transferred to an unknown locality to prevent possible efforts to obtain his release by force. Two other adherents of the former prime minister have been imprisoned.

Secret mobilization on a partial scale is continuing and the army may reach three-fifths of its full strength tomorrow, according to some sources. Three divisions have been sent down to southern Serbia and Montenegro to counter any possible Italian thrust from Albania.

Arrangements have been made for the evacuation of Belgrade school children.

The American consulates at Zagreb and Belgrade have sent out formal notices to the 550 American citizens in Yugoslavia whose addresses are registered, suggesting that they leave the country unless they have pressing reasons for staying.

Germans Photograph Oil Fields

Copyright by New York Times

Bucharest, April 23.—The Rumanian government intends to bestow more attention on the Banat minority question, it was learned today.

The perfects of those districts in the Banat where the Hitlerite tendencies are most marked have been summoned to a conference in Bucharest. It is expected that the government will take suitable measures with regard to this matter very soon.

The center of the Banat-Hitlerite movement is in Timisoara at the German consulate.

Lately, many Germans expelled from Bulgaria have arrived in Bucharest. The newspapers point out that "tourists" have played important roles in most of the countries where political upheavals have taken place.

The fact that the Berlin U. F. A. film company was allowed to take a "education film" of the Rumanian oil fields has created a painful sensation here.

Capt. Losey Died Instantly, Chauffeur Says

Eyewitness Describes Bombing in Which U. S. Officer Perished

Capt. Robert M. Losey, American flier attache in Norway, died instantly in a bomb explosion that killed "five or six" other persons, the State Department was advised yesterday by Frederick A. Sterling, American Minister at Stockholm.

It was the first eyewitness account of Losey's death.

Sterling cabled that he had received the account by telephone from the chauffeur of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, American Minister to Norway.

The chauffeur said he was with Losey when he was killed. He told Sterling that he and Losey had gone to Dombras, Norway, on a special train last Sunday and that an air raid alarm was sounded while the train was in the station.

During the bombing, the chauffeur related, he and Losey went into a tunnel about 150 yards from the station.

A bomb splinter struck Losey in the heart as he was standing near the tunnel entrance. The chauffeur reported five or six others in the tunnel were killed and several wounded.

The chauffeur said he had accompanied Losey's body from Bombras to Hede, Sweden, whence he telephoned Sterling.

Sterling reported the chauffeur had been instructed to accompany the body to Stockholm, when is it due tomorrow. He said the Swedish general staff was sending a special car and bodyguard to Hede.

3 Who Piloted ChamberlainPeace Flights Are Killed

London, April 23 (AP).—Three pilots who participated in Prime Minister Chamberlain's "peace in our time" flights to Germany a year ago last September now have lost their lives in crashes.

Capt. D. S. King, Chamberlain's personal pilot on two of the three trips he made to see Adolf Hitler, and who piloted an escort plane on the third trip, was killed when an Airways Corporation liner crashed near Loch Lomond last night.

E. G. L. Robinson, who flew Chamberlain to Munich on his third trip in September, 1938, was killed in an air accident two months later. Then, last month, Flying Officer S. D. Slocum, who flew the escort plane on one of the flights to Germany, was killed in action.

Decisive Battle Is Beginning At 'Gate' to Oslo

Allies and Nazis Locked In 1st Major Conflict Near Lillehammer

By the Associated Press

London, April 23.—The tide of war on the hard northern battleground boiled tonight into southern Norway and found Allied and German troops engaged in a battle of seeming decision for the "gate" to Oslo and, perhaps, command of the invaded nation's destiny.

While another uncommunicative communique from the war office pictured British and Norwegian troops as fighting together and resisting "enemy pressure" in the south of Norway, unofficial British and neutral military observers pieced together this picture of the land war:

1. The first major battle of the campaign is beginning at the gate near Lillehammer where the great Gudbrandsdal Valley enters the southern plain. It is at Lillehammer that the Allied columns must debouch from the valley if they are to strike across the plain at German-held Oslo.

Push Toward Hamar

2. A flying column of Norwegians and British has thrust southward from the Briton's central-west coast landing places and, flanking the Lillehammer conflict, is pushing for Hamar, 30 miles south of Lillehammer and 60 miles north of Oslo. This force has taken Noelven, about 10 miles north of Hamar.

3. British troops "have been counter-attacked," in the words of the official communique, by Germans north of Trondheim, on the west coast, and a sharp engagement has resulted.

Neutral military men said the first situation was by far the most important. They emphasized that if the Germans recoil before the Allies' heavy guns and mechanized units it will be a grave blow to their hopes of retaining Oslo.

On the Western Front, British correspondents reported an indecisive action between a large formation of cannon-firing German Messerschmitts and a smaller flight of British Hurricanes. One of each side was reported shot down.

"Treat Germany Rough"

At home Alfred Duff Cooper, former war secretary and first lord of the admiralty, gave voice to the increasing sentiments of the "treat Germany rough" school of highly-placed British thought.

He called the nation to a total war against the "whole German people"—not only the Nazis—declared "the German people" must be beaten in battle and warned them they need expect no sympathy if, afterward, they come "whining and groveling" as he said they did at Versailles.

Duff Cooper, in making his speech on Day of St. George, Britain's patron saint, substituted for First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, who was busy elsewhere.

Although Duff Cooper now has no official status, his view reelects the opinion of an increasing number of important people in Britain, despite the fact that, when the conflict began, the nation's leaders said it was "a war against Hitlerism."

"When Germany Is Beaten . . ."

(Chamberlain, himself, as early as January 10, warned that "the German people must realize that the responsibility for the prolongation of this war is theirs, as well as that of the tyrant who stands over them.")

Glowering, Duff Cooper today said he hoped that when "Germany is beaten in the field," Britain would not be taken in by the German nation's cries that Germany's "crimes" were "those of a few politicians."

"Hitler says the entire German people is behind him," he said. "I, for one, am prepared to take him at his word."

Victory for the Allies, he declared, is certain.

Allied Council Drafts Plans to Check War's Spread

By P. J. Philip.

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, April 24.—Decisions of very grave importance have been taken by the Allied Supreme War Council, which has been meeting here during the past two days.

Even the noncommittal communique issued this evening plainly indicated that this meeting was different from all its predecessors in that it was not called for the purpose of counteracting some German move and some fait accompli, such as the invasion of Denmark and Norway. It went further than that. It looked toward future developments and the detailed planning of a positive Allied policy for the defense of their common interests and the fulfillment of their engagements.

[The dangers of a spread of the war into Sweden and Yugoslavia were reported to have been brought into sharp relief at the meeting, the Associated Press said, quoting sources close to the French foreign office.

[Earlier in the day French military commentators reported there was evidence of increasing German pressure on Sweden in German press and radio campaigns, and the foreign office source said Yugoslavia continues to lie within the danger zone.]

Present for the first time at a council meeting were representatives of Poland, whose premier and army commander attended, and Norway, whose Minister to Paris was present. Besides Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Reynaud, the British and French governments had their foreign ministers, and civil and military chiefs of all their armed forces, with one or two exceptions.

The success of the Allied landing in Norway and the subsequent developments have, it is thought, fully justified the decision taken at the last supreme council meeting to move at once to the help of Norway, despite the fact that the initial advantage lay with Germany.

Both the British and French peoples have only one desire—to prevent the war from being spread further and in this way dragging on interminably. To prevent that they will appprove any measure which may be taken to forestall the enemy or those sympathetic to Germany; and any means that will tighten the pressure by which it is believed victory can be secured without devastating loss of life.

During the last war that pressure was finally brought to bear by the Allied armies advancing from Salonika, and although this war is different in many important features it is felt that eventually it must be fought out—perhaps slowly—on the same principles. On the Western Front Germany has not attacked and does not seem disposed to do so. In Norway she has already wasted her naval strength; and it looks as though she were wasting much of her air strength.

The important point, it is considered, is to prevent her overrunning new territories and obtaining new supplies which would permit her to prolong her resistance. If that is to be done, precautions must be taken "in good time."

The communique issued after the British ministers had returned safely by air to London read as follows:

"This meeting permitted a wide exchange of views on all the political and military problems, which may at this time call for vigilance on the part of the Allied governments, so as to assure in good time against any enemy initiative, the eventual fulfilment of their commitments and the common defense of their interests.

Japanese Make Americans Bow In Tientsin

Grew Says Blockade Working Hardships On U. S. Residents

Tientsin (Wednesday), April 24 (AP).—Americans now are required to alight from their cars and bow to the Japanese sentries who search their machines and baggage at the entrances to the British and French concessions, United States citizens reported here today.

The stricter attitude on the part of the Japanese, the Americans said, was coincident with yesterday's representations in Tokyo by United States Ambassador Grew that the Japanese blockade of the Tientsin concessions was working hardships on American residents.

It was understood that the United States consulate had protested the restrictions frequently but without result.

British Concession Hinted

By the Associated Press

Japanese sources said today the British had "hinted at amazing concessions" to secure Japan's "benevolent neutrality" toward the European war which would enable the Allies to plug one of the major leaks in the blockade of Germany—at Vladivostok, Soviet Russia's Far Eastern port.

Japanese reports said Vladivostok was piled high with cargoes destined for Germany via the Trans-Siberian Railway—American oil and copper, and tin and rubber from the East Indies.

These reports indicated a possible relaxation of British and French opposition to Japan's policies in China which might result in the lifting of restrictions which the Japanese army has enforced at Tientsin since last June.

A Japanese informant said Britain had proposed a trade agreement whereby Britain would increase her purchases of Japanese foodstuffs and lower tariffs on Japanese textiles entering India.

(Informed quarters in London said no official proposals had been made to Japan.)

The Japanese quarters predicted an early settlement of the Tientsin issue, which centers on the disposition of $12,000,000 worth of Chinese government silver specie stored in bank vaults in the British and French concessions.

Italy to Aid Nazis, Duce Quoted

Mussolini's statements were made last Sunday when he received the leaders of 22 Fascist corporations representing all branches of business and industry throughout the nation.

Nazis Admit Land Battle With British, Claim Debarkation Port Destroyed

By Percival Knauth

Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, April 23.—Fighting between German and Allied troops on Norwegian soil is officially confirmed for the first time in Berlin today.

North of Trondheim, German troops advancing toward Namsos were engaged with mixed Allied and Norwegian forces for 2½ hours, and it is reported here, succeeded in routing the enemy, blocking all communications from Namsos southward.

The German air force concentrated its full attention on Andalsnes Harbor where British troops have landed and are said to be preparing for an advance into the interior of Norway.

Waves of Planes Raid

For one whole day, wave on wave of German planes bombed and machinegunned the harbor and surrounding territory. When the last shots were fired and final bombs were dropped, the Germans report, "all military objectives in Andelsnes as well as a wide section of the surrounding countryside were smoking ruins."

One British destroyer and two troopships were reported sunk, another destroyer was badly hit, and a second troopship was destroyed by fire. Two other "enemy craft" were damaged, the Germans claim.

This raid, according to German reports, had a devastating effect both on British manpower disembarking in Andalsnes Harbor and on the Norwegian harbor appointments—railroad junctions, bridges and supply depots of all kinds. The raid also clearly reveals the deeper strategy of the German campaign in the north, insofar as it is directed against Allied expeditionary forces.

Bomb Communications

Just as in Poland where German bombing squadrons isolated Polish army units by bombing all communications, the German air force in Norway is attempting to cut off Allied troops from the harbor where they landed and where their vital supplies must be unloaded.

Thus it is reported today that Allied troops operating in the Namsos sector north of Trondheim as well as in the Lillehammer sector southeast of Andalsnes, are now cut off from the only seaports through which reinforcements and supplies can be brought to them.

Fighting between Allied and German troops around Lillehammer is not officially confirmed but is believed to be in progress.

Reich Claims 2,000 Casualties

The German claim that more than 2,000 Allied troops have been taken prisoner or have been destroyed north of Lillehammer is a tacit admission that fighting has been going on in that sector probably for a few days past. The Allied troops engaged here, the Germans state, were mostly Canadians, a large number of whom have been captured.

(The British today denied officially that Canadian units were in Norway, although it was admitted that individual Canadian soldiers might be there.)

German troops today were reported to be continuing to advance along the railroad lines beyond Lillehammer and Aamot. (Stockholm reports denied the Germans had reached Lillehammer.)

There is no indication in Berlin of the number of Allied forces the Germans are encountering in any part of Norway. The official communique does not even specifically mention the presence of enemy forces in the Lillehammer and Aamot areas, stating merely that the "advance is continuing despite difficulties of the terrain and the enemy barrier."

Rail Line Is Bombed

Dombas, rail junction where the main railroad line from Oslo branches northwest to Andalsnes and north to Trondheim, was bombed again today, it is reported. Having thus forestalled Allied advances along the railroad from Andalsnes, either north or south, toward Trondheim or Lillehammer, the Germans bombed the junction at Grong, north of Trondheim, on the branch line to Namos.

Reinforcements are reported in Berlin to have landed at Trondheim and Bergen. At Trondheim, the Germans are consolidating their positions, pushing forward in localized advances as feelers to the Allied forces. At Bergen and Stavanger, the Germans are reported to be still combating small isolated Norwegian units.

Southeast of Stavanger, according to the German report, heavy fighting with Norwegian troops finally ended in the surrender of part of a Norwegian division.

Narvik Shelled from Sea

No contacts have been made as yet between German and Allied troops in the northernmost sector at Narvik, the Germans state.

British ships, it is reported, again shelled in Narvik from a distance but made no attempt to land troops there. The German forces, it is alleged, still hold the town and are consolidating their positions in the mountainous region surrounding the port.

The Germans claim they are still operating offensively in Norway. Large scale enemy operations, they claim, have been seriously hampered by the destruction of important railroad junctions, bridges and other means of communication. The line dividing offensive from defensive operations under such circumstances as exist in Norway, is a debatable matter, but in the German view, such attacks as staged against Andalsenes have been distinctly offensive in character.

British Bomb Danish Airport

The British again bombed the Aalborg airport, in Denmark, but it is reported, without success. One British plane is said to have been shot down by German antiaircraft.

The British air attack on Stavanger yesterday was wholly unsuccessful, it is stated here, and the British lost two planes.

German planes, attacking British naval units off Namsos, it is reported, scored a direct hit with a heavy bomb on a British destroyer. The vessel is reported to have been damaged, but apparently was not sunk.

Soviet Cools To Germany, Allies Hear

'Evolve' Toward War Against Nazi Cause, Order Believed to Say

By P. J. Philip.
Copyright by New York Times

Paris, April 23.—Amid the unending intricacies of the diplomatic struggle which is being fought with even greater fierceness than the war itself, attention has here again switched back to what Russia is doing and may be expected to do.

Among all these subtle poker players Josef Stalin, despite the near-failure of his military action against Finland, still stands out as the most astute and devious of all.

Last spring and summer he outplayed the Allied diplomats who were angling for his support. They failed because they could not or would not give him that foothold in the Baltic countries and Finland which he, like all his predecessors in the Kremlin, considered essential for the safeguarding of Russia's outlet into the Baltic Sea.

To most peoples' dismay, he suddenly switched his whole game and signed with Adolf Hitler, making good on Hitler's invasion of Poland to take his share of that country and those strong places on the Gulf of Finland which he coveted.

Finland refused his demands and he had to fight.

Smypathy With Norway

The meaning of all that history was somewhat obscured for the world in general by the emotion with which other people saw Poland "stabbed in the back" and Finland "fighting for liberty."

Since the war with Finland ended there have been many hypotheses which must have been disquieting in Berlin.

In the first place, the Soviet government kept its treaty with Finland in regard to Petsamo and other matters according to the strict letter. Certan hopes and proposals which were entertained in Berlin failed of realization. Soviet government officials showed sympathy with Norway.

In London there has been considerable negotiation. Moscow has suddenly begun to show great interest in Yugoslavia and in the Danube Valley.

Finally, it is reported an order has been issued to the Third International organizations throughout the world to "evolve" in their attitude toward the war against Germany and begin, at least in those countries which are at war, to join their efforts openly to support of the national cause.

Balkans Watched

What all this portends is difficult to estimate. It certainly would not tend to strengthen military Germany. Against that advantage from the Allied point of view, must be set the fact that it is disquieting to those governments who have taken a strongly anti-Communist stand.

It would contribute to uncertainty, doubt, and weakness among those who are fighting a "national antidoctrinal" battle. It would, if this report of the order for a tactical switch over is confirmed in action, produce an even more obscure and intricate position than the present.

For the moment it is, however, in the Balkans that the Russian diplomatic moves are being most closely watched and there they seem as definitely anti-German in their ultimate aim as they were in Poland and the Baltic where the Germans were completely hoodwinked.

That does not, of course, mean that they are pro-Ally or anything of the kind. They are simply pro-Russian.

Dutch Ready to Turn Fields Into Lakes To Check Swift Invasion From East

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

Utrecht, The Netherlands, April 23.—With the whole of The Netherlands under a state of siege, the Dutch have taken the final step toward assuring the smooth functioning of their unique water defense system in case of a swift invasion from the east.

Now enjoying something approaching dictatorial control in the country, the Dutch military can see to it that in case of a sudden emergency sabotage shall not be employed to prevent the immediate opening of the sluice gates for inundations. The officials say that The Netherlands, unlike Norway, shall not be betrayed by "the enemy from within."

Preparations are being made to transform fields into shallow artificial lakes if the alarm is given. An intricate network of field fortifications has been developed—the bulk of it during the past eight months—to mow down any enemy force which might attempt to push and splash through the inundated areas.

A young Dutchman, asked if he thought the Germans would come "They had better not, for it won't be as easy as Denmark. If they do come they had better bring their bathing suits."

2 Major Districts

The two of the major districts marked for flooding extend in a southernly direction from the Zuider Zee to the Rhine and Meuse river valleys, which here run almost due east and west. Amersfoort is situated on the western fringe of the outermost of these two potential "walls of water"—shallow walls, it is true. Utrecht is within the second of the two districts.

Key factors in the vast system, these areas are intended to protect the heart of the Netherlands, including the four largest cities, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, The Hague and Utrecht.

In general the water "fortifications" of this important territory are based on the plans worked out by Prince William of Orange. The Prince once said that with the dikes open he would take 10,000 men and "defend it against the whole world." That was three centuries ago.

Many of the districts to the north and east of Utrecht were literally swarming today with the pink-cheeked, hardy men of the Dutch army. They wear a gray-green uniform in which the green is slightly more prominent than in the German army costume. Mobilization has brought about 500,000 men under arms, all the combat troops available in the country.

Wives Follow Men

In the country, a unique characteristic of the mobilization, is the relatively large amount of time these Dutchmen in uniform are in a position to spend with their women folk. The Netherlands is a small country. In some cases wives have moved temporarily to points near which their husbands are stationed. In many other cases wives or sweethearts make their appearance for Sundays.

A common sight was a soldier and his wife or sweetheart riding their bicycles side by side. Nearly all Dutchmen own bicycles, and evidence gleaned in the course of the tour would seem to show that, when mobilized, most of them bring their bicycles along.

Here and there along the roads elaborate villas have been taken over to supplement the regular barracks in billeting the troops. Outdoor canteens, resembling cafe terraces, have been rigged up before some of the buildings. Soldiers sit about, sunning themselves and drinking beer.

There were one or more sentinels at almost every crossroads, at every bridgehead and at various points along main highways. Some of these carried rifles with fixed bayonets and wore steel helmets.

Bridges Mined

The great bulk of the bridges which would be of use to an invading enemy are mined. The men on duty at the bridgeheads are charged with lighting the fuses if the signal comes. Some of the highway guards are ready to bar the thoroughfares to enemy tanks and other motorized equipment. The concrete blocks, steel bars and barbed wire to be used for this purpose may be seen along the road side.

The dikes and other features of the intricate water system of the territory are visible and here and there small areas have been flooded already. More conspicuous than these features of the defense arrangements are the many concrete pill boxes and earthworks provided to handle an enemy seeking to traverse the water obstacles.

Hero of 3 Wars Leads British On Norse Front

Division Commander Fled Poland Just Ahead of Invaders

Copyright by New York Tribune, Inc.

London, April 23.—Maj. Gen. Carton de Wiart, reported to be commanding one of the British divisions in Norway, is a 60-year-old veteran of three wars, who has been wounded 11 times.

His friends call him "Nelson," for like Britain's sea hero, he has lost an arm and an eye. De Wiart also has lost a foot.

Born in Burssels in 1880 of a Belgian father and an English mother, at 20 he fought with the Middlesex Yeomanry in the Boer War, then served in Somaliland with the British camel corps. In the World War he fought at Ypers and was awarded the coveted Victoria Cross for bravery.

He passed several years with the British mission in Poland after the World War, and helped defend Warsaw against the Bolsheviks. Afterward he decided to make his home in Poland and bought an estate in lonely marshlands 8 miles from the Russian frontier.

When the Nazis invaded Poland in September, he became head of the British military mission with the Polish army.

Arctic People Awed by Unfamiliar Germans

By Harold Callender
Copyright by New York Times

Stockholm, April 23.—In a journey of a thousand miles from the Swedish-Norwegian frontier in Lapland to Stockholm, this correspondent heard the work "Tysk"—the Swedish name for German—at least a thousand times. It was on almost every lip at every station in this white expanse of highland, where the sun on the snow dazzled the eyes and the near presence of German troops staggered the imagination.

Lapland could not get used to the idea that the struggle for control of the North Sea and of Europe could extend into these icy mountains, where a name on the map which might be taken for a town represents in some cases only a comfortable, electrically-lighted railway station, a tourist hotel frequented by skiers, and a couple of trains a day as a link with the world.

Lapps Awed by Germans

The Lapps, in bright blue and red striped costumes and reindeer-skin moccasins, who gathered at the stations to watch the trains pass hardly knew who the Germans were, but imagined them to be formidable and daring people.

The railway workers who had carried iron ore down from Kiruna to Narvik knew that this ore had gone overseas and had become one of the stakes of war. Anyhow, Narvik, which had become a center of conflict, lay on the edge of Lapland.

At the frontier station of Riksgrense, half buried in snow, were only soldiers in sheepskin coats, and the tall, wooden caps the Swedes wear in winter, besides a few refugees from Norway.

Soldiers Fill Hotels

Civilians were asked to show passports and were hurried away to the north or south, none being permitted to stay near the frontier.

Along the single-track electric railway which normally carries chiefly iron ore and skiers, stood pleasant hotels filled with soldiers. Hundreds of skis were stuck in the snow. The few inhabitants remaining were railway men and police, and keepers of well stocked general stores, who gathered to watch the train pass and to get what news they could from travelers from Norway or from southern Sweden.

Through the White Mountains passed the train, as comfortably heated as ever. In the evening came a dining car with first-class food. The sleeping cars, the best in Europe, were as spotless as ever. The little wooden hotels in small places like Abisko, Kiruna and Gallivare, contained a successful imitation of first class city hotels. The affluence and organization of Sweden seemed in odd contrast to the chaos and fighting just beyond the border.

At Kiruna, the chief mining town of Lapland, the mines had sounded like a battleground as they went on blasting iron ore, but the trucks, normally rolling down the mountains to Narvik, stood motionless on the tracks. It may be a long time before Kiruna's iron pours down to Narvik again.

At Gallivare the mines and the traffic seemed normal, for from here the ore moves the other way toward the Swedish port of Lulea—now the only iron port in the north which can be used.

Everywhere people eagerly scanned newspapers and listened to the radio, which gave only a scattering of details of events in Norway and on the seas beyond.

Waiting for the train at Gallivare, a German traveler started a portable American radio and everybody gathered around to listen silently to the Swedish broadcast.

In the dining car the German and his Swedish wife sat with this correspondent, and as the three conversed in German heads were turned curiously.

Swedish soldiers, Red Cross men and others pored over maps and debated whether the war would spread to Sweden. "If it does," we shall fight as hard as the Finns," said one. "We shall not sell out as the Danes did," said another. "The great powers seek a battleground outside their own countries," said a third, bitterly.

Everywhere the American traveler was asked what the United States would do. Some thought she would be in the war by summer.

Turkey's Gold Reserves Jump Since War's Start

Geneva, April 23 (AP).—Nonbelligerent Turkey appears to be the chief European winner in the war so far—in gold reserves, at least—judging from the League of Nation's monthly statistical bulletin issued tonight.

Turkish gold reserves, which had hung around 17,000,000 gold dollars since 1936, suddenly leaped to $54,000,000 during February and rose $2,000,000 more during March.

Labor Board Gets Back Part Of House Cut

Senate Committee Slashes $25,000,000 From CCC Estimate

By John B. Oakes
Post Staff Writer

A friendly gesture to the hard-pressed National Labor Relations Board was made by the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday in voting to restore the major part of a House slash in the board's funds for 1941.

In passing upon the billion-dollar Labor-Federal security appropriation bill, the Senate committee added $228,000 for the Labor Board, thus making up two-thirds of the $337,000 cut agreed on in the House.

At the same time, the Senate group added $1,045,000 to funds for the wage and hour division of the Department of Labor, restoring all but $35,000 of a reduction the House made in the budget estimates for this agency, which also has been under fire of anti-New Dealers.

CCC Cut $25,000,000

But the Senate committee cut $25,000,000 from the $50,000,000 added by the House to the Civilian Conservation Corps' 1941 estimate, with the result that the CCC would still get $25,000,000 more than its $230,000,000 budget calls for.

All in all, action of the Senate committee cuts the House bill $23,585,030 net, bringing the total down to $998,054,670. This sum is more than $32,000,000 above the 1941 budget estimates, and nearly $25,000,000 over the appropriation for the current year.

In upping the NLRB grant, the Senate group specifically suggested restoring funds for the Division of Economic Research, whose head, David J. Saposs, has been attacked as a radical by two Congressional committees. Other cuts made by the House in funds for the board's legal and trial examining divisions, as well as for travel and communications, were restored in whole or in part by the Senate committee.

Want Backlog Cleaned Up

The additional $1,000,000 which the Senate committee members added to the House figure for the Wage and Hour Division is "to clean up the backlog of complaints and to get a start on routine periodic inspections," the Senate report stated.

It was suggested that 1,096 inspectors and 203 pay roll examiners could be recruited in the next fiscal year. "Once the initial enforcement work is completed and the backlog cleared up, it is the hope of the committee that substantial reductions can then be made in the inspection force," said the report.

The Senate committee's bill transfers $1,086,000 in the appropriation for the National Youth Administration from the part-time youth work and student work program to salaries and administrative expenses.

A House increase of $30,000 above budget estimates for 10 additional commissioners of conciliation was stricken out by the Senate committee, while $25,510 was added so the Immigraiton and Naturalization Service could retain 10 immigration inspectors for whom the House had supplied no funds.

Rabbi S. H. Metz Warns Freedom Rests of Spirit

The permanent freedom of humanity must be basically spiritual, Rabbi Solomon H. Metz advised yesterday morning at Adas Israel Synagogue, where the second day of the Passover feast was celebrated.

"Political freedom is short-lived," was his contention. "Freedom to be lasting, must be basically rooted in a religious conception of life. Without this spiritual basis, freedom becomes the vassal of tyranny and eventually its victim."

The traditional Seder family ritual, commemorating the Jewish flight from Egypt and liberation from slavery, was repeated last night at sundown. Orthodox congregations will hold Passover rites this morning.

Divorces Actor On Cruelty Charge

Death Grazed Plunge Victim 9 Years Ago

As a 29-year-old Washington woman who fell 70 feet from Calvert Street Bridge Sunday lay near death in Emergency Hospital last night, members of her family revealed her narrow escape from death nine years ago.

The disclosure came after X-ray photographs showed a .22-caliber bullet lodged near the spine of Mrs. Margaret Frere, of 1124 Tenth street northwest, at first added another note of mystery to the case.

In 1931, Mrs. Frere, then living in Huntington, W. Va., accidentally discharged a toy pistol in her home there, the slug pierced her breast, grazed her heart and lodged near her spine.

Mrs. Frere was hospitalized for several days, but doctors declared the bullet harmless and did not attempt to remove it. They feared an operation might injure a spinal nerve.

Tipster Sought

Another new development in the case came last night when it was learned an Eighth Precinct patrolman had seen a woman answering Mrs. Frere's description standing alone at the end of the Calvert street span, apparently awaiting a bus early Sunday, shortly before her plunge at 6:30 a. m.

Exploring possibilities that Mrs. Frere was pushed from the span, police had investigated theories she was not alone at the time. A tipster who telephoned the Eighth Precinct Station, telling of the accident, has been sought.

According to James Frere, husband of the injured woman and a Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. plant supervisor, Mrs. Frere had been under a physician's care because of high blood pressure and nervous disorders.

Saturday night they had attended a card party, he told police, and retired about 1 a. m. About 4:30 a. m., unable to sleep, Mrs. Frere rose and dressed and told her husband that she was going for a ride. She was accustomed to taking a taxicab ride in the early morning hours whenever afflicted by sleeplessness, he said.

As Mrs. Frere kissed her husband good-bye, she promised: "I'll be back shortly."

It was 6:30 a. m., two hours after Mrs. Frere left her home, that police received a call from an unidentified man, and five minutes later police found the woman lying unconscious under the bridge, about 50 feet west of Cathedral avenue.

Postlude

Walter H. Nash directs St. Alban's Choir Tuesday night in a presentation of Mozart's Requiem Mass. Soloists: Charlotte Ridley Watkins, Teresa Shrader, H. Granville Leaf and Thomas N. Leef. Organist: E. William Brackett.

St. Alban's Church was filled last evening with auditors who heard the Requiem Mass which contains the last music that Mozart composed during his mortal illness. The performance of this work by a choir of 50 voices under the direction of Walter H. Nash, with an organ arrangement of the score played by E. William Brackett, was reverent in manner and capable in execution, while its silent reception by the attentive listeners enhanced the impressiveness of the music.

BROWN

Had it not been for the devoted care with which Mozart's pupil and friend, Franz Xavier Suessmayr, followed his master's indications in completing the score, the requiem would be today in the condition it was left by the composer—a number of fragments impossible to perform. The first two numbers and sketches for all but four of the remaining numbers exist in Mozart's handwriting. Suessmayr's part in the work consists of the filling in of the sketches and the composition of the Sanctus, the Benedictus, the Agnus Dei and part of the Lacrimosa. He carried out his task in so admirable a way that there is no need for another hand to attempt a reconstruction of the work.

In the opening Requiem, Mozart adhered to the conventional ecclesiastical style of his period, but even there put in a touch of genius with the soprano solo, "Te decet hymnus, Deus, in Sion," to an old chorale theme. The old forms were imbued with a deep emotion by Mozart's artistic sensitiveness. In the Kyrie, this emotional kindling of fixed rules is even more remarkable, for it is a double fugue worked out in an entirely original manner and the agitated climax is reached in a series of extraordinary chromatic passages.

The Dies Irae departs suddenly and startlingly from the church style and contains some of the few passages in all Mozart's music in which he broke through his self-discipline and expressed his personal feelings. It is well known that, because of the unusual circumstances under which the Requiem Mass was commissioned, Mozart had the superstitious fear that he was composing the music for his own death. This fear speaks unmistakeably in the Dies Irae with an almost unbearable painfulness.

A listener's feeling of grief over Mozart's untimely end reaches poignancy with the Lacrimosa, for it was on this section that the dying man was engaged during his final days. His exhausted brain, which gave rise to the delusion that he had been poisoned by his old rival, Salieri, retained its musical function to the last, and it was with tear-blurred eyes that he saw the manuscript on which he was trying to finish his son of farewell to the world.

Chains Boost Realty Values, Bill Foe Says

Patman Act Opponent Avers Stores Pay Rent To 140,000 Landlords

By the Associated Press

Opposing the Patman bill to tax retail chain stores, Harry J. Gerrity, general counsel of the National Association of Building Owners and Managers, told a House committee yesterday that chains build up the business section of a town.

"Real estate values go up when a chain store is established," he said, "and decrease when a chain store leaves the locality."

Gerrity said a survey showed chains throughout the United States paid approximately $450,000,000 annual rent to 140,000 real estate owners and that approximately 4 cents of every dollar spent in chain stores was paid to landlords.

He read a resolution adopted by his association opposing the Patman proposal because it would bring "economic chaos" and destroy a distribution system which had "immeasurably raised the standard of living and increased the purchasing power of the rank and file in America."

Dr. Claudius T. Murchison, president of the Cotton-Textile Institute, and D. M. McCrary, president of the Acme Hosiery Mills, Inc., Asheboro, N. C., also opposed the legislation.

Murchison said:

"I believe that H. R. 1 (the Patman Bill) if enacted, would have such an adverse effect, and that its enactment would be a clamity of the first magnitude to the cotton farmers of the United States, to the textile industry and to consumers of cotton goods."

McCrary testified that 70 per cent of the output of his mills, employing 1,300 workers, was handled through chain store systems and that from experience in contrasting distribution costs his concern preferred selling to chains.

Samuel Gompers Starts 54th Year In U. S. Service

Samuel Gompers, son of the famous A. F. L. leader, started his fifty-fourth year in Government service yesterday with "the busiest day I've had in years."

He spent his first day setting type by hand in the Government Printing Office. He recalled that he was bewildered at the size of the place, and that he was not allowed to smoke. Yesterday he could take time for a cigarette, but mostly he plunged ahead into a desk piled high with papers, and he signed one after the other while he talked.

Gompers, 71, short and rugged like his famous father, has no wish to retire. He has been given two extensions by President Roosevelt, and now after sitting 22 years in the same old swivel chair as chief clerk, he looks "with dread on not having anything to do."

DEL RIO CHANGES. Enterprising young Herbert Sachs, manager of Del Rio, is chockfull of plans for summer changes at Del Rio. The grill is to be transformed into a cocktail lounge and that big and popular circular bar will be moved over where the grill soda fountain now stands. The net effect should be a seating capacity increase that'll come in nicely in handling the week-end overflow business.

P. S. This is the last week for "Sunshine Girl" Maxine Patrice and her orchestra. A new band, not yet selected, will be in the Fiesta Room next Sunday. It will probably be a star local unit.

NEWS ABOUT RESULT. With all the Diplomatic Corps making regular trips to the Trans-Lux Theater to see the war pictures, there naturally has been a growing demand for exotic dishes and foreign cordials at Burt's Trans-Lux next door. Owner Burt Lopatin has met the situation by adding a Latin-American chef to his staff and unusual cordials to his beverage list. So now you'll be able to not only ask for but get your arroz con pollo and paella.

WORLD'S FAIR MUSIC. Jimmy Van Heusen, the famous song writer, will visit the Metronome Room on Friday night and will play and sing the new music he's just written for Billy Rose's Aquacade at the World's Fair this summer. This will be the first public performance of the new Aquacade music.

Bend yo' ears! Les Brown and his orchestra will play the newest Van Heusen songs, "Polka Dots and Moonbeams," "Shake Down the Stars" and "Imagination," also his older smash hits, "Heaven Can Wait," "Darn That Dream," "So Help Me" and all the others.

"METRONOME" BOOST. Glen Echo's Paul Kain is given a big and sincere boost in "The Metronome," New York entertainment mag. Among other nice things, the story says Paul has "an ever-pleasing personality, puts up a nice front for all his guests and everybody seems to have a good time."

McLEAN CAUCUS. It looked like a McLean family conference at La Salle Versailles the other eve with Mr. and Mrs. Jock McLean, Mr. and Mrs. Ned McLean and young Evalyn McLean with Johnny Galliher. Most of their conferring seemed to be about what tunes they'd ask their favorite orchestra leader, Burrus Williams, to play for them.

Norris Fears Utility Spies In TVA Jobs

Nebraskan Opposes Bringing Agency Into Civil Service

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

Senate hearings on he Ramspeck bill are expected to end Friday, it was indicted yesterday, after two Senators presented contrasting views on the effect of including the Tennessee Valley Authority in the proposed civil service extension.

Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska., said that through civil service, "spies of the power trusts" could find their way into the TVA. He warned that it would be a "sad, sad mistake" to bring the agency into civil service.

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, a member of the Senate Civil Service Committee, said that TVA building workers who would face loss of their jobs at the end of the building program should be given Civil Service status as a "just reward for meritorious service."

Norris Clarifies Stand

Senator Norris, an author of the act, said he had been concerned from the start over the danger that someone "whose object was to help the enemy" would get into the TVA organization.

"Especially while the construction period is on, we ought never to make it possible for a spy of the power trust through civil service to get into the TVA," he said. "It would be comparatively easy for a bunch of men or women to pass a civil service examination and be appointed to the TVA where they would have access to the confidential files."

The result, said Norris, might be "great injury and sabotage."

Norris praised TVA's own merit system and said "it is the only organization in the country that has the idea of civil service running from top to bottom."

"It has, in my judgment, a better civil service than is provided in our law," he said. Two sections of the act, he explained, require that the President appoint as heads of the agency men who "profess to believe in the wisdom and feasibility of the act," and state that other appointments and promotions shall be made on the basis of merit and efficiency.

Bulow, Mead Cite Election

Chairman Bulow, of the Senate committee, asked what would be the result if the next administration is "adverse" to the TVA, while Senator Mead suggested to Norris:

"Go over in your mind some of the Presidential candidates and their attitude to the TVA."

Senator Norris said he could not conceive of a President violating the law by trying to appoint some one to head the TVA who did not believe in it, and he added that the Senate would not confirm such an appointment.

Millard W. Rice, legislative representative for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, asked the committee to consider making seniority instead of efficiency the basis for cutting down personnel in the Government agencies.

Willis A. Bohall, president of the National association of Postoffice and Railway Mail Laborers, indorsed the seniority principle and suggested a $1,500 minimum starting wage for Government employes.

Roy F. Hendrickson, personnel director for the Department of Agriculture, and C. B. Baldwin, administrative assistant in the Farm Security Administration, said that civil service would add to the "efficiency and morale" of the Farm Security staff. Baldwin told the committee their present lack of security brought a heavy turnover in the staff.

Boat on Which Man Was Found Brutally Beaten

Three Suspects Held in Attack On Boatman

Skipper, Found With Skull Crushed, Gasps Accusation

Three men were in jail last night after discovery of a brutal hammer-attack on a hermit houseboat captain.

Robert Lee St. John, 45, who lived a lonely life aboard his 48-foot power vessel Tillicum, was found leaning unconscious at noon yesterday against its companionway, half-naked and with his head bashed in by a machinists' hammer.

The weather-worn boat was anchored in the muddy waters of Kingman's Lake, an eastern branch of the Anacostia River, just below Benning bridge.

At Casualty Hospital St. John managed to gasp to police that a white man whom police were holding along with two colored men had been his assailant.

The victim lay near death at the hospital, a large piece of his skull knocked out, exposing the brain.

Neighbors living aboard houseboats and on the muddy flats nearby were unable to ascribe any motive for the brutal attack which spattered the Tillicum's cabin with blood.

Inside the small cabin, filled with old clothes, rags, tools and dirty papers, police said they found several bloody hammers and unmistakable signs of recent drinking.

Police are investigating the theory that St. John and a white man living along the riverbank were enemies and used to quarrel.

Robbery apparently was not the motive, police said.

Bethlehem to Build Three 490-Foot Ships

Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Sparrows Point, Md., plant yesterday was awarded a contract by the Maritime Commission to build three vessels at $3,075,000 each for the Gulf to East Coast of South America trade by the Mississippi Shipping Co., of New Orleans, La.

The 490-foot vessels are identical with three already under construction.

Katz Asks Elimination Of Poll Tax Payment

Sidney R. Katz, secretary-treasurer of the District and Maryland Industrial Union Council, yesterday recommended that the Capper primary bill be amended to eliminate the poll tax and to reduce the residence requirement from five years to one.

The bill proposes to set up machinery for the election of delegates to the national political conventions.

Farmers Need New Markets, Hearing Told

By Hedley Donovan.
Post Staff Writer

Agriculture Department experts yesterday told the Monopoly Committee that 1,500,000 "unemployed farmers" cannot find work until "entirely new channels of consumption are opened."

In the last three decades, the committee was informed, the number of persons employed in agriculture has dropped from 12,209,000 to 10,629,000. Total farm population, however, is approximately 32,000,000 today—the same as in 1910, witnesses said.

"In other words," said Louis H. Bean, of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, "we have 32,000,000 people on the land today feeding themselves and 99,000,000 more. In 1910, the same number was feeding themselves and 58,000,000 others."

Laid to Technological Gains

Bean stated that the increase in productivity per farmer could be put at a minimum of 50 per cent.

Approximately half this increase can be attributed to such technological developments as the tractor, he said, while the remainder probably resulted from improvements in fertilizer and seed, greater selectivity in land use and superior skill in farm management.

The Government economists placed in the record of the technology hearings a mass of statistics showing the impact of the machine age on American agriculture.

Sherman E. Johnson, head of the division of farm management and costs in the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, stated that the number of tractors in use on the country's farms rose from about 30,000 in 1915 to more than 1,600,000 in 1939.

Machines Replace Men

The spread of the combined harvester-thresher through the wheat belt has wiped out the jobs of 100,000 to 200,000 migrant workers who found seasonal employment in the Middle and Far West in the 1920's, he estimated.

Use of the mechanical corn picker is rapidly eliminating the necessity for seasonal hiring in the corn belt, Johnson said. A two-row corn picker increases the output of the individual farm laborer by more than 500 per cent, he reported.

Perfection of a mechanical cotton picker would bring as far-reaching a revolution to the South as development of the combine brought to the wheat belt, Johnson said, but he described the cotton picker as "still on the horizon."

Other figures marshaled by the agricultural economists showed an annual excess of 400,000 births over deaths in the farm areas, while migration from the farm to urban areas now averages only about 320,000 a year.

The prospects of problems raised by a growing farm population, rising productivity of the individual farmer, and lack of employment opportunities in the city call for "some tall thinking," Bean said.

New uses for agricultural products "don't seem to be developing fast enough to help within the next three or four years," he added.

"Unless entirely new channels of consumption are opened," he said, "there appears to be little prospect of putting the surplus labor force to work on the land."

Other witnesses yesterday were Carl C. Taylor, head of the division of farm population and rural welfare; Norman J. Hall, head of the division of agricultural finance, and Ernest Holcombe, assistant agricultural economist.

Takoma Contractor Bids Low on School

Harry L. King, of Takoma Park, Md., has submitted a low bid of $17,469 for the vocational school at the Industrial Home School at Blue Plains, it was announced yesterday by Guy Pearson, chief clerk of the engineer department. The total available is $20,000, less about $1,000 used for plans and specifications.

CHEVROLET'S Exclusive VACUUM-POWER SHIFT

80% Automatic···Only 20% Driver Effort!

ITS ACTION IS EASIEST!

When you shift in a Chevrolet, a vacuum booster (attached to the transmission housing) lends you a hand. You move the lever—and vacuum moves the gears. Tests prove Chevrolet's to be the easiest steering column gearshift to operate. Compared with the two cars next in sales; Chevrolet—the leader—requires only 2.8 foot-pounds of effort for a complete cycle of forward shifts, against 8.5 foot-pounds for Car B and 14.8 foot-pounds for Car C.

ITS LEVER AND ITS "THROW" ARE SHORTER

Because Chevrolet's gearshift is not operated solely by main strength, but by vacuum power, it requires less leverage to enable the driver to operate it. Hence, the lever itself is the shortest of all, and its travel or "throw" is the least of all . . . and the shortest "throw" means the quickest shift. Lever Lengths: Chevrolet, 9½″; Car B, 11″; Car C, 11¼″. Length of Throw: Chevrolet, 4¼″; Car B, 7½″; Car C, 10¾″.

IT'S EFFORTLESS IN TRAFFIC

Stop and Go—Red and Green—Halt! Start! That's traffic. And that's where Chevrolet's easy action is most appreciated. The larger Tiptoe-Matic Clutch makes footwork easier, and Vacuum-Power Shift takes most of the effort out of shifting. Remember, vacuum power does 80% of the work, leaving only 20% of the shifting effort to be supplied by the driver. No tugging and shoving on a long, unwieldy lever—just a finger-flip—that's all there is to it!

Too Many Indiscretions

Just a month after Secretary Hull found it necessary to administer a public rebuke to our Minister to Canada, a different government department has been forced to disown observations made by another highly-placed officer.

The current instance is that of Rear Admiral J. K. Taussig, commandant of the naval base at Norfolk, who this week was quoted as telling the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs that "I cannot see how we can escape being forced into eventual war by the present trend of events" in the Far East.

For this, and other observations in Admiral Taussig's testimony, the Navy Department has promptly disclaimed responsibility. The admiral's statement, it is said, "does not reflect the opinion or the policy of the Navy Department."

As in the case of Minister Cromwell, the issue is not whether the remarks of Admiral Taussig are justified. It is a question of the desirability of having subordinate officers broadcast their personal views without regard to the policy of the Government they serve. It is, in short, a question of discipline.

Tactlessness in this respect is the more surprising on the part of Admiral Taussig, a professional sailor, than in the case of Mr. Cromwell, an amateur diplomat. It is the more surprising because of the vital importance of the tradition of discipline to the Navy, and the obvious desirability of scrupulous respect for constituted authority. That should be clear to every naval officer from the youngest midshipman to the most senior admiral.

Criticism of Admiral Taussig in this connection does not mean that his opinion on the subject under consideration is subject to any discount. If it were, the issue could be ignored. But the more authoritative the viewpoint, the more vital the need for circumspection in its expression.

It is the duty of Congressional committees to obtain the advice and counsel of service officers. It is the duty of the latter to speak frankly, under such circumstances, when asked to do so. But it is the higher duty of both committee and witness to insure that remarks of an obviously undiplomatic nature should be made in executive session, and off the record.

Otherwise the inevitable result is official repudiation, carrying discredit to service standards and creating the impression that there is neither discipline nor unified policy in our governmental services.

Talking Conservation

In announcing "conservation" as the theme of the talks he plans to make on his prospective vacation trip to the Pacific Coast, President Roosevelt has done nothing to destroy his self-assumed franchise as the Great American Sphinx of 1940.

Conservation is a blessed word, like Mesopotamia, and a lot less political. Everybody is for it when used in connection with forests and wild life and natural resources. Should the President limit himself in the June speeches to glorifying the beauties of nature it would be almost certain proof, if anything about Mr. Roosevelt's actions can be certain, that he has definitely shaken the dust of politics off his feet and donned the flowing mantle of elder statesman. Otherwise he will not then be confining himself to nonpolitical speeches at a time when the political whirligig will be moving full speed—at Philadelphia.

But there is conservation and conservation. Mr. Roosevelt has long been a conservationist in more than one sense. For some time, while Democratic politicians have stood around in anxious impatience, he has conserved his council as to the course he plans to pursue during the months ahead.

There is even a suspicion that his principal desire, at the moment, is to practice conservation by making it unnecessary to have any change of occupants in the White House. And, in view of recurrent revolts manifested in the House and Senate, it is not unlikely that Mr. Roosevelt believes that what the country most needs is conservation of the New Deal. He would, perhaps, make it into a national park, to be forever safe from the ravages of political ax-men—of the Republican or old-fashioned Democratic variety.

So it is quite in order to take Mr. Roosevelt's announcement at its face value. Without question he will talk "conservation" on his trip. But will the term's definition be that found in the Gospel according to Mark: "My name is legion, for we are many"?

Our Overworked Council

The performance of the House on Monday, when it rejected all tax legislation offered by the District Committee, would probably seem incredible to any one unfamiliar with its customary methods of handling local bills. Clearly the House abdicated its responsibility as a city council for Washington. It could scarcely have demonstrated more emphatically its incapacity for this local role which it still insists on playing.

Yet this appearance of irresponsibility is only part of the story. It is obvious to any one who listened to the debate or read Monday's Congressional Record that the House's action was a result of bewilderment rather than any premeditated desire to hamstring the National Capital.

For several hours the District's predicament was under debate. Representatives Nichols, Dirksen and Bates gave the House a clear understanding of why new tax legislation is essential. A recent decision by the Court of Appeals has left the present income tax in a state of profound confusion. Presumably it cannot be enforced against residents of Washington who claim to be legally domiciled in any State. That presumption raised by the Court of Appeals will give rise to a tremendous volume of litigation. It tends to make the law grossly discriminatory, and may deprive the District of urgently needed revenue.

After this situation had been explained to the House, it was confronted by the question of accepting the Nichols sales-tax bill or amendment of the present income-tax law to make it workable. The House showed a marked preference for the simple amendments to the present law. That was an entirely reasonable decision, for it avoided imposition of an inequitable sales tax upon the local community and opened the way to clarification of the present dilemma.

But, having made this sensible choice, the House freakishly turned around and tossed the preferred bill into the waste-basket. Was it merely playing cat and mouse with the District? A glance at the record shows clearly what happened. When the debate was over, Representative Bates' amendment to strike out the sales tax carried by a vote of 49 to 36. That means about one-fifth of the members were present.

Then the roll was called on final approval of the Dirksen income-tax amendments and passage of the bill. Congressmen rushed to the floor from their offices and, in their ignorance of what had taken place in their absence, voted down the bill 140 to 113.

On its face, of course, this is an inexcusable fiasco on the part of the House. But the more significant fact is that an overwhelming majority of Congressmen have little interest in and no time to devote to the District of Columbia. For that they can scarcely be censured. They were not sent here to sit as councilmen for Washington.

The inexplicable question is: Why, in the face of this situation, does Congress fail to give Washington a government that can act for itself?

Joining The Dance

This year, as never before, the world has witnessed how easily an efficiently operated machine can take over an entire nation and enslave its people almost overnight. Whether or not the national culture of these invaded countries will be lost is doubtful. Every time another country disappears from the map of the world, however, the value of the remaining national cultures increases.

In the United States, of course, we have fewer traditions common to the people as a whole than most nations. The culture of the country is the richer for this lack of a unified heritage. But the need to take stock of our cultural wealth and if possible to increase its measure is more than ever evident. With this in mind, the National Folk Festival, which opens Thursday in Constitution Hall, assumes a greater significance than usual.

By bringing together from all over the country groups exhibiting the characteristic folk expressions of various sections, the folk festival serves as a national incentive to encourage regional and community festivals. That this has been in some degree successful is apparent by the presence on this year's program of representatives from Fairfax County, Va., and Prince Georges County, Md., both of which have held local festivals for the first time and hope to make them annual events.

From cities and villages, farms and Indian reservations and from 25 States several hundred dancers have come to Washington to join in celebration of the event. Their informal presentation will help to keep the past alive, to provide novel entertainment for the present and to project America's rich fund of folk-lore into the future.

The Right To Picket

Two rather sweeping opinions, sustaining the right of free discussion in labor disputes, were handed down by the Supreme Court on Monday. The court has stated in unmistakable language its determination to uphold "free and fearless reasoning and communication of ideas to discover and spread political and economic truth."

The immediate effect of these opinions is to strike down two State laws restricting the right of peaceful picketing. Alabama has been trying to enforce a law that drastically restrains picketing regardless of whether there is any resort to violence. The picket freed by action of the Supreme Court had merely asked a nonunion man not to return to work during a strike. California had convicted a picket for peacefully carrying a banner.

Such unwarranted interference with civil rights cannot be tolerated within the American system. The States have a duty to preserve order and protect property rights. But it does not follow, as Justice Murphy pointed out, that they "may impair the effective exercise of the right to discuss freely industrial relations which are matters of public concern." The right to freedom of speech is basic to democracy and it must not be set aside to suit the convenience of either employers, employes or governments themselves.

Justice Murphy's opinions thus appear to be broader than the cases with which they deal. In setting aside the California statute, for example, he said: "... publicizing the facts of a labor dispute in a peaceful way through appropriate means, whether by pamphlet, by word of mouth or by banner, must now be regarded as within that liberty of communication which is secured to every person by the Fourteenth Amendment against abridgement by the State."

This language seems to contain a warning for the National Labor Relations Board as well as for reactionary legislatures which attempt to undermine the right of peaceful picketing. The NLRB has not always recognized the right of free speech for employers. Of course, the court makes no distinction between employes and employers. It simply commands respect for the constitutional rights of all citizens. Its emphasis upon the basic right of free discussion should be sufficient to bring all public policy into line with this principle.

Wise Warning

Since the European war began, the Department of State has repeatedly urged Americans to leave the danger zones and come home. The latest of these warnings is addressed to citizens of the United States living in southeastern Europe. They are strongly advised to get out of that area while "means of egress" are still available.

The advice is eminently sound and well-timed. The war may not spread to the Balkan states for some time, if ever. But, in view of what has happened in Scandinavia during the past fortnight, it would be foolhardy to gamble on so optimistic a calculation. And circumstances must now be visualized under which Americans living in Balkan countries would be wholly cut off from all feasible ways of getting out.

One such possibility would obviously be the entry of Italy into the war. In view of the recent tone of the Fascist press, and the speeches of Italian leaders, this possibility can no longer be discounted. Should it happen, travel in the Mediterranean would become extremely hazardous and that sea might even be closed to all American shipping under the neutrality laws.

Taking all considerations into account, therefore, Americans in the Balkan peninsula and neighboring regions would be well advised to delay no longer than is absolutely necessary in taking passage for the United States.

A World Too Lean

From the Hartford Daily Courant

Where, oh, where is the fat man? George Rector, a king in the realm of food preparation, asks that question. Lately, he has been making a tour of the United States, and at each stop en route, he finds the same discouraging situation: People no longer eat; they pick. There was a time, says Rector, when a man was not a man unless he could eat gobs and drink gobs and gobs. But today the sentimental male has allowed his palate to be dulled by the preoccupation of fickle femininity with straight line and lean silhouette.

And what happiness has a world moving too fast to eat brought to its inhabitants? Hungry men who are not encouraged to use their knives on nourishing victuals more often than not roam afield and use them for less worthy purposes. Mr. Hitler sets great store by the herb and the bean, and the peace of nations has suffered from his abstinence. But could his cantankerous mood prevail if three times a day he was persuaded to spend his energy on gorgeous meats, thick gravies, hot biscuits with melted butter and oodles of strawberries with caboodles of cream? Mr. Rector and many others are willing to wager that Herr Hitler's nature would expand with his girth.

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents brevity is requested. Letters are subject to condensation.

Third Term

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Obviously—quite so, Mr. Roosevelt is presently about as potent to prevent or eliminate an epidemic of "the flu" by executive order or a message to Congress as he could be at keeping the United States out of this second, and perhaps last, World War—should he be elected to serve a third succeeding term as President.

Of course, many "third-term" advocates frankly regard our not very distant inclusion in the world approach to chaos, led by Herr Hitler, inevitable, and upon this conclusion they ground their demands for continuing Mr. Roosevelt in the Presidency "owing to his eight years' experience." That, however, is certainly not at all complimentary to even the great President Franklin Roosevelt. It is an admission an American hates to make—even by implication, which is, that our fiber has so deteriorated until of all other persons of the Nation entirely competent to serve as its Chief Executive heretofore but one now remains, the President. How we have slipped backwards!

But reasons advanced on behalf of a Presidential third-term afford, on the contrary, the principal reason against it: what eight years of wear and tear do to the man encumbered of the office of President of the United States is so palpable as to require no recapitulation here. Amply sufficient is to say, war or no war, this country shall require another President to succeed Mr. Roosevelt next January owing to lack of intensive strains upon body and nerves, of the successor.

The President, but recently returned from a recreating week-end at his New York estate, presently seeks recreation at Warm Springs, Ga., subject to expected interruption by more war developments in Europe, maybe in China; which makes one ponder what god Attorney General Jackson was thanking for the Young Democrats' indorsement of a Roosevelt third term. Page Mr. Wentworth

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I quote from the pages of the last New Yorker magazine.

"The Washington drivers are efficient, too, as well as reasonable in their financial demands. They get you places in no time at all . . . There is no such thing as a bottleneck.

"It could not have taken three minutes for the taxi to cover the mile and a half (30 New York blocks) from the Union Station to my hotel the afternoon I arrived in Washington . . . but that morning it had taken me nearly a half-hour to get from Gramercy Park to Pennsylvania Station . . ."

Page Mr. Wentworth and have him advise all those other people who have driven in every city in the United States and find Washington traffic the worst and the worst handled, and who are so sure that our conditions would not be tolerated in New York.

Thinks Standards Have Changed

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: O. J. W. blandly blames Britain for having started the war, backing his premise up with such statements as "the British have violated every neutral act," they have "developed a sea law where anything Britain wants is sea law," and capping these observations with the following:

Britain tries to destroy a whole nation of people through starvation, the most inhuman and barbarous tactics of war, when directed at women and children."

This epic of illogic, in the light of evidence concerning Germany's every-day procedure and policy is so absurd as almost to need no refutation. One need not only to have been abysmally ignorant to make such a statement, but also to have been deaf and blind.

It does not seem enough, however, to mark such a statement up to ignorance and let it go at that. Such a course is too easy and is fraught with not a little danger. Statements like those from O. J. W. should be examined more closely, it seems to me, in an effort to trace the pattern of the shadows that may lie underneath the surface.

There have been statements coming from certain men in our Congress and in our public life, as well as from the ordinary variety of individual, that seem to bear the same burden of refrain. Organizations for peace have been formed, and pacifist organizations, and other ostensible keep-us-out groups.

This country is being subjected to a bombardment of ideas and incantations from such groups that are as poisonous to its welfare as a dose of strychnine. The tough moral fibers of strength that have made this country what it is are in danger of being sapped away by these virulent injections. The sympathizers with; the dupes, innocent or otherwise, of; and the out-and-out agents for Hitler and Stalin that are infesting this country are the carriers of the plague that threatens it.

To those who do not willfully shut their eyes there are evidences of the effects of such forces at work here. The whole concept of values and ideals has undergone a complete change.

Courage, self-respect, integrity, have somehow suddenly ceased to have any meaning. By the same process the word coward has lost its connotation of disgrace and humiliation.

Men intrusted with the laws and policies of the country concern themselves with sectionalism, with party politics, with the furtherance of their own personal prejudices or aggrandizement, instead of with the welfare of the Nation as a whole and its integrity as a unit among other nations. Statesmen are sadly lacking. When the few remaining ones are gone there are no potential statesmen on the current horizon to take their places; there are only politicians.

Youth today organizes political channels of expediency for the solution of its problems instead of seeking to solve them for themselves, with courage and honesty. It is smart now to say "Who cares?" Our neighbor's house is burning? Well, let it burn. We will turn our heads so we don't see.

I wonder how far along civilization's way we would have come if all nations and peoples who have preceded us had done the same.

England and France are fighting for their very lives against an enemy that is as ruthless and unscrupulous as a serpent and twice as treacherous. The blood of their youth is ready to jet forth every minute that the clock ticks off during the day and during the night. If we can't help them then let us, please, for God's sake, at least observe the common decencies and keep our mouths shut and not throw verbal and moral obstacles in their way. MARGARET JERVASE.

Walter-Logan Bill

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Had there been any doubt in my mind as to the inequity and injustice of the Walter-Logan bill now before the Congress it would have been dissipated upon reading your article in the Saturday morning issue of The Post, written by O. R. McGuire, in answer to one by Mr. Ernest Lindley several days ago.

The array of organizations in favor of the bill, such as the Manufacturers Association, the American Bar Association, Pure Food Association, National Grange, chambers of commerce, Liberty League (which you failed to mention), Manhattan Club, have all opposed and done all in their power to defeat, by injunction, suits and all other means they could conjure or invent, the constructive and liberal policies of the New Deal.

By court injunctions and lawsuit they have emasculated and rendered powerless many of the laws passed of which they did not approve; so Mr. Lindley was correct when he stated the Walter-Logan bill, if enacted, would tend to "make hash out of the machinery of government." It would paralyze the efficiency of every agency of the Government who have been given the power to operate in the various fields of administration by the very Congressmen who are now, for some inexplicable reason, willing to repudiate their own actions or are too dumb to know the implications of the present bill.

It is to be hoped the Senate will have the courage to defeat the bill when it comes to them for action. Or, failing, that the President will veto the bill if passed.

The experience of the past seven years should be enough to warn the people that every decision made by any agency whose decisions did not meet with the approval of any man or corporation adversely affected would be subject to injunction proceedings and taken before some friendly judge, and possibly carried to the Supreme Court before a final decision could be obtained; thus taking a year and probably more before any action could be taken.

In other words, if you are going to have the courts and the lawyers decide all questions of procedure in governmental affairs, why not abolish all agencies entirely, so far as judicial and administrative matters are concerned, and turn the administration over to the courts, and thereby save the expenses of the agencies. This might violate the Constitution, but doubtless please the majority who seem to be willing to curb the powers of the administrative branch in favor of the judiciary. WELLINGTON SMITH.

The Post Impressionist

Backfire

Prof. Emmett O'Day, the university's celebrated authority on the short story, shuffled the stack of folded papers and patted them into a neat stack.

"Ladies and gentlemen," he said, looking out over the class, "I have your compositions. There are some very good things here and some that are, well—not so good."

Prof. O'Day put down the papers and stood up.

"I don't know why it is," he began, "I've never known, in fact, but everyone seems to think he has to tell a tragedy to tell a story. Heavens, don't your people ever hear of anything funny happening? Great art, or just plain art, as a matter of fact, doesn't necessarily have to be tragic."

The celebrated authority on the short story put his hands into his pants pockets and walked up and down the classroom.

"I grant you," he said, "that humor is not easy, but there are many light things with which we could engage our reader."

Prof. O'Day wheeled on his class. Despite his short story reputation we always suspected he had a little of the ham actor in him.

"You don't have to be gag men," he said, "to be light and entertaining. Pick out something that has amused you, some little incident. Why, I once knew a writer who turned out a very funny and brilliant thing on how to tell a gentleman goldfish from a lady goldfish by looking at its fins."

That shallowest of all laughs—the classroom laugh—filled the room.

Prof. O'Day picked up the compositions.

"In these stories," he said, "you have done some real suffering. Great Heavens, you've outdone the Russians. Why must we always not only be tragic, but actually have to wallow on tragedy? Is this the way all of young America is thinking? My, to look at you you don't seem to be a tragic lot. You look very pleasant and happy this morning. Is it by evening that these spells of tragedy move upon you?"

The celebrated authority on the short story finally concluded, handed out the corrected compositions and dipped into his desk as the class ended. He busied himself with some work until it was time for lunch and then went and had it with his friend, Prof. Glithaus. He put his problem up to Glithaus and Glithaus said he guessed Dreiser and Sherwood Anderson had had a lot to do with it.

Prof. O'Day had another class in the afternoon and he repeated his lecture of the morning. After all, he said, why shouldn't he? The same thing had happened. He had some very good things and some that were—not so good, but good or bad almost everyone tried for tragedy.

That afternoon on the way home the professor stopped by the drug store on the corner near the campus. He bought a tin of tobacco. To make the purchase he had to interrupt the tobacco salesman in the middle of a story. It was a funny story, too, and as he walked toward his street car, Prof. O'Day contemplated what had just happened.

"I should have let him finish his funny story before buying the tobacco," he said to himself, "there was a man who was entertaining someone. And he wasn't being tragic either."

Before boarding the car he bought a paper and lost himself in the details of the baseball game. Prof. O'Day liked baseball. With the details of the game he forgot his classroom contemplations. He was feeling happy when he got off the car and walked the three blocks to his home.

Mrs. O'Day met him at the front door.

"Well, dear?" she asked.

"Grace," said the professor, "do you remember Prof. Thomas and his wife—the little woman with the limp? Well, Herford was telling me today that he had lost her. They went out West to live, you remember."

"Emmett!" gasped Mrs. O'Day. "Not that pretty little Mrs. Thomas? What happened?"

Prof. O'Day, the university's celebrated authority on the short story hung up his coat and removed his cap.

"What happened, Emmett?" Mrs. O'Day asked again.

"Well, they were living in San Francisco," said her husband, "and one day last week Thomas received a telegram that his father in Los Angeles was dying. He was told he had time to reach him. They packed up and started by car on the long trip. Where is my pipe?" asked Prof. O'Day.

Mrs. O'Day handed it to him and followed him to his chair by the window.

"On the way down," said the professor, "Thomas fell asleep at the wheel."

"Oh, Emmett," Mrs. O'Day broke in, "not that?"

"I'm afraid so," said the professor, "the car hit a culvert and poor Mrs. Thomas was killed almost instantly."

"How terribly tragic," said Mrs. O'Day, "and on the way to the funeral, too. Was Prof. Thomas hurt?"

"Only his leg," said her husband.

"How terribly tragic," said Mrs. O'Day.

The full force of what he had done hit Prof. O'Day, the university's celebrated authority on the short story with a philosophical jolt.

Here he was bringing home a tragedy and telling it when all day long he'd been lecturing his pupils against that very thing. It stunned him.

"Grace," he said, as quickly as he could, "I heard a very good thing today. It seems an old Shakespearian actor——"

"I'm sorry, Emmett," said Mrs. O'Day, going quietly upstairs, her handkerchief to her nose. "I'm sorry. Not now, if you please. This tragic thing about Mrs. Thomas." ARTHUR ALLEN.

Fair Enough

Holier Than Thou

IT IS DIFFICULT to understand the contention of those Americans who detest communism, but insist, nevertheless, that the British and French have only themselves to blame for the second World War, and that their defeat would be of no consequence to the United States. The almost sameness of communism and Hitlerism has been demonstrated consistently, and has been acknowledged by both Hitler and Stalin in their military alliance and military co-operation.

That the British and French were the war-makers seems too false on the face of things for serious consideration by anyone who followed events. Hitler had armed Germany to such an extent that he felt that this great advantage over the Allies would intimidate them, and Chamberlain, who is sometimes called a war-monger, was humiliated and his nation was ridiculed the world over because he tried so desperately to appease Hitler and avoid war.

The same people who now accuse Britain of seeking war delighted to taunt the British cowardice in submitting to Hitler. Chamberlain carried an absurd umbrella when he flew to plead for peace, and the German orators and their press made the most of his personal physical frailty and his rather rusty appearance by contrast with the muscularity of their leaders and the familiar sight of steel helmets and weapons in their country. Chamberlain did not go to war for Czecho-Slovakia.

EVEN NOW THE British and French are still far short of the German might in military preparation, and their economy is creakily adjusting itself to the attempt to cope with a state which is controlled by one man and one idea. They were not prepared for war.

It was not the Allies who fell on Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, and, to the confusion of those who doggedly regard Hitlerism as the foe of bolshevism or Jewishness, the fact stands out that the nations which have been attacked were none of them Bolsheviks and were all of them Christians.

Hitler and Stalin collaborated in the extinction of Poland, and the armies of the two dictators met as friends, the Nazis and the Bolsheviks, when the Polish nation had been obliterated. And, again, when Stalin made his move in the Baltic and attacked the Finns the Nazis made no move to rescue Christian, non-Bolshevik peoples from the Communist scourge. On the contrary, Hitler held off those who might have helped them.

In the face of the most obvious truth, many Americans still believe, or pretend to believe, that the German war aim is only to redress the Treaty of Versailles and to live thereafter at peace with their neighbors. The obvious truth is that Hitlerism is Bolshevism, a revolution against capitalism and against possessions and very life of all nations which, like this one, prefer democracy and freedom.

The British and French are fighting for their own lives and freedom, and yet they are reproached for that, as though it were wicked unselfishness to fight such motives, by Americans who, nevertheless, say they would fight for nothing else. The British and French are fighting for the same thing that Americans would fight for, and the plain fact is that the Germans are fighting against everything that Americanism is.

THE DISGUISE was dropped slowly in Germany. Two or three years ago it was the American Communists who most resented mention of the similarity between Naziism and Communism. Now they don't mind so much, and the Germans don't even bother to deny that Naziism is merely Bolshevism in a brown uniform, waging inevitable war on Bolshevism, whether brown or red, against democracy and the right of human beings.

Three years ago in Germany Bolshevism was the ostensible enemy, but last New Year Hitler exhorted his troops to vanquish not Bolshevism or Jewish Bolshevism, but plutocracy or capitalism, which includes the United States. Bolshevism suddenly became non-Jewish and the Jews, who, in all his harangues, had been Bolsheviks of the vilest sort, abruptly became capitalists.

No Screamatorium?

"The Screamatorium, a building in which customers were to be allowed to yell all they wished and where, for a slight extra charge, they could break dishes, has been barred as an exhibit at the New York World's Fair. Its sponsor, a man who claimed that it was based on sound psychological laws and afforded people a splendid chance to relax and ease their emotions, was greatly disappointed."—News item.

Mr. Harvey Gibson,
Head Man, the New York World's Fair.

Dear Harvey: Well, I was pretty disappointed to read the above newspaper item, and I cannot understand it. As the man who has many of the responsibilities of the World's Fair on his shoulders, you are, I should think, the one fellow who would appreciate a place to scream. If you did not approve of it for the general public, why didn't you let it be installed for your private comfort?

I know of nothing proposed for the fair which appeals to me like this Screamatorium thing. You would be surprised what a demand there is today for a place where a man can yell his head off. There never was a time when something of this sort would be a greater relief to everybody. No matter what you charged for admission it would not be too much.

There are so many things to make people want to scream. You could have a whole area for folks who want to scream over taxes, another zone for people who want to yell their heads off over the New Deal, another for people who want to scream over affairs in Europe and another for screamers who are fed up with political speeches, radio quiz programs, the present run of movie plots, the late spring, the NLRB, the C. I. O., the A. F. of L. and the traffic rules.

Won't you please change your mind and build a Screamatorium? We need it. You need it. The ushers, box office crews, guides and performers need it. The exhibitors need it, especially on rainy days and cold nights. And if the labor troubles don't end the whole World's Fair board will need it. Order it up. If you don't I will scream.

Yours truly,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

'Less Than Perfect'

By Ernest K. Lindley

A Reply to Critics

THIS COLUMN'S recent comments on the Walter-Logan bill have been jumped upon by Col. O. R. McGuire, chairman of the special committee on administrative law of the American Bar Association, and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

Let's take first the reply of the colonel, who has made it his job to lobby this bill through Congress. He begins by listing organizations which have approved the bill. They include the National Grange, the A. F. of L., the National Retail Druggists Association, the Master Plumbers Association and the National Electrical Contractors Association. Do the members of these organizations, or their executive bodies, claim to be experts on the machinery of government? In the whole lot of them there are probably not a dozen men, including their general counsels, who have more than the foggiest notion how the Walter-Logan bill would work in practice.

The colonel also lists numerous indorsements from bar associations. Judging from the few samples I have examined, the bar associations haven't a clear idea about the actual effect of the bill. They are really for it "in principle."

Col. McGuire goes on to boast about the backing of the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies, and to do a bit of red-baiting of his own at the expense of the National Lawyers Guild, which has disapproved the bill. He finally gets around to a few experts. But whether they all are for the bill in detail is open to doubt. The colonel himself admits that the bill may not be "perfect."

THE GENERAL is more fervid than the colonel in his red-baiting. He also scorns my remark that "there are problems too intricate readily to be grasped even by newspaper columnists." He assures us that he is fully acquainted with the administrative law, organization and practice. He ought to be. But when I read what he writes about the Walter-Logan bill, I can find no reason for excluding him from commentators who are over their heads. The main difference between us is that I know I am not equipped to write on this subject without consulting experts.

Neither the colonel nor the general is more heartily in favor than I am of the avowed purpose of this bill to protect the citizen from administrative absolutism. In fact, it was what Gen. Johnson put over as NRA administrator which made me really anxious about the dangers of a power-grabbing bureaucracy. The NRA was the nearest thing to a Nazi-Fascist set-up we have had in this country. However, unlike some observers, I never thought that the general, despite his cavalry training, had the inclination or the capacity to develop into "the man on horseback."

It is fair, I think, to regard the impressive backing for the Walter-Logan bill cited by Col. McGuire as backing for the principle or purpose of the bill. The vote for the bill in the House, and earlier for its companion in the Senate, can only be regarded as a vote for its objectives. The confusion of the members of the House as to its practical effects can be seen readily by anybody who will take the time to read the Congressional Record.

THE WALTER-LOGAN bill is condemned not only by experts throughout the Federal Government, but by distinguished private practitioners who have taken the time to study it. In the January issue of the Louisiana Law Review it was ripped to pieces by Alfred Jaretzki, Jr. Mr. Jaretzki is not a member of the "janissariat," but a member of the highly conservative Wall Street firm of Sullivan & Cromwell. After examining the bill, Mr. Jaretzki expresses the opinion that it cannot have been carefully studied by the American Bar Association committee on administrative law, headed by Col. McGuire, or by numerous other distinguished lawyers who have lent their support.

There isn't room here even to detail Mr. Jaretzki's criticisms of the bill. But he concludes that the bill is "vitally defective" and that a thorough study of the operations of many Federal administrative agencies is needed before a suitable bill can be drawn.

The bill has been condemned by highly conservative leaders of the New York City bar, headed by John Foster Dulles, one of Thomas E. Dewey's official advisers. The basic flaws found by Mr. Dulles and his colleagues have not been effectively answered in any columns, committee reports, or speeches I have seen.

On April 18 Representative Walter, co-author of the bill, cited Louis Caldwell, formerly general counsel for the Radio Commission, now a private practitioner in Chicago and Washington, as one of the distinguished gentlemen who contributed to the drafting of the original bill. This is on page 7165. On page 7225 of the same day's record begins a long memorandum by Mr. Caldwell tearing the bill into ribbons.

ONE OF THE MAIN faults in the bill is that it tries to force a single formula on almost all the administrative agencies of the Government. The unanimous verdict of the experts is that there must be variations according to the type of power exercised by the agency.

There has been plenty of half-baked legislation in Congress during the last several years. A decent administrative agency, with a little help from the courts, often can make sense out of an ambiguous or half-baked law. But this bill deals with the machinery of administration itself. It is a case where good intentions will have a ruinous effect unless they are implemented by intelligence and detailed expert knowledge.

Will Italy Get Into The War?

Some Economic Factors Involved In The Answer

By Dorothy Thompson.

Bucharest.

THE TONE of the Italian press in the last month, which was vociferous and vigorous in defense of Germany, together with the most recent expression by Mussolini, have given rise to all sorts of speculation about what Italy may or may not do in the near future for Germany. One encounters these rumors and speculations all over the Balkans. They are offset by the opinion of all the more or less efficient observers with whom one can talk in Italy, who agree that Italy is incapable of engaging in a major war at this time.

Although she has 1,000,000 men under arms, she has inadequate reserves of arms and material with which to make war. She has limited supplies of cotton. She claims almost all essential metals. She does have wheat reserves. The highest estimate I have heard is that she has wheat for a year, but this is considered excessive by most observers.

Italy's coal problem is serious. She would need in war time some 12,000,000 to 14,000,000 tons a year, and 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 tons to keep things going at capacity in peace. Normally she gets most of this coal from Germany and Poland and about one-fourth of it from England. The German and Polish coal comes like the British by water, which is cheap transportation. However, the British blockade against German exports has held up this water transportation. Furthermore, the British have been making difficulties for Italy about English coal.

Italy is already heavily in debt to Great Britain for coal, having no foreign exchange with which to pay for it; and Great Britain, which, of course, is anxious to sell her coal, wants to be paid either in money or in armament, for the manufacture of which she is willing to deliver raw materials to Italian factories. But German pressure is brought to bear on Italy to prevent this and Great Britain has no mind to get cabbages and ladies' gloves.

THE GERMANS have promised Italy 1,000,000 tons a month by rail, and dispatches emanating from Berlin promised 65 trainloads a day on the three main lines directly from Germany and on the four other lines coming from Switzerland and Yugoslavia. Neutral observers here are unanimous in predicting that although this is theoretically possible, it is not practically so for any length of time. They wonder what the empty cars will take back and recall that last winter the German railroad system was unable to transport coal adequately even throughout Germany.

The Italians admit this and indeed complain that the British blockade is hampering Italy in getting the materials necessary to speed up her armament. The British deny that they are preventing Italy from getting a normal amount of metal and other material but they try to keep the amount from increasing on the grounds that they fear part of it will be diverted to Germany.

Italian ships are held up at Gibraltar; a trip between Mediterranean ports normally taking three days will often take 10 days under present circumstances. This means in effect a reduction in Italian tonnage.

There is much talk in Italy about establishing an autarchial economy and much is made of the fact that coal deposits have been discovered in Sardinia and Istria, but it would take a very long time for Italy to supply even half her requirements from domestic sources.

Copper has been found in Calabria, and, of course, there is copper in Albania but Germany is also drawing on the latter deposit.

The truth is that it will be extremely difficult for Italy to fight a war with any ally other than one which has command of the seas, for nearly everything she needs in the way of basic resources must come from overseas.

ITALY'S financial situation is adverse. The budget deficit is not officially known but it is reported anywhere from 180 billion to 250 billion lira, which is tremendously high for a country as poor as Italy. At the end of 1938 the circulation of banknotes was 19 billion lira and in 1939 it rose to between 24 and 25 billion and business men were seriously concerned about it. At the end of March it was reduced to 22.5 billion.

The cost of living has gone up at least 20 per cent since the war, and attempts to reduce wastage in order to prevent inflation have failed. Totalitarian governments are by no means unsusceptible to labor discontent. Wages have recently been adjusted upward by 16 per cent, but this increase still does not cover the rise in the cost of living. Taxation is stiff. Since 1937 there have been three separate capital levies—one on real estate, one on reserves of capital stock companies and one on the reserves of private firms.

Drawing by Louise Costello for "Rulers of the World" by Maurice Crain. (Thomas Y. Crowell Co.)

MUSSOLINI
"He is in a dangerous position and is playing a very dangerous game"

APART FROM these extraordinary levies, Italy has recently devised a general taxation and instituted a new sales tax, really a turnover tax, whereby every business transaction involving an exchange of money is taxed—even the fee that a man pays to a barber for a shave. This tax has created so much opposition that it has been arranged that businessmen can pay it annually, added to the income tax.

Totalitarian states have methods of financing which are not easily open to democratic states, and it would be foolish to think that the money raising possibilities of Italy have been exhausted, but they certainly are very heavily strained.

Given the strictest neutrality and the maximum of international respect for it, Italian business could look forward with considerable optimism, in the hope that Italy, with its modern plants, could supply not only the world markets with merchandise withheld by the belligerents, but also fill huge orders for the belligerents themselves. Thus the oppressive unfavorable balance of international payments could be revised, exchange would accumulate and financial ravages would be repaired.

But Italy is frankly not neutral, and neither the ally to whom she is at present a sleeping partner nor the Western Powers is willing to allow her any privileges which might eventually work to the benefit of the enemy. Thus, although Italian factories in the north are busy on orders from France, France allows only such limited amounts of raw materials as can quickly be worked up in Italian factories, and the business of turning other people's raw materials into finished goods for immediate delivery is not enormously profitable.

ITALY'S MANPOWER is large. She actually has 2,000,000 more men between the ages of 20 and 25 than France, apart from the empire, and with almost exactly the same population. She claims that she can mobilize 8,000,000 men, but she certainly would not equip them. Even her present army of a million is inadequately equipped. Indeed, that fact about the equipment of the army brought about the drastic changes in the army command which Mussolini instituted last fall. A considerable army is tied up in Albania, and another in Abyssinia, an Achilles' heel of Italy.

So far as foreign policy is concerned, the chief prestige of the regime rests on the fact that Mussolini has made of Italy an empire. But in case of war with the Allies it is obvious that Abyssinia, inclosed and bounded by British and French Somaliland and Egypt, and not completely subdued, would be in danger.

In Rome Mussolini is called pro-German, but Mussolini, like the rest of Italy, is neither pro-German nor pro-Ally. He is pro-Italian, pro-Fascist and pro-Mussolini. He is collaborating with Germany first, I am convinced, because he believed at the outset that the alliance would assure peace. If he continues the collaboration it may be because he is greatly impressed by the Germans' strength and believes that Germany will win the war. Or it may be partly prestige—Mussolini is very sensitive to any charge that he is waiting for the best deal. On the other hand, if he makes his alliance with Germany active he stands the chance of turning Italy into the battleground of the war and paying the highest price that a nation can pay.

The industrial areas of Italy are concentrated in the north around Milan and Turin, near the French frontier, and are more exposed than the industrial areas of any other major power. This is certainly one reason why 99 per cent of the industrialists of Italy are vigorously against Italy going into the war.

ITALY'S nuisance power is great. She has a strong submarine fleet and can certainly make the Allies a great deal of trouble in the Mediterranean. In case the Germans make an offensive her army on the northwest border would at least divert some Allied troops, even if she didn't use it. Her control of the Adriatic interferes with the British blockade and there are grave leakages through the Adriatic to Germany.

Italy also has influence in the Balkans. She is in what amounts to an alliance with Hungary and through Hungary can exert pressure on Rumania, while both can exert pressure on Yugoslavia. So far Italy has collaborated with Germany to help frustrate Allied influence in the Balkans.

ITALY is in a dangerous position and she is playing a dangerous game. A powerful ally on the north can bring pressure upon her from land, while the navies of Britain and France can bring pressure from the sea. Her people, who have made tremendous sacrifices at home and abroad during 16 years of domestic reorganization and foreign conquest, are tired and want peace.

They have rebuilt a large part of Italy; they have taken Abyssinia and Albania and fought fascism's battle in Spain. They would like a rest. That is the universal opinion of every outsider with whom I have talked—and by outsiders I mean foreigners who have been for years in Italy and believe they know something about the country.

Imperiled Sweden

By Barnet Nover

Hitler's Next Move?

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to discount the multiplying signs pointing to a German invasion of Sweden. During the past fortnight Denmark has been overrun by the Nazis and Norway transformed into a battlefield. Sweden alone among Scandinavian kingdoms has managed to remain at peace. But it begins to look as if her sands, too, are running out.

There are sound economic reasons why Germany should continue to respect Swedish neutrality. Sweden is the great German supply source for high grade ore without which her indispensable munitions and machine tool industries would be forced to work at a greatly reduced pace. Cut off from the Allies as a result of the struggle in Norway, Sweden now belongs almost wholly within the economic orbit of the Third Reich. Brought into the war as a result of a German invasion, the disorganization of Sweden's economic life that would inevitably follow, particularly if she chose to resist, would certainly outlast the victory that Germany might achieve.

But Hitler is no longer basing his war strategy on economic considerations. He is now moved by purely military considerations. Which means that he must win soon if he is to win at all. And if he is to win soon it must be by virtue of the application of overwhelming force regardless of the cost of lives, and the depletion of irreplaceable reserves.

For the time being Hitler appears to have come a cropper in Norway. There is no mistaking the extent of Germany's loss of sea power. The fact that the Allies have managed with impunity to land a sizable force on the Norwegian coast proves that. And through the fog of conflicting claims as to what is happening on Norwegian soil it is at least possible to assume that the Nazis have been forced to go on the defensive at such vital points as Narvik and Trondheim.

The Nazi press and radio are no longer minimizing the peril in which the German garrison at and around Narvik finds itself. What they are doing is to minimize the importance of Narvik. Yet Narvik is important. With the Allied and Norwegian forces firmly established there they would be in a position to threaten the Swedish ore mines, some of which lie a relatively short distance on the other side of the frontier. They would thus be in a position, once Sweden has been invaded, to cut off that ore from the Reich.

At the same time the fury of the German air attack on Norwegian towns and cities, particularly those suspected of harboring enemy troops, indicates that Allied pressure on such key points in central Norway as Trondheim is beginning to be felt. Should Trondheim fall to the Norwegian-British-French forces the blow to German hopes would be incalculable. The Nazi mentality is geared to victory and victory alone.

IN THE NORWEGIAN campaign the initial advantages were entirely with the Nazis. The coup was carried out with remarkable speed and efficiency. The Norwegians were so demoralized by it that they did not even have a chance to mobilize their forces. And within a few hours all of Norway's principal ports—Oslo, the capital; Kristiansand, Stavenger, Bergen, Trondheim and Narvik were in the hands of the invaders.

Since then, however, the German forces have operated under a grave disadvantage. Aside from Oslo they have been unable to reinforce and supply their principal garrisons in Norway except by air, a slow, dangerous and extremely expensive method. The Allies, on the other hand, through possession of sea power, have been able to keep open the lines between Great Britain and various landing points in Norway. Thus the present balance of power favors the Allies, although, in view of the difficulty of the terrain, and the readiness of Germany to be reckless in the use of her air power, it might take a long time to dislodge the invaders from the whole of Norway.

In view of this situation Hitler must be under great temptation to seek to reinforce the Nazi garrisons in Norway by the Swedish route. It is only a very short distance at the nearest point between Denmark and southernmost Sweden. German troops could also be sent by the Baltic and Bothnia to northern Sweden to seize the ore mines and move toward Narvik over the ore railroad. And pressure on Trondheim might also be considerably eased if the Allied and Norwegian troops attempting to besiege that vital point are compelled to fight German forces moving into Norway over the railroads of central Sweden.

But if such a policy is tempting, it also has its risks. These are not to be minimized. Sweden has an army much larger, much better equipped than those possessed by any of the other Scandanavian kingdoms. If the Swedes fight Germany would have to increase her forces in Scandinavia several-fold. Sweden also has a fleet—a small fleet—but one which, in view of the depletion of German sea power, might prove an additional thorn in Hitler's side.

These considerations may temporarily hold back the Nazis. But unless the threat which they face in Norway is speedily eliminated there is a strong probability that the risks will be taken.

Freeman Lauds Selfless Service Of Red Cross

Bishop Recommends That World Adopt Organization's Spirit

The spirit of selfless service, as exemplified by the American Red Cross, might well be adopted universally, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, said yesterday at certificate presentation exercises of the District chapter.

More than 300 men and women, representing 22,021 persons who have successfully completed instruction in various Red Cross activities since last May, received certificates at the exercises, held in the South Interior Building Auditorium. Those not present previously had received their papers.

Present world unrest, said Bishop Freeman, is due to selfishness and a breakdown of human responsibilities.

Of the war, he declared: "Although we are neutral, and must remain so, we know where our sympathies are."

Miss Mabel T. Boardman, acting in her capacity as director of volunteer special services, awarded the certificates.

Dr. Roy Lyman Sexton, chairman of first aid and life saving for the District chapter, presented special certificates of appreciation to Sidney R. Gould and Elmer R. Hipsley in recognition of their 300 hours of volunteer service each. Hipsley, who is an instructor in first aid and life saving, also received a medal for 500 hours work in five consecutive years of service.

2 Bandits Confess Sirkis Slaying

bandits took $110 from Sam Wertlieb. In their escape they were pursued by Burns and Edwards.

After eluding the first two policemen, the bandits were sighted by Motorcycle Policemen Charles Scott and Joseph Osterman, only to get away from them near Fifth and Neal streets northeast. Scott and Osterman exchanged shots with the bandits.

Half an hour after escaping the motorcycle policemen, one of the bandit trio attempted to commander a taxicab near Fourth and P streets northwest. A telephone call from an unidentified witness brought Burns and Edwards back into the picture and they captured one of the men. The others were arrested in the 150 block Sixth street northwest, a short time later.

Taken to the Second Precinct station the suspects immediately were identified by Wertlieb. Sunday morning at impromptu line-ups, the men were picked by 24 other recent robbery victims.

The revolver taken from the men was turned over to Lieut. Fowler and preliminary ballistics tests led him to blieve it was the Sirkis murder weapon.

On the strength of this information, Liverman and Flaherty began questioning the suspects at the precinct station.

"They knew too much about the case from the outset," the detectives stated. "We kept them talking and finally they admitted they shot Sirkis. The youngest man said he fired the shot."

Last night detectives were obtaining written statements preparatory to arraigning the suspects. No coroner's inquest will be necessary at this time, one having been held a week after the slaying.

Letter Here Tells Of Woman's Death In Poland March 7

Poland's devastation was brought close to home yesterday for Mrs. Leon J. Cochrane, of 1811 Wyoming avenue northwest, who only then received news of her mother's death March 7 in Warsaw.

Her brother in Poland wrote: "Things are very, very serious here. We who are left are finding it very hard to get enough to eat. Your last letter just arrived, six and a half months late."

Mrs. Cochrane had planned to bring her mother to this country and sent several money orders and letters to that effect, none of which were ever received. The only letter received by her brother since the German invasion was one sent through a friend in the Berlin Embassy and delivered by diplomatic pouch.

Since September, Mrs. Cochrane has been helping her native country through the recently organized Polish unit of the American Red Cross. She is head of its surgical department.

A letter received three weeks ago from her mother said that at that time (February 17) they were all well. Yesterday's letter did not disclose the cause of her death, because of the censorship.

Sweden Fears She'll Enter War

ty. But no official explanation of the flight has been forthcoming.

The Swedish government has asked that measures be taken to prevent a repetition. The blackout, which now embraces most of southern Sweden, was extended today to Oestergotland, south of Stockholm. But there is as yet no blackout in Stockholm or further north.

It is expected that the Swedish government will announce on Sunday a special defense loan of $125,000,000. It will be accompanied by new taxes. Defense expenditures are estimated at $50,000,000 a month and it is said that the result is visible in greatly increased defense forces at the points where they are most likely to be needed.

In quarters close to the Swedish government it was said today that it was in the interests of Germany and Russia to avoid a clash in the Baltic and that to this end they might both prefer that Sweden remain a neutral buffer state, as all Scandinavia remained throughout the last war. Germany's interest, it was said, was to get raw materials, particularly iron, from Sweden and she stood to lose more than she would gain by bringing Sweden into the war.

These quarters said they did not believe that Britain, either, would seek to drag Sweden into war. But they admitted that Britain's desire to cut off Germany's iron supply clashed with Sweden's desire to trade with Germany. They do not believe the Allies would march into Sweden from Narvik to block Germany's iron, but insisted that if that happened, Sweden would be obliged to resist.

Sweden's hope that Russia might help prevent the extension of the war to the Baltic was reflected in the emphasis given in the press here today to reports from Moscow that the Soviet press was taking a cool attitude toward Germany and a more friendly attitude toward the Allies.

Berlin, April 23.—As the Wilhelmstrasse now acknowledges receipt of the Swedish protest on alleged recent violations of Swedish territory on the part of German warplanes "which will be duly pondered by the proper authorities," the radio and the press have launched a new campaign against Sweden, some of whose newspapers are said to have "defiled the honor of the German army."

Symphony Drive to Seek $107,600 Fund for Concerts

Washington's unfinished National Symphony will play its most crucial movement May 6 to 16 when, it was decided yesterday, A. E. F. Horn will lead a campaign for $107,600 to continue the concerts for another year.

Fresh from reaching a compromise agreement with the musicians' union after a quarrel that all but ended the orchestra's life, the board of directors of the Symphony Association yesterday enlisted the aid of hundreds of volunteer workers to raise the minimum sum necessary for twenty concerts next season.

Under the terms of the contract with the musicians' union agreed on Monday, the musicians receive a basic wage of $55 a week for a 23-week season, and $1 more for every week that the season falls short of the basic 23, or $1 less for weeks above 23. Thus, the Symphony Association hopes to collect funds enough to prolong the concerts far beyond the 20 weeks set as a minimum goal.

The contract, reached with the aid of Dr. John Steelman, Labor Department conciliator, and Samuel R. Rosenbaum, vice president of the Philadelphia Orchestra Association, will not be signed until the minimum sustaining fund of $107,600 is pledged.

This fact lead some friends of the symphony to speculate yesterday that the musicians themselves might be asked to help raise the needed money. This has been tried in the past but without signal success, an official of the orchestra association said yesterday.

Plans for the fund-raising drive were laid at a meeting of the board of directors yesterday at the home of Walter Bruce Howe, vice president of the board.

Horn, who will lead the drive for funds, is a past president of the Rotary Club and now heads the Metropolitan Police Boys Club. He is chief of the Washington office of General Electric Corporation.

Hula-Hula Coming to Folk Festival

to be represented at the National Folk Festival.

Both Miss Luahine and Mrs. Montgomery are members of the Sons and Daughters of Hawaiian Warriors, a society composed of descendants of Hawaiian royalty. Miss Brown, a long-time resident of Hawaii, has been campaigning for more than a year to send some of her fellow-islanders to the National Folk Festival.

Conversation with the Honolulu trio makes it evident that the hula is a much-maligned art. Missionaries who first went to the islands early in the last century frowned on the dance and finally succeeded in banishing it from polite circles. The only form which white men were permitted to see for many years thereafter was "sailor hula," designed for seamen on shore leave. They circulated vivid descriptions of this type of hula.

But times have changed. Now the grandchildren of those early missionaries not only are permitted to watch the hula but to learn the beautiful dances themselves.

The hula is more than a dance; it is a form of drama. Each dance interprets the poetic chant which accompanies it. Every motion of the hands has its symbolic meaning. There are standing hulas and sitting hulas; solos and chorus dances; hulas danced on a treadle board, and "pebble" hulas, done to the castanet-like accompaniment of small stones clicked together in the hands.

Rarely does a hula dancer of Iolani Luahine's prominence come to the mainland to display her talent.

A Woman's New York

New York, April 23.

WE WORKING girls—whom Heaven invariably protects, as Marie Dressler used to sing—whether in the home or the marts of trade, should be very grateful to the noted industrial designer, Henry Dreyfuss. He not only creates useful and beautiful matters, but rings up a doctor to be sure that his gadgets will work to our advantage.

ALICE HUGHES

Henry's unusual care extends to all his fields. For instance, he whipped up a new alarm clock not long ago, and summoned a medical specialist to advise him on the size of the numerals on the face for legibility, and for the intensity of the hated morning ring summoning us to fresh cares. Henry wanted the eye and ear strain minimized.

When he was working on a 1941 car design, Dreyfuss rang up the eye man again, this time to consult on the best places for the dinguses on the driver's dashboard, in order to aid coordination, which is so vital in any emergency, especially in insane traffic.

Then Henry went to work on a new vacuum cleaner, and once more the doc was summoned. The designer wanted to know, from the women's specialist, what back bend is least injurious to us, and when he found out, he pitched the cleaner at that angle, to minimize the durned backache.

Thus it appears that Dreyfuss, creator of beautiful and useful objects, is also a benefactor of our sex, and for this reason we should all rise, please, and give him a rousing Chautauqua salute with our clean hankies.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN: The Labor Department's new report on working women is filled with interesting stuff, especially to those of us who toil for our havog meat and hominy. It told me, for instance, that the first woman physician in the world was Elizabeth Blackwell, who was graduated at Geneva, N. Y., in 1848. And it says that during the decade 1920-30 the number of professional women in the country increased 48 per cent. That certainly was the decade when business ladies grew enormously in numbers and importance. Maybe it was the war days that gave us the push along. Now there seems to be no limit to the distance the girls can go in the world, or in what direction.

For a Future Mother

If your spring thoughts are almost all concerned with pleasant plans for an addition to the family, you will be interested in this dress, designed to make you feel young and gay and slender. It is made of a fine rayon fabric, printed in white on backgrounds of light blue, navy or green and accented by a white lingerie collar. The bodice has soft fullness in the front and the skirt is artfully pleated. The little short-sleeved jacket is just the right length for figure flattery. Made in sizes 12 to 18, this costume is priced at less than $20

'You Work Too Hard'

"Hello, Grace! Get your hat on! . . . Oh, you're going to lunch with me! . . . Yes indeed, that's just what I came by for! I just said to myself this morning, 'I'm tired of this thing of never seeing Grace any more. I'm just going down to her office and kidnap her'!

MANAGERIAL FRIEND

"What? . . . Why can't you go now? . . . I thought everybody went at 12 o'clock! . . . Oh, all right, I'll come back at 1. . . . Oh, you have? . . . Well, all right then, I'll just visit a little while with you right now.

"You know, Grace, all of your friends think you're high-hatting them because they never get to see you any more . . . Yes, I know you're busy, but there's simply no sense, Grace, in your working so hard. You take my word—you'll regret it later.

"How long has it been anyway since you were out to our house? . . . Two years? Just imagine that! And us living right in the same town! And Jim's always so crazy to have you come out . . . Yes, he says you're the only woman he ever saw who could understand his engineering blueprints.

"Oh, and Grace, you wouldn't know the children. Bobby's started taking saxophone lessons. He knows two or three little pieces already—I'd love for you to hear him play. And Betty Marie's started in with Miss Twist . . . Oh, ballet dancing! . . . Yes, she knows some awfully cute steps—I wish you could see her. One thing I'm very thankful for about Betty Marie—she's not a bit timid . . . No! . . . Now, I was so bashful when I was a child—wouldn't speak pieces or anything. But she's not a bit that way.

"Junior? . . . Oh, he's a big boy, now. Say—he has 42 white rats! . . . Yes! . . . Well, you see he got this pair of white rats for Christmas and we thought they were brothers, and they turned out to be man and wife. They're awfully cute little things. Not a bit wild. Just as friendly as they can be. Why, they'll just run all over you!

"Say, do you suppose you could come out for dinner some night next week, Grace? . . . Oh, now, don't tell me you can't get away at NIGHT! . . . Well, what do you do with your evenings, anyway? . . . Well, but you oughtn't to work so hard that you'd be all tired out at night and couldn't have any fun! I tell you, it doesn't pay!

"Now what you need, Grace, is a nice long rest—say, when do you get your vacation? . . . Well, now the thing for you to do is to come right down to our summer cottage and rest the whole time . . . Oh, yes, we've had this place down by Clay River Beach several years. We've been gradually building a cottage—I guess you'd call it more of a cabin right now, but it'll be nice in time.

"It's the most wonderful place to get away from everything—no movies, no mail, no newspapers, no company. All we do is just lie around in our bathing suits or slacks. It would be so wonderful for you, Grace—if you really like nature—you wouldn't have to do a thing but rest. And there's nobody down there you'd ever have to dress up for, just the children and myself, and we do all our own cooking, even bring in our own wood. And, of course, Jim comes down on week-ends.

"It's the quietest place you ever saw, Grace—the people in the nearest cottage are an elderly couple and most of the people around are fishermen who wouldn't pay any attention to you.

"Now, just as soon as you find out about your vacation, Grace—oh, but I'll be seeing you next week . . . Oh, yes, I am! Yes, you're coming out to dinner some night next week. I'm going to have the Bohrers next door over to play bridge. I want you to meet her. You two'll be crazy about each other—she does these fascinating things with pussy willows. "What? . . . Now, don't tell me you'll be too busy ALL of next week! . . . Yes, but you need the recreation. You're simply working yourself to death. I'm going to speak to your boss about it.

"The week after? . . . We—l-l, all right . . . What? No indeed, I'm not going to wait for you to call! No, we're going to set a date right now! I mean business! I'm going to see, Grace, that you get some rest, even if I have to kidnap you."

Style Designers Now May Be Born to Purple

Jane Derby Works With Fashions For Pleasure

By Marshall Adams
The Post Fashion Editor.

FASHION designers used to be educated in a workroom of practical experience, but within the last few years a number of untrained American women, "born to the purple," have achieved fame in the hard-fisted design business.

Marshall Adams

Some of these women are registerites or post-debs just 'trying their wings since the crash." Others are society matrons with a fever to prove themselves when pitted against clever everyday working women. In neither category, rather in a class to herself, is well-born dress creator Jane Derby, socially known as Mrs. Arthur Derby, of Boston and Washington, and also of Virginia, where she has a place in the Hunt Country. She designs because she likes to, because she does it effortlessly well and because, like Mme. Lanvin, of Paris, she has a youthful daughter whom she enjoys dressing.

No Trace of the Workroom

Young, blonde and sentimentally pretty, Mrs. Derby looks exactly the way successful designers should look and never do. There is not even a trace of the workroom about her china doll figure or genteel voice. Perhaps that is because the above-mentioned daughter, a student at Foxcroft, and a son, fresh out of Harvard, keep her mind away from "trial house" dresses after working hours. Mrs. Derby feels emphatically that business women can remain younger and gayer if they don't impose office problems on their family. Characteristically enough, the designer likes her clothes to be kept strictly apart from her private life, not wishing the career to impose upon friendship.

Practical as well as ornamental, Mrs. Derby already has a superbly simple summer wardrobe organized at a local store, featuring her exclusive fashions. This includes the following proposals:

Black linens for days in town. Natural string colored linens with saddle stitching for lazy days in the country. The former she enlivens with hints of white lingerie at the hem, cuff and neckline, but never all at once. With any one of these cool, dark, washable linens Mrs. Derby suggests plain large cartwheels, spotless white gloves and pearls. For informal dining, plaid taffta Herlequin frocks with tiny self-fabric button trimmings. For formal dinners, tailored black shirtwaist gowns or classic lace ones in delicious ice cream colors. One of Mrs. Derby's smartest Washington advertisements is vivid Mrs. Epes Hawes Moore, recent Parisian fashionist, who currently wears such Derby winners as a navy princess coat with tassel trimmed pockets over a neat beige crepe printed with miniature navy tassels.

Improve Figure By Exercising

IF YOU could order your figure "ready made," what would you like?

You certainly wouldn't choose a body whose shape has been distorted by fatty pads, nor a thick bulging waistline. You would have a well-proportioned body, a slim and graceful waist.

But so quickly you can get those disfiguring pads, particularly around the waist. Middle age starts at the middle—and it may start in the twenties.

How to correct such faults, have the youthful, buoyant figure you want? Do the right exercises a few minutes each day.

And how about your other figure problems, ills related to them? Do you have spreading hips, thighs? Do you suffer from a weak back, aching feet?

Then you'll profit by our 40-page booklet, "Beauty and Health Through Simple Exercises." Has exercises for correcting faults of hips, thighs, feet, neck shoulders, arms and bust, for improving posture. Also gives exercises for toning up muscles after pregnancy, for overcoming constipation, backache, nervous tension.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Beauty and Health Through Simple Exercises," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girls, 19 and 22, Call Mother "Old Fashioned." for Thinking Beaux Should Leave by Midnight; Is She?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have two daughters, 19 and 22 years of age, who tell me I am old fashioned because I object when they permit their boy friends to stay on after 12 o'clock midnight. I want them to bring their boy friends home, but I think a young man should take his departure by midnight. My girls are good girls. They do not drink or smoke, but they love to dance. Please give me your opinion of this dispute. M. E.

DEAR M. E.: In my opinion, considerations of common sense and courtesy are just as "high fashion" today among intelligent, well-bred persons, as ever they were. I see nothing "old fashioned" about your theory that young persons should part company around midnight, when spending the tag-end of an "ordinary date" (as the young people call it) in the living room (or kitchen) of the girl's home.

Most young persons between the ages of 19 and 22 are either students or employed, nowadays; and in cases where they are not, usually their parents are, as one means of providing said youngsters with the necessities (and some of the luxuries or comforts) of life. Persons who are devoting their days to work or study need a certain amount of sleep—usually eight hours out of every 24, more or less—which is customarily obtained between midnight and morning. For the average person, this is the minimum of nighttime rest essential to health and efficiency.

So I think parents have common sense on their side in suggesting 12 o'clock midnight as a reasonable curfew for every member of the household, except on rare and special occasions, when a gala celebration may be on the calendar. And I think that young persons whose behavior is animated by normal courtesy will observe the regulation without argument. They should bow to the fact that they haven't the right to penalize their parents for the sake of pointless pleasurable self-indulgence.

Girls, particularly, should realize that most boys' parents have greater confidence in a girl, and more respect for her parents, if their sons invariably arrive home around midnight after spending an evening with her. Almost unconsciously, they think to themselves, "Now, THAT'S the kind of girl I like my boy to know."

Boy Loves Russian Girl, Who Shies at His Avowal

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college boy, deeply in love with a Russian girl who studied in a convent before enrolling in high school here. Because she has a fine personality and is an excellent dancer, she is exceedingly popular, and most of my personal friends have tried to date her—but without success, as they admit themselves.

Luck being with me, I have had several dates with her. But on our latest date I told her how I felt about her, and since then she hasn't given me another date. However, I have been out at her house several times since, and she acts as friendly as ever. How can I get her to give me another date? I want to take her to a fraternity dance, even though I will just have to watch her from the sidelines as she gets the usual rush.

Please tell me how I can make her like me. And tell me whether you think her popularity is responsible for her indifference to me. W. H. D.

Long-Shot Chance Of Clearing Atmosphere

DEAR W. H. D.: One can only conclude that the girl wasn't prepared to have you fall in love with her; and now that you have, she doesn't quite know what to do about it. I imagine your declaration has put her rather on the defensive. Perhaps she feels if she gave you another date it would constitute unwarranted encouragement. Or she may feel shy and a little anxious, not knowing how to deal with a boy's serious emotion directed at herself; and for reasons which she herself cannot quite fathom, she may think it best not to go out alone with you.

Having clouded the atmosphere by your impulsive statement, I guess you will have to do what you can to promote a clean-cut day-time discussion of the bothersome issue. This is your long-shot chance of getting the relationship back to a firmly friendly basis. Tell the girl if her refusal to give you a date is due to what you told her on a recent evening, you would like to withdraw the statement; and you hope she will excuse it and forget it; because if friendship is all she is interested in, that's okay by you. You'd rather have her friendship than a million dollars, and if she'll give you another chance, you won't slip up again.

If she gives you an encouraging word or smile, tell her then just what you've said here, to wit: "I want to take you to the fraternity dance, even though it means I'll just have to watch from the sidelines while you get the usual rush." That should win a laughing acceptance of the invitation, unless she has already completely turned "thumbs down" on you. And I don't believe she has.

M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Dry Skins Need Tonic in Spring

Dry skins are on the rampage at this in-between changeable season. Partially parched by steam-heated buildings, lack of fresh air and exercises during the cold months, many complexions have emerged dull and leathery to greet spring. Many women still adhere to the theory that only a heavy, greasy cream will correct the dry skin condition and prevent wrinkling.

A woman pioneer in the field of beauty for many years explodes the myth of heavy creams for dry skins. This she does by introducing a new type of cream for dry skins. Light, fluffy, this new type cream keeps the skin soft and well lubricated. It is so light that it does not clog the pores of the skin and it has the added virtue of being invisible under face powder. Hence it does double duty as a lubricant and makeup base.

Medicine Ball, Effective Aid To Combat Spring Ennui

By Ida Jean Kain

IN THE SPRING there is a letdown . . . nothing definable, but a vague dissatisfaction with life in general and your looks in particular.

What you need is a spring toning to wake up your circulation and bring your figure out of the slumps. But there's no use prescribing routine exercise for anyone with a touch of spring fever, so let's give your muscles a workout with play!

It is so much easier to exercise when you have something to play with, that it's worth while to get a medicine ball. A 4 or 5-pound ball will do the trick nicely. You will be amazed at the improvement that can be made in your figure in a few weeks.

The first exercise is as easy as rolling off a log. Place the ball on the floor, then, lying on the ball on the tummy, roll from left to right and around. Keep the hands on the floor at the sides for steering. Start with half a minute and gradually increase until you are rolling for a full minute. This workout is marvelous for strengthening the midsection muscles and banishing a diaphragm bulge.

Reverse Method

The second one is fun, too—if you can do it. Holding the ball in the hands, lie on the back on the floor with the legs stretched up. The idea is to play catch—toss the ball and catch it with the feet, let it roll off the toes and catch. This is an all-around conditioner and worth practicing for it uses the chest and arm muscles, as well as those of the stomach, thigh, legs and feet.

Now back on your feet! Stand erect and toss the ball up in the air, looking up as you toss and catch. This stunt will mend your posture and improve the bust contour. Ten times will be plenty for a starter.

Stretch and Bend

Try stretching and bending. Stand a few inches away from the wall with back to it, and stretch the ball high overhead. Then bend back to touch the ball to the wall. As you do so, be sure to keep hips tucked under, abdominal muscles pulled up. Five times will be sufficient at the beginning. That exercise streamlines the entire front.

It is also good exercise to throw the ball to someone and catch it again. In throwing, reach the hands high overhead and then toss from that height.

These exercises are so different from the usual run that you must be careful not to overdo the first few days. There is nothing to be gained by making your muscles sore and stiff.

Basil Enhances a Ring of Gold Dish

BASIL, the "royal herb" that is sacred to the temples of India, furnishes a spicy and flower-like seasoning that is almost indispensable to the Italian cook. It is just the flavor note needed, too, in a flavorsome dish that will bring a dash of color to a meal. The following recipe for making a Ring of Gold also has the merit of using left-over bread.

Ring of Gold

Scald 1 cup milk over hot water; add 1 cup soft bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon dried basil. Cool slightly and stir in 3 egg yolks, well-beaten. Add 2 cups cooked carrots, that have been riced, and fold in 3 stiffly beaten egg whites. Place the mixture in a well-oiled ring mold. Set the mold on a rack in a pan of hot water so that the water covers about half of the mold. Bake in oven at 375 degrees for 40 minutes. Remove the mold from the pan of water and let stand a few minutes. Loosen the edges of the ring from the mold, invert a hot plate over it and turn out carefully. Fill the center with buttered peas, well seasoned, and serve immediately.

Mrs. Grady, Miss Fleming Give Luncheon for Distinguished Guests

Party at Shoreham Honors Mrs. Grover Grady, Of San Francisco, and Mrs. A. L. Ridings Of Texas; Topflight Hostesses Attend

By Hope Ridings Miller

ONE OF THE LARGEST and most pleasant ladies' luncheons of the season took place yesterday when Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, and Miss Minnie Mae Fleming entertained at the Shoreham Hotel.

Given by a Californian and a Texan, the party was also in honor of a Californian and a Texan—Mrs. Grover Grady, of San Francisco, sister-in-law of the hostess, Mrs. Grady, and Mrs. Alfred Lafayette Ridings, of Sherman, Tex., who is better known as Grace Dupree Ridings, author and poet.

Hope Ridings Miller

Wives of eight envoys and a number of other diplomatic and topflight official hostesses were in the company of 131 that gathered in the ballroom of the hotel at 1 o'clock.

Mrs. Grady, Miss Fleming and their honor guests received informally near the door. With a gay and very special welcome for each guest, Mrs. Grady was first in line. Her frock of rose and navy blue figured crepe, was worn with a becoming blue straw hat, turned up all around and tilted becomingly.

Mrs. Grover Grady, who stood next to her sister-in-law, was trimly turned out in a black and white ensemble. Mrs. Ridings wore a dark blue background, belted in green to match her buttoniere, and a perky dark-blue hat perched prettily on her auburn hair.

Miss Janet Clapper, and the Misses Peggy and Elene Essary, dressed in pastel garden frocks were a pretty trio, carrying broad-brimmed straw hats filled with gayly colored squares bearing numbers. The latter were passed out to the guests who found their places at one of the three tables accordingly.

Unique Scheme In Decorations

Something new in decorations decked each table. Huge baskets filled, not with flowers, but with carrots, onions, asparagus and new potatoes were arranged down the center. Place numbers were attached by safety pins to pastel napkins, which added another gay note to the decorative scheme.

Only ranking guests, the hostesses and the honor guests were seated at the head of the long U-shaped table that surrounded the two smaller tables in the center.

Diplomatic Corps Well Reperesented

Mme. Horinouchi, wife of the Japanese Ambassador, was to Mrs. Grady's right, and Senora de Boyd, wife of the Ambassador of Panama, was to Miss Fleming's left. Also at the head table were Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Minister of Norway; Senora de Castro, wife of the Minister of El Salvador; Mme. Zadeikis, wife of the Minister of Lithuania; Mme. Hurban, wife of the Minister of Czecho-Slovakia; Senora de DeBayle, wife of the Minister of Nicaragua; and Senora de Caceres, wife of the Minister of Honduras.

Others there from the Diplomatic Corps were Mme. Emmanuel Lombard, wife of the French Military Attache; Mme. Felipe Munilla, wife of the Cuban Military Attache; Mrs. Merchant Mahoney, wife of the Canadian Commercial Counselor, and Senora de Crespo, wife of the First Secretary of the Embassy of Ecuador.

Mrs. Joseph Davies Among Guests

Heading the list of guests from the official contingent were Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. D. Worth Clark, and Mrs. Sheridan Downey. Mrs. Joseph Davies, smartly attired in a dark-red frock with a matching hat, was among the guests who were moved up to the head table between the second course and the third. Mrs. Thurman W. Arnold, who recently returned from a Southern trip, was seen in the throng, as were Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Mrs. Harry Coffee, Mrs. Frank Buck, Mrs. Clarence Lea, Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. Luther Johnson, and Mrs. Jerry Voorhis.

Many Notables Seen in Throng

As would be expected, the State Department was also well represented in the crowd. Among the hostesses I noted from that contingent were Mrs. Laurence Duggan, Mrs. Henry L. Deimel, jr., Mrs. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Mrs. Wallace McClure, Mrs. J. E. Saugsted, Mrs. Leo Pasvolsky, Mrs. Frank Waring, and Mrs. Fletcher Warren.

Among others I saw in the crowd were Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. Wesley Sturges, Mrs. Justin Miller, Mrs. Basil Manly, Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. Walter K. Bachrach, Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. William Stanley, Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Judge Marion J. Harron, Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, Mrs. Joshua Evans, Mrs. Irene Caldwell, jr., Mrs. Walter Wyatt, Mrs. Ernest Van Fossan, Mrs. Walter R. Tuckerman, Mrs. George Rublee, Mrs. J. Clinton Tribby, Mrs. Helen Moodie, Mrs. John O. Herick, Mrs. Barnet Nover, Mrs. Clarence Burton, Mrs. Francis Cabell Brown, and many more.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies Dine Officials And Diplomat

The Special Assistant to the Secretary of State and Mrs. Joseph Davies entertained at dinner last evening at 2700 Macomb street, the Schoellkoepf home that they have leased until May 1.

Ranking guests at the event were the Ambassador of Brazil and Senhora de Martins. Others in the company of 24 were Senator Frederick Hale and Senator and Mrs. Charles L. McNary.

Also among those present were the Charge d'Affaires of Luxemburg and Mme. Le Gallais, who recently arrived in this country as the first official representatives Luxemburg has had in Washington in a number of years. When former Ambassador Davies was United States envoy to Belgium, he was also accredited to Luxemburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies will move after May 1, to the home they have leased at 1700 Foxhall road.

Baroness Hostess At Luncheon Here

Baroness de Villiers-Tarrage was hostess at a luncheon yesterday at the 1925 F Street Club. Though her home is in Paris, the Baroness' son is a student at St. Alban's here and she and her daughter have been living at the Anchorage to be near him.

Guests yesterday included Mrs. Hamilton Fish, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Mrs. Newbold Morris, of New York, whose son, Stephen Morris, is with the State Department here, Mme. van Kaathoven, Gen. John Phillip Hill, Clarence Hewes, Arthur Bradley Campbell, and Grant Smith.

French Envoy Sponsoring Show

The French Ambassador, Count de Saint-Quentin, heads the patrons for the gala showing of the French film "Harvest" to be presented next Tuesday for the benefit of French civilian relief. The American Association of Teachers of French, Washington chapter, is sponsoring the show, which will be held at the Little.

"Harvest," a simple story of two people whose love for each other and for the soil has been called Biblical in dignity, was voted the best foreign film of the year by New York critics.

CAPITAL WHIRL

By SALLY SWIFT

MR. AND MRS. Lawrence Houghteling gave a cocktail party the other day in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, who are spending a few days in Washington to pick up the threads of old friendships.

The Stevensons lived here a few years ago when Mr. Stevenson was lending a helping hand in the early days of the New Deal. Mrs. Stevenson is as chic and pretty as ever and the Houghtelings' guests were practically shoving each other aside for an opportunity to talk to her.

THE PARTY WAS INFORMAL and cosy with a sort of self-service bar at a side table, where people poured their own drinks, while servants took charge of wraps and passed sandwiches and hors d'oeuvres.

The Stevensons are from Chicago and among the cocktail guests were two fellow townsmen, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Finnegan. Mr. Finnegan is editor of the Chicago Times and had attended the editors' dinner of a few days before. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bonsal, Mr. and Mrs. William Lacy, Mrs. Kurt Hetzel, Mrs. Marion Warburg, Mrs. Francis Whitten, Sherlock Davis, Ralph Hill and Dorsey Fisher.

MRS. ARTHUR WOODS has arrived back from Williamsburg, where she attended the Festival of Eighteenth Century Chamber Music, of which she is one of the guiding spirits. Much of the music which composed the series of programs came from manuscripts in the Library of Congress, and there were two sonatas from the library of Thomas Jefferson at Monticello.

The artistic success of these concerts is well known and music lovers come from all directions to hear them. Attending this last series were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch and Carleton Smith, the famous music critic. Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller were staying at their house in Williamsburg, which they had opened for the festival. Mrs. Rockefeller has placed her marvelous collection of American Folk Art in the Ludwell-Paradise House, where it may be seen by the public.

AT ONE OF THE CONCERTS, Mrs. Woods presented me to the Rockefellers during the intermission. They were wondering about the ballroom of the Governor's Palace, the scene of the concerts, chatting with their many friends and creating a very informal and friendly atmosphere. Mrs. Rockefeller was charming in a simple black lace gown which set off her snowy hair to perfection, and was wearing some lovely pearls. Mr. Rockefeller seemed to be conducting a one-man Gallup Poll, asking if I came to Williamsburg only for the music, or for sightseeing as well, and whether my husband had enjoyed a recent visit there, and how often we came.

THREE LITTLE Washington debutantes, Ellen Flowerree and Marjorie and Isabelle Meuser, attended the concert under the chaperonage of the later's cousin, Arthur Bradley Campbell. They were wide-eyed and thrilled over lovely Williamsburg and their happiness was complete when Mrs. Jouett Shouse presented them to Mr. Rockefeller, the man who has made possible the Williamsburg restoration. The pleasure was mutual, as one could judge by the laughter and gay talk that lasted to the end of the intermission.

Other Washingtonians who attended the festival were Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, Mrs. Henry Leonard, Mrs. Francis Biddle, Miss Mary Winslow, Mrs. Arthur Krock and her mother, Mrs. Alfred Granger; the Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. Neville Butler, Commander and Mrs. Anthony Coleby, Mrs. George Garrett and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Filley, who, though not strictly of Washington, are often here en route to their place near Middleburg.

THE YOUNG MEN of the State Department have a patron Saint all their own. His mission is to prevent their making mistakes in the precedence of Cabinet members and his name is St. Wapniael. This apparently elish saint is in reality a code method taught to youngsters in the protocol division to help them remember the rank of heads of executive departments. His name is composed of the initial letters of the titles of these dignitaries in the order of their precedence, and runs thus: State, Treasury, War, Attorney (General), Postmaster (General), Navy, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce, Labor.

Write this down in your notebook and, if you plan to have two or more Cabinet officers to dinner, make a prayer to St. Wapniael and he will guide you through the peril of seating your august dinner guests.

First Lady to Greet 4,800 on May 3

Just as many another hostess, Mrs. Roosevelt often has qualms about entertaining. At the moment the small matter of 4,800 women descending upon the White House Friday afternoon, May 3, has the First Lady a bit puzzled. "Of course I am hoping for a sunny afternoon," she said. This would enable those here for the National Institute Government meeting to wander about the lawns—thus allegiating the almost certain crush. The meeting, which will be held May 2, 3 and 4, is under the auspices of the women's division of the Democratic National Committee.

Mrs. Roosevelt held a press conference yesterday before taking a plane for New York. Earlier, she had received a cluster of russet-brown orchids from a group of Florida girls. Today she will go to Miami, Fla., on the first lap of a Southern lecture tour, returning to the White House next Monday.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she expected to accompany the President on his Western tour this June. She touched on a variety of subjects ranging from the Nation Award, which she is receiving, to the oft-told tale of suffrage for the District.

This Friday the First Lady has asked Mrs. Robert Jackson to receive the American Physical Society at tea at the White House at 3 o'clock, in her absence. Next Tuesday night Mrs. Roosevelt will attend the dinner of the Institute of Visiting Nursing Society of which Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone is president. The next afternoon, May 1, the First Lady will attend the All Hallow's Guild garden party in the Bishop's Garden at the Cathedral.

James Parks Host at Party

Celebrating his twenty-seventh birthday, James Parks was host at a small dance last night at the 1925 F Street Club.

Several dinners preceded the party, among the hostesses being Miss Sylvia Szechenyi and Miss Emily Meyers. The latter entertained at the Sulgrave Club, and Mr. Parks was in her party. She wore a white net frock with a full skirt and a sequin bodice.

Her other guests included the Misses Isabelle and Marjorie Meuser, Marie and Cecilia vom Rath, Joan Hull, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Henry Thomas, Richard and Sterling Bolling, Charles Slaughter and Thomas Clagett.

The dance was really small, with less than a hundred invited. Most of feminine guests were debs and postdebs, but there were several popular "marrieds" present, among them Mrs. George T. Pettingill Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken and Mrs. Eldridge Jordan.

Dancing on the sunporch before supper served at small tables were the Misses Eleanor Meem, Yolande de Mauduit, Mimi Scott, Peggy Wagner, Mary Washington, Ellen Flowerree, Ivy Bacon, Jean Marie de Villiers, and Harold Walker, Jock Merriam, Clem Conger, Rufus Johnson, Robert Woods and William Mitchell.

Parties to Mark Dog Show

A flurry of parties will be given in connection with the Old Dominion Kennel Club show Saturday in Alexandria. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Scharfield will have as their house guests for the week-end, Capt. and Mrs. Will Judy, of Chicago. They will entertain at a party in honor of the Judys Friday from 5 until 7 o'clock.

Mrs. M. Carter Hall will entertain shortly after the event for members of the board of lady managers of the Alexandria Hospital, beneficiary of the show, and of the John Alexander Post of the D. A. R.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Merrill will give the silver Best in Show Trophy. They will be exhibiting their boxers, as will Mrs. Jouett Shouse, Mrs. C. U. Stewart, of Chevy Chase; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Barton, of Glen Elg, and Miss Elizabeth Lemmon, of Welbourne, Va.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

Count Robert van der Straten Ponthoz, Belgian Ambassador, and George Theunis, Belgian Ambassador at Large, will be honor guests at a luncheon to be given Saturday at the St. Regis in New York by Gaston Lauryssen.

The Turkish Ambassador and Mme. Ertegun gave a dinner last night.

Mme. Bilmanis, wife of the Latvian Minister, was hostess at luncheon yesterday.

Mary Holloway And Mr. Page Are Married

Ceremony Takes Place in Florida Home of the Bride

The wedding of Miss Mary Hastings Holloway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Clay Holloway, to Robertson Page, son of Judge and Mrs. Elwin Lawrence Page, of Concord N. H., took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents in Clermont, Fla.

The bride has been for several years associated with the National Archives here and Mr. Page is a Washington correspondent, associated with the Griffin News Bureau. The couple will make their home in the Capital after a honeymoon in the South.

White lilies and roses combined with bamboo fronds and palms were massed behind the improvised altar, which was arched with palms. The Rev. William L. Reid, of Huntington, W. Va., officiated.

Wears Mother's Wedding Gown

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin, trimmed with Duchess and rosepoint lace and hand embroidered in seed pearls. Her veil, which had lace medallion inserts, fell from a halo cap caught with orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of Easter lilies and white larkspur.

Her cousin, Miss Frances Allen Walton, of Clermont, was maid of honor, and Mrs. Richard James Dobson, of Kilgore, Tex., a sorority sister of the bride, was matron of honor. They were gowned alike in frocks of daffodil yellow and Alice blue silk maline over taffeta and carried arm bouquets of mixed spring blossoms tied with tulle. Each wore a miniature veil, falling from a velvet hair bow of the same shade.

Bride's Brother Is Best Man

Lieut. Chester Clay Holloway, jr., the bride's brother, was best man, and Masters Morgan Lauck Walton 3d, and Moses Walton 4th, cousins of the bride, served as page and ring bearer, respectively.

The bride attended Massanutten Academy, Woodstock, Va.; State Teachers College, Farmville, Va., where she was a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma, and the Colorado State College of Education at Greely, Colo. She is assistant to the national president of Sigma Sigma Sigma.

Mr. Page, whose father is Associate Justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court, attended New Hampshire Preparatory School and was graduated from the University of New Hampshire in 1936.

Among out-of-town guests were the bridegroom's parents and Wilbur Page, of Washington. Others included Mrs. Richard E. Jarratt, of Jarratt, Va.; Mrs. John H. Dulin, of Meadeville, Pa.

Grand Duchess Marie, Mrs. Jack Wilson Arrive in Capital for a Brief Stay

VISITORS TO WASHINGTON, present and future:

Grand Duchess Marie and her willowy, blonde stepsister, Mrs. Jack Wilson, formerly Princess Paley, are here for a brief stay. They came down for Monday's opening of the Alfred Lunt-Lynn Fontanne play, with which Mr. Wilson is associated.

The Duchess, who has made her writing, photography and globe trotting pay, is now designing clothes for women who are "frankly 40." If all Europe doesn't go up in smoke by summer, she hopes to visit a sick brother in Switzerland. The Duchess, incidentally, married Swedish Prince William and is the mother of Prince Lennart of Sweden.

THE FAMOUS medical missionary, Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, will be here next week for an exhibit of Labrador handicrafts at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling. Mr. Houghteling's sister is married to Dr. Charles Curtis, head of the Grenfell Hospital for fisherfolk on the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts. He and his wife make their home there. Every third year Dr. Curtis takes a sabbatical.

When in Washington, Sir Wilfred usually stays with Coleman Jennings. After many years as patron saint of the poor fishermen near the Arctic regions, he has more or less retired from the more active work with his mission.

CORNELIA CHAPIN, the sculptor, arrives tomorrow to visit her poet sister, Mrs. Francis Biddle. The latter will give a tea for her on Friday.

Columnist Ernest Lindley and Mrs. Lindley, who works for the National Youth Administration, will have with them next week Malcolm Muir, president and publisher of News Week. They will give a cocktail party on Tuesday.

REPRESENTATIVE JOSEPH MARTIN doesn't drink, smoke, play golf or bridge. Midnight is his deadline for getting to bed, though for extraordinary occasions he will stretch it to 1 o'clock . . . Friends of Capt. Hugh Waddell are keeping their fingers crossed for him, as he sails soon for a military post at the legation in Sweden . . . Recent diplomatic transfers include David Key, who will be shifted from Ottawa to Rome. Mrs. Key is the daughter of Gen. and Mrs. William Mason Wright, of Washington.

MOST MUSICIANS look vaguely like pictures of Beethoven. Pianist Arthur Rubinstein is no exception. He also has the hearty appetite common to great artists, and at the supper given for him last winter following his concert here, he made his way through several large plates of salad while the guests looked on fascinated.

Mr. Rubinstein, who will play here Friday for Polish relief, has made cigars his hobby. He has remarked "Despite Hitler and Mussolini, there are still pleasant things like flowers and cigars."

POLISH AMBASSADOR Potocki is not doing much entertaining at the embassy these days. All who attend Rubinstein's concert there will have the opportunity to meet him afterwards over the Polish equivalent of ice cream and cake. Count Potocki has loaned the embassy that evening to the Washington Committee for Polish relief.

NOTES FROM A popular bachelor's date book . . . Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft's dinner on Friday . . . Mrs. Caraway Entertained

Senator Hattie W. Caraway, of Arkansas, was the ranking guest at a luncheon given yesterday at the Mayflower by Mrs. William J. Driver, of Osceola, Ark., who has been a guest at the hotel with her husband since the first of the year.

Guests from the Congressional group included Mrs. Frank Crowther, of New York; Mrs. Hampton P. Fulmer, of South Carolina; Mrs. John E. Rankin, of Mississippi; Mrs. Wade Kitchens, of Arkansas; Mrs. Malcolm C. Tarver, of Georgia, and Mrs. Albert E. Carter, of California.

Others present were Mrs. Joseph W. Byrns, Mrs. Jessie W. Walters, Mrs. William W. Arnold, Mrs. John Sandlin, Mrs. Fred Vinson, Mrs. Charles J. Stengle, Mrs. Ewin L. Davis, Mrs. George Williams, Mrs. R. W. Elliott, Mrs. Oscar E. Bland, Mrs. Ben Craven, Mrs. Clarence Fairman, and Mrs. G. F. Trotter and Mrs. John J. Davis, of Pueblo, Colo., who are visiting Mrs. Crowther.

Luncheon was served in the Presidential dining room. Tall silver vases filled with spring flowers were used for decorations. Instead of the usual place cards, the hostess had a single flower at each place and as her guests arrived each was given a flower that matched the ones at the various places thus indicating her place at table. Roses, carnations, jonquils, snapdragons and other spring flowers were used in the clever scheme of seating.

'Much Entertainment' Offered If Pen Women Meet in Puerto Rico

Mrs. Ana Alfonso Also Promises No Speeches on Agenda

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor.

"Much entertaining and no speeches" was the inducement offered to members of the National League of American Pen Women last night by Mrs. Ana Alfonso, president of the Puerto Rican Branch of the league, if they would hold their mid-administration meeting next year in Puerto Rico.

Her invitation was extended at a banquet given with a Puerto Rican setting last night at the Willard Hotel, headquarters of the biennial convention.

The banner "Pittsburgh Really Wants You," which had hung behind the speakers' platform during the day's business sessions, was replaced by flags of the Americas, loaned by the Pan American Union. There were also artificial branches of the vivid flamboyant tree; huge Puerto Rican hats and gay posters, announcing the carnival season with which the Pen Women's visit would coincide, should they vote to accept Puerto Rico's invitation.

Mrs. Alfonso assisted Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, hospitality chairman, in directing details of the decorating between the afternoon session and the banquet hour. On the tables were also miniature hats, samples of rum and, for the State presidents, maracas—the gourds used in dancing.

As soon as the guests were seated, Senorita Zoraida Martinez Nadal, daughter of the president of the Puerto Rican Senate, was escorted into the banquet room in the gorgeously jeweled gown she wore two seasons ago as queen of the carnival in Puerto Rico. She was accompanied by a group of other girls from National Park Seminary, where she is now a student, all wearing white evening gowns, and acting as her attendants.

Blanton Winship Attends Reception

Preceding the banquet, a reception was held in the Fairfax room of the hotel. Receiving were Audrey Wurdemann (Mrs. Joseph Auslander), national president; Mrs. Cajigas, Nellie DeArmond Bryant, assistant hospitality chairman, and the guests of honor, Oscar Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, was present as representative of Gov. William D. Leahy, and was accompanied by Mrs. Chapman.

Others among the honor guests who were on the program included Senator Arthur Capper, Gen. Blanton Winship, former Governor of Puerto Rico; Everett Wilson, director of the Puerto Rican Trade Council; Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of the Asitant Secretary of State, who talked on "Puerto Rico Through the Eyes of an American Woman;" Senora Mario Julia, who read poems in Spanish and English after the "Queen's" entrance; Mrs. Joshua Evans, who told of her recent trip to Puerto Rico; Representative Robert L. Mouton, Francisco J. Hernandez, chief of the travel division of the Pan American Union; Rafael Pico, Louise Ward Watkins, of California, national lecture chairman, and Laura R. Grant, president of the San Francisco branch of the Pan American League. Mrs. Newton Brewer presided as mistress of ceremonies.

There were also songs by the triplet daughters of the Ambassador of Panama, Senoritas Elena, Mildred and Edith Boyd, who were dressed in native costume, and Puerto Rican music by a group of Puerto Rican students from Trinity College, and from Madames of the Sacred Heart. All were in costume, as were the pages.

Western Branches Have Many Members

The business meeting yesterday afternoon was enlivened by a discussion of the proposal to hold the biennial conventions of the league in different cities instead of in Washington, as the by-laws now provide. The proposed amendment to the by-laws was defeated, but a committee was named to draft a resolution for consideration today, giving branches in distant or Western States the right of absentee vote.

Mrs. Laura Grant, of San Francisco; Mrs. Agnes Giles Newman and Mrs. Mary Lewis, of Washington, comprise the committee. The Western branches which have large, active memberships, have felt they were deprived of full voice in the affairs of the league by being unable to have as large a number of delegates here as those chapters nearer the Capital. The convention moves on alternate years.

Today a poetry luncheon is scheduled with Inez Sheldon Tyler, former president of the District branch, presiding. It will follow the morning's business meeting at which there will be nominations from the floor for new officers. The composers' banquet is to be held tonight, followed by a concert.

Arlene Davis Flies to Capital For Convention

Arlene Davis, noted woman flier—artist to you, if you're a member of the National League of American Pen Women—flew in Monday evening to attend the league's convention.

This petite young person with wavy auburn hair and laughing blue eyes, was the only woman entry to finish in the money in the Bendix race last September and holds the highest pilot's rating of any woman in the world. This means 1-S, 2-S, 3-S, 4-M land and water, instrument rating and a radio operator's license.

She was educated as an artist in Chicago and Cleveland, but when her husband, M. Thomas Davis, bought a plane eight years ago, she not only learned to fly but also discovered she had a technical mind. She's been flying and studying since.

She really blew in with the wind Monday, in a Beechcraft plane. Her own Spartan is being overhauled. She will be here until Friday.

Luncheon Saturday

The National Democratic League of Washington will hold the second of its luncheons at the Grafton Hotel, corner of Connecticut avenne and De Sales street, at 1:30 p. m. Saturday. Representative Albert Gore, of Tennessee, will be the guest speaker.

MRS. OTIS FLOYD LAMSON, founder and honorary president of the Seattle Branch of the National League of American Pen Women, who is attending the biennial convention here, is credited with having helped to start nearly every important project in Seattle within recent years.

She is founder of the Washington Women's Auxiliary to the American Medical Association; moderator of the Seattle Town Meeting of the Air, founder of the Music and Art Foundation of Seattle, a member of the board of directors of the Seattle Symphony Orchestra; director of her own free parental clinic, first vice president of the Woman's University Club of Seattle, a director of the Washington State Chapter of the American Red Cross and on the National Advisory Board of the New York World's Fair.

She will attend both the Red Cross convention and the opening of the World's Fair while she is in the East.

With all of these interests, Mrs. Lamson finds time to write articles for current magazines and to lecture on child and parental problems. She is author of two embryologies, "My Birth" and "How I Come to Be."

woman who has made such a contribution to the life of the American city that is her home, to discover that she is an American by adoption. There is a music in her speech not native to the United States.

In answer to my question she told me she was born in Armenia and came to this country to study at Johns Hopkins University about 30 years ago. There she met her husband, who is now one of Seattle's leading surgeons.

ANOTHER VISITOR—Among the many other interesting members of the league, here for the convention, is Mrs. Grace Dupree Ridings, of Sherman, Tex., mother of Hope Ridings Miller, society editor of The Post. Mrs. Ridings, who is widely known as a poet, is now president of the Texas branch of the league and is a candidate for Texas State president.

Mrs. Ridings attends the league convention here every two years and has many friends in Washington. This season she was accompanied to the Capital by her husband, Dr. Alfred L. Ridings, F. A. C. S., and both are guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter.

SCRAPBOOK WINS PRIZE—First prize for the best historical scrapbook submitted Saturday at the general assembly of the National Society, Daughters of American Colonists at the Mayflower Hotel, was awarded to the District Society, of which Mrs. David D. Caldwell is State regent.

The scrapbook was compiled by Mrs. Leo Gasehagen, State historian, who also compiled the winning book in 1939. But she says compiling them was real manual labor.

Maine placed second, North Carolina third in the contest.

CHANGE DATE—The John Eaton P.-T. A. at its May meeting will vote on the matter of changing the date of its annual elections from fall to spring. It is about the only association in the District congress which elects in the fall and the plan places it at a disadvantage in getting its program underway.

man David L. Lawrence and several other party leaders.

Third man in the race was former Mayor William N. McNair, of Pittsburgh, who opposed the New Deal. Both the others cited their records of New Deal support, and Guffey said if he was defeated "the press of the Nation would hail that fact as a repudiation of President Roosevelt and the New Deal."

Although the Presidential vote was watched with interest, since Pennsylvania has more electoral votes than any other State except New York, it was without official significance. It does not bind national convention delegates to support any candidate.

Republicans went through the campaign quietly, with the State organization predicting easy victory for its slate, headed by Cooke, great grandson and namesake of the Union financier of the Civil War, for nomination for Senator.

Jones' First Race

Jones, who at 56 was making his first race for elective office, left most of his campaigning to his supporters. Chief among these, State Chairman Lawrence said his one-time close friend Guffey "was not the strongest candidate available" and could not win in the fall."

The rift between Guffey and a group of State organization leaders dates back two years to the 1938 primary in which Guffey backed a slate that lost to Democratic organization candidates.

This year the State committee set aside an indorsement rule, clearing the way for a free-for-all.

Boland Nominated

Scranton, Pa., April 23 (AP).—Patrick J. Boland, Democratic whip in the United States House of Representatives, easily won the party nomination today in his bid re-election.

Joseph F. Gunster, an attorney, was nominated by the Republicans to oppose Boland.

Six Named To Hospital Drive Board

Negro Foundation Designates White Persons as Trustees

The National Negro Hospital Foundation, Inc., yesterday named six white members to its board of trustees.

Speaking at an inter-racial meeting at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Amos H. Carnegie, founder of the organization, outlined plans whereby the groups intends to solicit an average of a penny a week from 13,000,000 colored persons in the nation. He said the organization would set up national headquarters in Washington and would canvass the colored population through women's auxiliaries.

In the floor debate that followed Julia West Hamilton, president of the Wheatley branch Y. W. C. A., said the organization should call upon Congress to provide health funds for colored as well as whites.

Dr. Henry A. Callis, colored physician, opposed the group's program by declaring it evaded "the real issue."

"In a democracy," Dr. Callis said, "the health problems of the Negro minority should not be discriminated against. They should be handled as the problems of all U. S. citizens in the low income group."

The white members named to the board are: Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church; Dr. Edward H. Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church; Dr. John W. Rustin, pastor of Mt. Vernon Place Methodist Church; Dr. Howard Stone Anderson, pastor of First Congregational Church, and Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley.

William P. Metcalf's Will Gives Thousands to Charity

William P. Metcalf, realty broker and lawyer, who died here January 8, made several large bequests for charity and religious purposes in his will, which was filed for probate in the District Court yesterday. The estate was estimated at $250,00.

After making a number of bequests, Mr. Metcalf's will directed the American Security & Trust Co. to set up the rest of the property in a trust, to give medical care to deserving poor. The New York Avenue Presbyterian Church was named to administer this charity, with a provision that if the church declined to do so, the trust should be transferred to the Washington Home for Incurables.

Criminal Trial Of D. C. Union Begins Today

International Teamsters, 5 Officers Accused Under Antitrust Laws

The first criminal trial of a labor union in Washington for violation of the antitrust laws will begin in the District Court today, when the teamsters' union and five of its officers face charges of conspiracy to restrain the building industry here.

Indicted last October, the defendants were overruled when they contended that labor unions were exempt from prosecution under the antitrust laws.

The defendants are Local 639 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Charles J. Bell, president; Stuart M. Keyser, recording secretary; Linwood A. Trainham, secretary-treasurer; Arbrey Z. Stream, business agent, and Thomas A. O'Brien, representative of the international union.

The defendants are alleged to have used violence, threats and strikes against building operations to enforce their views on what union certain employes should join. The trial is expected to last a week.

Want "in" on next year's "Big News" Now?

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

YOU can figure it out for yourself from what you see in daily traffic and what you hear when the talk turns to automobiles.

Buick's pacing the pack. Has been for several years.

It called this year's style turn a year ago. It set current performance standards in '38 with its Dynaflash engine. It still leads the crowd for riding qualities with its BuiCoil Springing, now in its third year.

So where's a more logical place to look for next year's "big news" than in this year's big and roomy Buick?

It may be smoother engines. Buick is the only car that now balances power plants after assembly, and clothes their velocity in velvet.

Coil springs all around may come. Buick's never need lubrication, are practically indestructible, and even cut down skid-risks.

Maybe it'll be heavier frames—Buick has the heaviest of any car of its price. Or maybe many of the "extra touches" Buick so freely applies—safety-latches on rear doors, gas tanks locked against pilferage, Sealed Beam Headlights out of the way of bumps, Two-Way Direction Signals with automatic cut-off.

You get all of these things now in Buick.

Get them with the plus of Buick quality of materials and workmanship—at a price that suggests a six instead of an eight.

So it's easy to start enjoying future "new features" right now.

Just go try a Buick. Look it over, inside and out. And get the prices.

Even if you've been buying in the lowest-price field you'll find it takes less than you think to step up to a Buick. Prices begin at $895 ★delivered at Flint, Mich.; transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

You get a "Good Deal" from Your Buick Dealer

Look at Buick First . . . you can afford it and you can't know what your 1940 money ought to buy until you've seen this really modern automobile.

Try it Yourself!

Just how good is Buick? You'll really never know until you try it for yourself! A demonstration is yours for the asking without the slightest obligation. See any dealer listed below.

"Best buy's Buick!"

Manor Park To Seek Library Unit

Citizens Association, Whittier P.-T. A. Meet Jointly In New Auditorium

A public library branch for Manor Park and additional teachers for the new Calvin Coolidge High School were listed among the next objectives of the Manor Park Citizens Association by its president, Daniel B. Lloyd, last night at its joint meeting with Whittier Parent-Teacher Association.

The third annual banquet of the two organizations was followed by entertainment and speech making in Whittier School's new auditorium, a landmark in community pride.

Mrs. Paul O. Gottwals, P.-T. A. president, said that her organization has the largest membership in its history, 480—just short of its 500 goal for this season. Of special note, she said, is the fact that more than 95 fathers are included in the membership.

Ernest Pullman, former president of the Citizens Association, traced the history of the community and its steady expansion.

Lloyd said 12 teachers had been provided for Coolidge High School and that nine more would be transferred there, but he said that a dozen additional teachers would be needed.

In a humorous skit, "Manor Parksa Poppin," by Mrs. J. O. Woodall, a new family arriving in the neighborhood were enlightened about the Citizens Association and P.-T. A. Taking part in the skit were Mrs. Isabel Ward, John Woodall, Mrs. Margaret Graham, Leonard Bowen, Mrs. Irma Stalfort, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hamilton, Mrs. Earle Dahlberg, Mrs. George Downer, Miss Doris Koons, Miss Eleanor Corbin, Cliff Warren, Ira Krider.

Miss Elsie E. Green, principal of the school, introduced the features on the program, which included a chalk talk by Capt. Richard Mansfield of the Ninth Precinct, Metropolitan Police; music by six accordion players, the "Keyboard Kaperers;" dancers from the Lisa Gardiner School of Dance. About 150 persons attended the program, which ended with dancing.

Hampshire Heights

Another blow at the District tax system and lack of suffrage was struck last night by the Hampshire Heights Citizens Association when the group instructed its delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations to press for action on these two matters.

Last month the Hampshire Heights citizens submitted resolutions to the federation opposing higher taxes and requesting that the Federal Government make a larger contribution to the expense of running Washington's government. When no action followed the resolutions, the Hampshire Heights group decided to renew its plea for remedial measures.

Other business at the meeting in Barnard school, Fourth and Decatur streets northwest, included requesting a postal substation at First and Farragut streets northwest; asking an electric fire alarm system for the Barnard school to replace the present hand system; favoring a pending bill to allow voluntary retirement of police and firemen after 25 years; electing Harold D. Johnson, founder of the association, to life membership.

The following slate of officers was nominated: President, the incumbent, Harry J. Miller; first vice president, J. Leon Bord and Mrs. E. C. Atkinson; second vice president, Maurice Collegeman, Mrs. Atkinson and Francis Taylor; treasurer, Walter J. Snelling; secretary, Mrs. Harry J. Kriemelmeyer; delegates to the federation, Lawton Melliechampe, Bord and P. J. Ableman; delegate to Petworth Citizens Association, Mrs. Atkinson; delegate to Chillum Heights Citizens Association, Charles Mullican. Elections are to be in May.

The 25 persons who attended heard Prof. Ronald Bamford, of Maryland University, speak and show a film on plant life.

Mrs. Arthur Mullen, of Omaha, national vice president, was in charge of a panel discussion of settlement activities of the society. A tour of the house and an inspection of handcraft exhibits by boys and girls of the settlement were included on the program.

$10,000 Needed For Boys Club

Only $10,000 is needed to put the Police Boys Club campaign for $86,000 "over the top." Yesterday, Campaign Chairman Mack L. Langford asked 1,400 members of the force and 600 solicitors to raise at least $5 each before May 1.

The total sum needed to care for 14,000 handicapped boys should be collected by the end of this week, Langford stated. Chief of Police Maj. Brown and L. Gordon Leech, campaign director, made extra efforts yesterday to bring the drive for funds to an early conclusion.

4 Injured In Traffic In D. C. Area

Two children, a youth and an elderly woman, were seriously injured in traffic accidents within the Washington area yesterday.

Norman Evers, of Washington, a member of Company 356 of the Civilian Conservation Corps, Garrett Park, Md., was in critical condition last night at Walter Reed Hospital after being struck by an automobile on the Kensington-Garrett Park road.

William H. Gloyd, operator of the car, was held on a charge of reckless driving preferred by Montgomery County Policeman Roscoe Purdum before Justice of the Peace Kelly Magee at Silver Springs.

Evers was struck from behind while walking on the right side of the road toward the camp with a bunkmate, Delman B. Idol. Gloyd took the injured youth to the office of Dr. J. W. Cooch, in Kensington, and from there he was removed to Walter Reed by Lieut. Jack B. Dunn, head of Company 356, CCC.

Evers was being treated for fractures, contusions, abrasions, internal injuries and possible puncture of the lung.

Six-year-old Chatham Melcham, of 1530 A street northeast, was struck by an auto at North Carolina avenue and Fourteenth street northeast. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital suffering from a fractured right leg and arm and head injuries. Driver of the auto, police said, was Samuel Johnson, of 325 Sixteenth street northeast.

A fractured hip and a concussion were sustained by Fannie Chriswell, 79, of 1356 Kenyon street northwest, when she was hit by a streetcar at the 3100 block Fourteenth street northwest. The operator, according to police, was Edgar Reese, 43, of 1529 Ogden street northwest.

John F. Barrett, 5, of 6201 Seventh street northwest, was seriously hurt when he stepped from between parked cars in the 600 block of Rittenhouse street northwest into an auto driven by Robert F. Handley, jr., of 6121 Seventh place northwest. Taken to Walter Reed Hospital, and transferred to Children's Hospital, the child was being treated for facial injuries and a possible fractured skull.

Rainbow Division Dance Group to Be Entertained

Members of the spring dance committee of the District chapter of Rainbow Division of Veterans will be entertained by the dance chairman, Oscar E. Jackson, Wednesday night, at his home, at 2931 Ordway street northwest. Elmer F. Neagle, national president of the organization, has been invited.

Reorganization Bill Pushed By Kennedy

To Confer With King In Effort to Assure Passage This Session

Representative Ambrose Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, said yesterday he will confer with Chairman William H. King, of the Senate District Committee, in an effort to assure enactment of the District reorganization bill before Congress adjourns.

The House District Committee approved the measure after striking out the "little Hatch Act" section, which would have prohibited District employes from engaging in any political activity.

Members explained that the provision was considered not germane to the reorganization bill and was already incorporated in the Hatch Act amendments before the House Judiciary Committee. The section was not defended by members of the commissioners' "kitchen cabinet," who wrote it in the bill.

Although the reorganization bill as approved by the full committee carries few of the drastic reforms recommended by E. O. Griffenhagen & Associates, Representative Kennedy said he believes it would effect greater efficiency and economy in the operation of the District government.

"I believe that the presence of an administrative assistant will enable the Commissioners to keep close check on the activities of the city government and thereby will save the taxpayers money," he said.

Kennedy said he realized that the time is short as the bill cannot be called up in the House before May 13. He said he hoped to obtain support of Senator King in expediting the measure if it is approved by the House.

The District Committee did not discuss local suffrage in connection with the legislation as the subcommittee had agreed to postpone consideration of this issue until after the reorganization measure passes the House.

The Kennedy bill, as now written, retains the District Commissioners at the head of the administrative government but broadens their authority. It sets up 11 departments and authorizes the commissioners to make furher administrative changes.

Among the few innovations in the bill are the establishment of a District civil service system and provision for the District budget to be submitted directly to Congress.

Russian Insults To U. S. Charged By Capt. Gainard

Capt. Joseph Gainard, skipper of the City of Flint when it was seized by German prize crew, told 500 at the University of Maryland last night the treatment accorded to him and his crew by the Russians at Murmansk was an insult to the American government.

"I tried 18 times to get messages through to our Ambassador at Moscow and as far as I know none ever reached him," Capt. Gainard declared.

"When I asked for a boat to go ashore, they said 'you can't have one—and you'd better not use one of your own," the captain said. "For the first time in 30 years," he asserted, "I saw my American government held in all the contempt a Russian mind can possibly conceive."

The skipper of the Baltimore freighter said there were 18 self-interned German ships in the harbor at Murmansk whose crews were permitted to go ashore at their pleasure.

Capt. Gainard's talk was given under auspices of the International Relations Club, a student group.

Aged Man Kills Self in Hospital

A certificate of suicide has been issued last night by Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald following an investigation of the death of George W. Smith, 75, who slashed his throat in Sibley Hospital Monday and died yesterday at Gallinger Hospital.

Smith, who lived at 711 I street southeast, was admitted to Sibley last Friday afternoon for treatment of an internal disorder. He was found in a pool of blood on the floor of a ward about 1:20 a. m. Saturday. Dr. MacDonald said the man was despondent because of ill health.

Underpass' Return to Bill Promised

Senator Overton Favors Tunnels For Dupont And Scott Circles

Restoration of an authorization for the construction of the Scott Circle underpass, stricken from the 1941 District supply bill on a point of order raised in the House, was promised yesterday by Chairman John H. Overton, of the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations.

Senator Overton said he not only favors the building of the underpass next year, but hopes funds may be provided in the near future for an underpass at Dupont Circle.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways, yesterday told the subcommittee that preliminary plans for the Scott Circle underpass place Sixteenth street rather than Massachusetts avenue under the circle.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland asked the Senate subcommittee to restore funds for the purchase of a site for a health center in the Northwest. Additions to bring appropriations up to Budget Bureau estimates were asked for Glenn Dale and Gallinger hospitals.

Because the District Tuberculosis Association has notified the Commissioners that it will no longer be able to make contributions to the Health Department, officials asked for an increase of about $8,500 in the appropriation.

Welfare officials told the subcommittee that the two foster homes proposed to relieve the Children's Receiving Home would be inadequate, and that at least ten homes and two additional employes would be needed. As an alternative, $800 for repairs to the Receiving Home was asked.

Rushing the hearings even faster than did the House subcommittee on District appropriations, Senator Overton said a few citizens will be heard today, beginning at 10 a. m. Only a few department heads remain to be heard.

'This Is Off the Record,' Doctors Told, So—Well, You Read It—

"But remember, this is off the record."

That admonition, so familiar to newsmen, has now become a hair shirt for certain Washington physicians. Witness the following editorial in the April number of the District Medical Society's Annals, which appeared yesterday:

"Officers of the society have on several occasions in recent months discussed the medical situation with public officials. Some of the views expressed by them would astonish the followers of the political faiths which they represent.

"At least two prominent officials in the present Administration have stated their displeasure with the attitude shown by the Government toward medical organizations. They have also admitted confidentially that the mov : by the Administration to arouse public interest in a national health program have in a number of instances been unfair to the medical profession.

"It is too bad that these officials are not in a position to voice their views publicly, that is, if they are sincere in their statements, which those who discussed the situation with them have every reason to believe. Perhaps some day there will not be restrictions upon them that there are now."

NLRB Argues It Is Immune From Lawsuits

The National Labor Relations Board contended in the District Court yesterday that only its final orders are subject to judicial review and that it enjoys generally the same immunity to lawsuits as any other Government agency.

The NLRB asked the court to dismiss an action of the International Longshoremen's Association (A. F. of L.) to prevent certification of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union (C. I. O.) as bargaining representative of several thousand dock workers on the Pacific Coast.

Seal Seeks High Court Tax Opinion

Certiorari Writ On Nonresident Case Will Be Asked Today

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal said last night he would apply today to the Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari in the Sweeney case in which the District Court of Appeals held that Government workers not domiciled here are not subject to the intangible personal property tax.

The same interpretation might hold in the District's new income tax since this tax is based on a person being domiciled here, it was stated.

Meanwhile, Jo V. Morgan, sole member of the District Board of Tax Appeals said yesterday he had before him the first appeal by a District resident for a full refund of payment of the income tax. The appeal was brought by Eugene S. Henning, 930 Randolph street northwest, employed as a junior electrical engineer in the Navy Yard.

Morgan said he had already taken testimony in the case but would not act until the Sweeney case is decided by the Supreme Court. He recalled the similarity between the two cases in that James J. Sweeney, an attorney in the Justice Department, claimed a refund on the intangible tax on the grounds he was a resident of Massachusetts and not the District, although he had lived and worked here for 20 years.

Henning, who seeks a refund of $13.79, also claims he is a resident of Worcester, Mass., and pleaded that he had paid an income tax in that State since three years ago, when he moved here. He told Morgan he was here for an "indefinite" term as a civil service employe, adding he would prefer to work at the Navy Yard in Boston.

Tax Assessor Edward A. Dent, meanwhile, expressed confidence the yield of both individual and corporation income taxes would exceed $3,000,000. He said the returns indicated a yield of $1,480,252 from individuals and $1,328,288 from corporations, for a total of $2,808,540.

The assessor said he still had between 7,000 and 8,000 checks from individuals to count and was confident the $3,000,000 mark would be reached and exceeded. Estimates on the tax, expressed earlier by District officials, were, for the individual, $1,000,000 and for the corporation, $2,200,000.

Although he had no actual count of the number of individuals who had paid their tax under protest, Dent estimated about 10 per cent will seek a refund. He explained the taxpayer has two years within which to file a claim for refund.

Bandit Gets $6, Flees Woman's Cries in 2d Try

A colored bandit who robbed one ice cream store of $6 last night was frightened away empty-handed by a woman clerk in another a few minutes later. Meanwhile a hold-up man netted $12 in a filling station robbery.

Anna Chandler, manager of an ice cream store at 1924 Fourteenth street northwest, told police a colored man entered the store, ordered a small quantity of cream, and thrust his hand in the cash register as she started to make change. She slammed the drawer on his hand, whereupon the bandit pulled a knife and forced her to surrender all available cash.

Using the same technique, a man of the same description put his hand in the cash drawer at an ice cream store at 1625 Seventeenth street northwest. When Marie Dunbar, 26, of 1128 Twenty-fifth street northwest, ran screaming toward the rear of the store the man fled, police said.

D. C. Mother Fears Foul Play As Police Seek Missing Girl, 15

Marion Kerr Unseen Since She Left Home Monday for Movie

Police and The Washington Post were asked last night to aid in the search for Marion Louise Kerr, 15, of 60 Farragut place northwest, missing from her home since 5 p. m. Monday.

Mrs. Abbie Kerr, the girl's mother, called The Post to enlist help, convinced that "Marion has been kidnaped." She said her daughter left home to attend the "Swiss Family Robinson" at the York Theater on Georgia avenue and failed to return.

"She only had 30 cents," said Mrs. Kerr, an employe of the General Accounting Office, "and has never been away from home alone before."

Because Marion had "no boy friends, no dates and seldom went out at night," Mrs. Kerr said she was fearful the girl had met with foul play.

"I want my daughter back unharmed," Mrs. Kerr sobbed over the telephone. "Please help the police find her. . . . I'm sure she is in danger."

Marion, her mother and another sister, Marjorie, 12, had planned a series of trips as soon as the weather permitted outdoor jaunts, and the missing girl was "looking forward" to the outings, Mrs. Kerr declared.

The girl was wearing a blue plaid suit coat, pink welt hat and a long gray tweed coat with red velvet collar. She is blonde with gray eyes, is 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 112 pounds.

'Johnny Apollo' Is Bang-Bang-up Melodrama; Irving Berlin to Be Capital Visitor Monday; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THERE WILL BE NO FALLING ASLEEP or lagging of interest among the pewholders when "Johnny Apollo" comes to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater on Friday. At least, there was none of either among yesterday afternoon's critical audience at the preview screening of this Twentieth Century-Fox picturization of an original story by Samuel G. Engel and Hal Long, adapted to the screen by Philip Dunne and Rowland Brown.

BELL

"Johnny Apollo," in which the stellar roles are played by Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold and Lloyd Nolan—not forgetting Charlie Grapewin, who ought to be up there in the top billing—is rip-roaring melodrama that touches the highest and the lowest reaches of the social scale. It involves millionaires, gangsters and night club gals in a combination that is more or less—mostly more—familiar, but is exceptional in the skill with which it is played. The crimson and bullet-laden piece has been well-nigh perfectly cast from star parts to "bits."

While there are the usual double-crossings, murders, attempted jailbreaks and whatnot in the action, there also are some clever twists of plot that keep the spectators keyed high. Those who enjoy upper-crust and underworld thrill-drama will find this one their deep-dish.

It is confided to me that the original ending of the story of "Johnny Apollo" was not so hot and that Mr. Zanuck was quick to perceive it the first time he looked at the first finished cut of the picture. That is why Edward Arnold was compelled to plane back to the Coast from his recent visit to Washington to make retakes of the final scenes—which now, by the way, are conspicuously okey-doke, if you know what I mean.

Deanna Durbin, in "It's a Date," not only is appearing in her seventh consecutive hit, but that hit is piling up another of her typical long runs on Fifteenth street. "It's a Date" will be held for a third week at R-K-O Keith's.

Time and space both were so short that all was not said that should have been said in yesterday morning's review of the Lunts in Robert E. Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night," which opened Monday night at the National. There should have been some place to observe, for example, that this probably is the best play Mr. Sherwood ever has written; that it seems to this outpost in every respect the superior of the same author's "Idiot's Delight," which also dealt with war and won a Pulitzer Prize. Mr. Sherwood finds a source for all of Europe's present unrest in "Mein Kampf" and the subservience of a once proud nation to the ruthlessness of a megalomaniac he doesn't name and doesn't need to. He seems, at times, to pay his doubtful respects to the United States for being willing to "wash its hands" of the whole sorry mess—and then makes Miranda Valkonen, born in New Bedford, Mass., one of the most heroic characters in his play. If Monday night's 13 curtain calls were not evidence enough, then we shall say flatly that "There Shall Be No Night" is a play every thoughtful American should see—even if he has to stand up through all three acts to see it.

Henry Hiser, present incumbent of the Belasco Theater is all steamed up over "Lights Out in Europe," his next attraction on Lafayette Square. In the May 7 issue of a popular national magazine it is described across two pages of pictures and type as "An authentic picture record of people driven into a war they didn't want—a powerful visual document." It is to be previewed by the drama desks on Monday at 1.

Also on Monday afternoon, Irving Berlin, composer of "Louisiana Purchase," on its way to the National, will be in town to play a few of the tunes for the boys and girls of the press and answer as many of their cockeyed questions as he can, hot off the bat. Little man, you'll have a busy day! In case you had forgotten, Billy Gaxton, Victor Moore, Zorina and Irene Bordoni are the stars of "Louisiana Purchase."

Reverting briefly to Monday night's opening of "There Shall Be No Night," that was Fredric March—nurturing a new mustache—among the guests in the box of Finnish Minister Procope.

The Amateurs Still Are Busy On Our Stages

'Yankee Doodle Boy' Is Among Many Local Productions

By Richard L. Coe.

With Sunday evening's opening performance already a sell-out, Catholic University's Harlequins are polishing up the songs and dances of "Yankee Doodle Boy," their own musical-comedy, based on the life of George M. Cohan, which, when he visited it during its first run last December, prompted the original "Yankee Doodle Boy" to remark that it gave him his "greatest night in the American Theater." The run will continue through the following Friday evening at the Catholic University Theater.

Mr. Cohan, who will be appearing at the National next week in his latest play, "The Return of the Vagabond," is expected to make a return visit on the opening night to this biography tied together with 22 of his own songs.

James Graham, university freshman from Boston, will again have the title role while the supporting cast will remain intact, with Margaret Mary Edmonston, Marian Wolberg and Paul Tisdale completing the Four Cohans. The book is by Walter Kerr, of the university faculty, and Leo Brady, of the student body, who adapted Richard Connell's "Brother Orchid" to the stage last year. All of the male roles will be played by undergraduates, while the feminine parts will be assigned to girls from Trinity, Dunbarton and Immaculata colleges.

Taking time out from his preparations for the Civic Theater's sixth production of the season, "At Mrs. Beam's," scheduled to open at the Wardman Park Theater Monday, May 6, William M. Girvan is continuing his classes in technical design at the Civic's rehearsal rooms, 918 Fourteenth street, each Wednesday afternoon at 5 p. m. These classes are being held for those who would have practical laboratory work to better their understanding of theatrical problems. This is an effort on the part of the community theater to serve other fields than that of acting; it is still possible to join classes which are to extend through the spring.

Ed Lewis is founding a new dramatic group on a cooperative basis and is interested in contacting all young actors, actresses, technicians, writers, directors and producers who might be interested in the venture. His address is 1229 Maryland avenue northeast.

Tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 are the times for Roadside Theater try-outs. Room 200 of the George Washington School of Government, G and Twenty-first streets, is the place. Director Ralph Fowler will cast the entire seventh season of seven plays from former established Roadsiders and those who apply these two evenings. Come prepared to do a scene from a play, either from memory or by reading. Two or more players trying-out in group scenes are also legal with the casting office.

"The Royal Family," the Edna Ferber-George S. Kaufman comedy about that family whose real name is Blythe, will be played Friday and Saturday evenings by the Alexandria Little Theater at the Lyceum Hall in Alexandria. Howard Wentworth is directing and in the cast are Dorothy Wood, Marguerite Barton, Temple Dick, Lucy Hardester, Buel Patch, Nell Childs, Bob Lyle, Helen Todd and Gray Alvord.

On the same evenings, Friday and Saturday, "The Late Christopher Bean" will be presented by The Parish Players at Parish Hall, McLean, Va. Sidney Howard's play will be performed under the direction of Frances Rotter and Ruth Anderson by Mrs. Thomas Goodwin, Ralph Segar, Valerie Preston, Mary Frear, Elizabeth Wegg, Talbot Wegg, Harold Weiler, George O'Dell and Joseph Gray.

AFTER THE SPEECH-MAKING at Jim Farley's testimonial dinner Farley got into a corner with Joe Jacobs, Hymie Caplin and other fight-managers he knew when he was a member of the State Boxing Commission. He heard them compare attendance-records made by the fighters they handle. "My Galento drew 3,000 in St. Joe, Mo.," Jacobs boasted . . . "Joe," Farley beamed, "tell 'em how I drew in St. Joe, at 7:30 in the morning" . . . "Ten thousand, Commissioner," Jacobs replied. "But remember one thing—they paid to see Tony. Yours was for free."

THE EDITORS of the Daily Worker, beset by Government agencies, discovered that nine Federal men were loitering nearby . . . "What'll we do?" one of the editors asked . . . "There's only one thing to do," the other advised. "Let's challenge 'em to a baseball game."

JOHN GUNTHER and Raymond Gram Swing, who have been friends for many years, now are rival commentators. Each broadcasts at 10 p. m. . . . Returned voyagers are telling of a man who fled from Germany to Holland, and then rushed to the first restaurant he could find there. "I didn't mind it when we had to eat cats and dogs," he stated. "I didn't even mind it when we had to eat rats. But when we had to eat ersatz rats—that was my limit" . . . ZAC FREEDMAN, the agent and co-owner of the new mid-town cafe called "Jiggs," toured Harlem Tuesday night in search of a band for his place. At the Elks Rendezvous he discovered just the band he wanted . . . "I'm going to hire you," he told the bandleader, "and maybe some day you'll become another Calloway or Duke Ellington" . . . "We'll work hard," the bandleader vowed . . . "And when you're famous, remember who discovered you," Freedman continued. "Will you remember who discovered you?" . . . "Yes, sir," he was assured. "You discovered me" . . . "Good," said Freedman, preparing the contracts. "What's your name?" "Columbus," the bandleader informed, "Christopher Columbus."

JOHN STRACHEY, who was held at Ellis Island when he tried to come here for a lecture tour, now is writing a book called "Economics of War." Its original title was "Economics of Fascism" . . . Inasmuch as Strachey probably never will return here, this story can be told. He was released, on bail from Ellis Island—but on condition that he refrain from mounting any platform to make public lectures until the final court decision . . . Strachey, however, delivered his message. At a party, he sat at one end of the large room. "Strictly between us," shouted another man, standing on a chair across the room, "and not for anybody else's ears—what do you think? . . . "Strictly between us two," replied Stachey, seated on the sofa, "here 'tis . . ."

HARRY RICHMAN purchased George Hershey's $15,000 speedboat as an anniversary gift for his wife. But Mrs. Richman won't ride in a speedboat, and so Harry decided to sell it . . . The best prospect was Billy Leeds, the Tin-Plate King, who then was negotiating to buy a Paul Prigg speedboat . . . Richman took Leeds and Julio Sanchez for a trial spin in Biscayne Bay. Their boat, traveling at 60 miles an hour, passed the slower boat which Prigg was riding. They teased Prigg by encircling him, letting him pass, and then shooting past him . . . Richman then hit full speed, and his speedboat dived. The windshield broke, and the flying glass cut their faces . . . Prigg took them all into his boat and drove them to Leeds' yacht, the "Moana," which features a private hospital aboard ship . . . When Prigg was about to leave, Leeds told him: "Put your speedboat on board the Moana. You'll get your check in the morning."

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, April 23 (INS).—Broadway's stage door Johnnies will have to find a new object for their affections shortly when Betty Grable, who's been the toast of New York in "Du Barry Was A Lady," heads for the coast to begin her new Twentieth Century-Fox contract. Betty is due here July 1 and will go straight into "Say It With Music." This musical was originally slated as an Irving Berlin production, but I am told now that Kenneth MacGowan will produce and there is some doubt as to whether Berlin will be connected with the film.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Incidentally, with such promising additions to the Twentieth roster as the little Grable, Alan Curtis and Dean Jagger, and with Linda Darnell and Brenda Joyce rising rapidly in public favor, Darryl Zanuck will no longer find it necessary to run his more established champions in every race. Although no one denies Darryl's genius for creating and building new stars, he has been criticised for putting his box office winners into too many pictures. Apparently he feels the criticism is a just one, for he is about to embark on an entirely new policy—from now on Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche and Henry Fonda will make no more than four pictures a year.

If Para lines up any more island romances for Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour and Bob Hope to follow "Road to Singapore," they'll be known as the three stooges of the tropics before long. Just a few days ago they told me Dottie, Bing and Bob were set for "Blue Lagoon" immediately and then by way of making my Monday morning confusing they called up to say that Bob, Bing and Dottie will also team up for "Road to Rio," the latter an original by Sy Bartlett and Don Hartmann. Perhaps the studio can't be blamed for trying to follow up a money-making success, but too many stories along the same lines will get tiresome even with La Lamour's sarongs, Bing's singing and Bob's clowning.

Addison Randall, who's hopped on and off the matrimonial merry-go-round with Louise Stanley so many times we're dizzy just from watching (Imagine how he must feel!) will trade his Stetson for a topper and go "Man About Town" in a Universal picture. Ad, known to his fans as Jack Randall, has one more cowboy epic to do for Monogram and then he's hoping to get out of the saddle for keeps. He's been allowed to select his own leading lady for his last western, "Wild Horse Range," and has chosen Phyllis Ruth, a youngster who has never appeared on the screen.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: The Bing Crosbys may adopt a girl to bring up with their large family of Boy Scouts; Alice Faye and Sandy Cummings tete-a-teting in a corner at Ciro's while Tony Martin stagged it at the bar. Funny how many times Alice and Tony have shown up at the same place without actually meeting face to face; interesting twosomes glimpsed around town: Alan Curtis and Ilona Massey at the Victor Hugo; Marlene Dietrich with Richard Gully at Perrino's Sky Room; Rudy Vallee with Jean Hunter at the Sphinx Club; Kay Francis and Edwin Justice Mayer at the Brown Derby; Greer Garson, an eyeful in a gray and scarlet sports dress, and Anna May Wong, exotic in jade green, at Warren Williams' Sunday swimming party; outstanding event of the weekend: The tennis matches at the Ambassador, with Bill Tilden and Paulette Goddard meeting Lester Stoeffen and Judy Garland for mixed doubles and Tilden and Mickey Rooney teaming against Stoeffen and Rudy Valle for men's doubles. The gals made hits (both literally and figuratively), but Mickey stole the show, rolling his pants to his knees and admonishing Tilden, "Uncle Bill, you'll have to do better than that!"

Bill Orr, who does those marvelous imitations in "Meet the People," Ciroing with Elise Knox and Margaret Roach stepping at the same spot with ork leader Garwood Van; those who've watched Anatole Litvak lunching every day on the Warner lot with Janine Vioson claim claim that Miriam Hopkins' ex has really gone overboard for the "French Ginger Rogers;" Fred Stone, Irvin S. Cobb and Leo Carrillo huddling over plans for new Will Rogers memorial. Highway 66 may be named after the beloved Bill, whose friends are tireless in their efforts to keep his name alive; the town's newest and proudest papa, William Henry, phoning to say that wife Grace Durkin presented him with a 7-pound 5-ounce boy at Good Samaritan Hospital Saturday morning. The young man will be called Duke Michael Henry; Loretta Young and Tom Lewis act as if they mean it.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Role of Carmen Is Star's Dream

Patricia Morison, who zoomed to stardom in her fourth picture, "Untamed," has disclosed she is devoting all of her spare time to preparation for fulfillment of her life's ambition—to play "Carmen" on the screen.

Miss Morrison is studying singing with Maria Marfiotti, who taught Grace Moore and was the late Enrico Caruso's throat doctor at the Metropolitan. She also is studying Spanish and Spanish dances. Her recent several trips to Mexico City were for the purpose of furthering this study, she said, and not because of a heart throb reported there. Patricia is a mezzo-soprano.

In Hollywood

Hollywood, April 23.

Eugenie Leontovitch has been away from the American scene since "20th Century Limited" on Broadway, and now comes back via the movies as the mother in "Four Sons." Hers is the part of mother love and protection set against a background of militarism. I hope it just stays in the background. We had a good laugh, though, when Eugenie told me the main reason she came to Hollywood was to be near her director-husband, Gregory Ratoff. Even since she arrived Greg has been busy directing night shots for "Public Deb. No. 1"—Eugenie works all day in "Four Sons"—so the Ratoffs bow politely as they pass in the driveway—Gregory coming—Eugenie going.

It's too bad every citizen of this country can't hear H. R. Knickerbocker—a Texas boy who took over Dorothy Thompson's job in Germany when she married Sinclair Lewis. The thing I carried away with me the other night was the appalling knowledge that a nation could walk in, like Germany did to Poland, demand that 5,000,000 of them leave their homes, their belongings, put everything in apple pie order, and take with them nothing but the clothes on their backs and provisions for three days, and march to an unproductive part of their country where nothing but death faces them, while 2,000,000 Germans moved into their vacated homes and took over their possessions.

Seasick Wife Wins Actor From Yacht

Dick Powell last week parted with his most prized inanimate possession, his 60-foot power cruiser, Eroica, and for a strange reason.

He sold the boat, he disclosed on the set of "I Want a Divorce," because his wife, Joan Blondell, is not a good sailor, always getting seasick aboard the yacht, and for the further reason that the Powells always do things together.

"I don't like to leave Joan alone at home when I use the boat, and she cannot go sailing with me, so there was nothing to do but sell it. I'm making a picture called 'I Want a Divorce,' but believe you me, I don't want a divorce," explained Powell.

Arab Horses New Hobby for Actor

Robert Young, who has been raising Palomino horses on his Tarzana ranch, is switching to Arabians. He is now hunting for a fine Arabian mare, and plans to breed several of this stock.

Young's decision was inspired by Florian, the Lippizan stallion with which he played in "Florian." Since Lippizans can't be bought for love or money, as only five exist in this country, Young plans to do the next best thing and raise Arabians, one of the ancestors of the imperial Austrian breed.

Dutch Leonard Routed in Fourth as Red Sox Beat Nats, 7-2

Williams, Foxx And Finney Pound Round Trippers; 4th Straight Loss

By Shirley Povich
A Staff Correspondent

Boston, April 23.—Washington's Hitless Wanderers encountered their most distressing defeat of the season today. They were beaten with Dutch Leonard on the mound. They became the first major league victims of Maurice (Mickey) Harris, a Red Sox rookie from Scranton. The final score of the Nats' fourth consecutive beating was 7-2.

Leonard lasted only four innings against the Red Sox. Home runs by Ted Williams and Lou Finney hastened his exit. The Red Sox were dealing largely in home runs today. A bit later in the game Jimmy Foxx lifted home run No. 3 over the left-field wall. The Red Sox homer barrage accounted for five of their seven runs. Carrasquel was the victim of Foxx's homer, which, like Finney's, occurred with a man on base.

Leonard turned a 5-0 deficit over to Alex Carrasquel when he left the game. It went to 7-0 before the Nats managed to score a run—their first in 25 innings against Red Sox pitching.

Some Raw Hurling

It was a raw afternoon in Boston and that adjective best describes also the Washington pitching. It could be applied, moreover, to the Nats' hitting. The Washington athletes achieved seven hits but they were a dismal outfit at bat. Young Harris, a graduate of Scranton in the Eastern League, where he won 19 games last season, befuddled the Nats with his southpaw service.

Eight Nats struck out. Jimmy Wasdell fanned three times in succession. They advanced only one man as far as third base in the first six innings. Cecil Travis and Jimmy Bloodworth, with two hits each, accounted for more than half of the Nats' safe blows.

Ted Williams, darling of the Boston fans, demonstrated why when he banged one of Leonard's pitches far into the rightfield seats with two out in the first inning for his No. 1 homer of the season. From that point it was a breeze for the Red Sox.

Jimmy Bloodworth helped Leonard over a second inning hump when he grabbed Tabor's line drive and converted it into a double play, but Dutch gave up two runs in the third. He pitched a single to weak-hitting Gene DeSautels and then a bit later he tried to slip a fast ball past Lou Finney. That was disastrous. Finney pounded the pitch over Buddy Lewis' head into the newly constructed rightfield bull pen, which is home-run territory.

Ferrell Drops Ball

Leonard was rather blameless in Boston's fourth and fifth runs, which crossed the plate in the fourth inning. He struck out Joe Cronin to start the inning, but his knuckle ball eluded Rick Ferrell and Cronin reached first on the third strike. It was the first of two damaging Washington errors.

Cecil Travis grabbed Bobby Doerr's grounder on the next pitch, and with a double play in sight threw the ball wildly past Bloodworth at second, leaving both runners safe. Travis came up with a brilliant play against Tabor to throw him out at first, but Leonard then pitched a single to DeSautels which scored a run. And when Harris laid a bunt toward the box, Leonard absurdly attempted to start a double play rather than cut off a run at the plate. Doerr scored from third, when Leonard's wide throw to second resulted in only one out.

Carresquel's first act was to walk Cramer in the fifth. He forced Williams to pop up, but Foxx didn't. What Foxx did was lambast a homer 30 feet over the leftfield wall to account for Boston's sixth and seventh runs.

Chubby Dean Beats Yankees Second Time

Philadelphia Hurler Shuts Out Champs, 3-0, With 4 Hits

By the Associated Press

New York, April 23.—Lovill Dean, the Philadelphia Athletics' chubby southpaw, has the world champion New York Yankees' number and it's zero.

He shut them out on four hits today, 3 to 0, for his second verdict of the season over the club everybody figured to be irresistible this season. His first was a ten-inning, 2-to-1 decision at Philadelphia in last Tuesday's American League opener.

In that game he tangled in a pitching duel with Red Ruffing. Today his mound opponent was Bump Hadley and the skirmishing was fierce for eight innings. The A's also were held to four hits, but they scored all of their runs without the benefit of a single safety.

Bob Johnson opened the sixth with a walk, Dick Siebert grounded to Babe Dahlgren, but Frank Crosetti dropped the ball trying for a force at second and both runners were safe. Then Frank Hayes sacrificed both runners ahead and Johnson scored on a long fly by L. Rubeling.

But in the ninth Hadly went to pieces and filled the bases with three passes, one of them purposely after he had wildpitched. Manager Joe McCarthy quickly summoned young Marius Russo, a lefthander, to duty and after striking out Pinchhitter Sam Chapman, Russo forced in two more runs with walks and Spud Chandler had to come in to retire the side.

The A's filled the bases in the third on a hit and two walks and put two more on in the fourth before finally scoring while the Yanks got two on in the second and sixth to no avail.

Finns' War Forces Olympic Cancellation

By the Associated Press

Helsinki, April 23.—The 1940 Olympic games, a football for the world's war lords for three years, finally were canceled definitely today when Finland decided it would be impossible to hold the international competition at Helsinki this summer.

The decision, expected since Europe was plunged into war last September, was made at a joint session of the organizing committee and the permanent Finnish Olympic committee.

Although the partially completed Olympic stadia and buildings, erected at a cost of some $8,000,000, were not damaged by bombs in the recent Russia-Finland conflict, the Finnish officials decided the international crisis made holding of the games impossible. They decided, however, to petition the International Olympic committee for permission to organize the games when European hostilities cease.

There has been some agitation to permit Finland to stage the games, if conditions permit, before 1944 but it would take special action by the International Olympic committee. The 1944 summer games already have been awarded to London and the winter games to Cortina D'Ampezzo, Italy.

The 1940 winter games, scheduled for Garmisch-Partenkirchen, scene of the 1936 games, were canceled by Germany last November.

The decision of the Finnish committees furnished the expected, if disappointing, climax to three years of speculation as to whether and where the contests would be held.

All of that speculation was caused by two of the world's undeclared wars—Japan's war in China, which was costly enough so that Japan's war lords did not feel they could sanction the allotment of funds necessary for putting on the games, and Russia's war with Finland, which left the Finns in no condition to carry out their plans.

Realizing that Finland probably would be unable to hold the games, athletic officials of North and South America have under consideration plans for Pan-American games.

Everett T.K.O. Victim of Mann At Riverside

End Comes in Third As Buck Is Floored Twice in Game Stand

By Al Hailey

A pathetic finish—or what should have been a finish—to the fighting career of a fighter who has little left but a game heart was written last night at Riverside Stadium when Nathan Mann, New Haven's heavyweight championship contender, scored a third-round technical knockout over Buck Everett before 2,000 fans.

The end came after 1 minute, 13 seconds of a third round which saw Buck putting up a desperate battle but ending up on the canvas twice for counts of nine, the battle-scarred tissue over his left eye torn open and spurting blood from Mann's chopping, right-hand punches.

Buck Fought to End

Everett lay on his stomach staring glassily out of glassy eyes and as he tried to make it dizzily to his feet at 10, the battle was halted. Buck made it a battle all the way, however, by staying on top of Mann swinging with both hands. But the outcome was never in doubt after Natie shook him twice in the first with two stinging right hands under the heart.

Everett, a 28-year-old veteran of more than a decade of professional fighting, was glum in the dressing room after the bout. His face bearing the scars of continuous battering, he muttered through puffed lips:

"I don't know just what it was that hurt me most. Maybe the floor flew up and hit me. I wanted to

City College was the second straight victim of Maryland's strong freshman stickmen as Bruce Campbell and Milton Vandenberg paced the Little Terrapins with three goals each.

Duke's defeat of the varsity tennis team was forseen as early as the first two singles matches when

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Boston, April 23.—Henry Armstrong is bored stiff with the prize fight business. He all but said so today in a Boston gymnasium where he is doing public workouts at the behest of Boston promoters in an attempt to stimulate some interest in his bout this week with Paul Junior, a welterweight from Maine.

POVICH

The little colored boy who came out of the California breadlines and won three world championships within 13 months, snorted noisly through 15 minutes of sparring and then talked for publication.

"This is the worst part of it," he said. "It's the drudgery of training. I don't like it. When I lose my last title, I'll quit. I want to rise above the prize fight business."

He wants to go back to work on the book he is writing—his autobiography which incorporates several chapters on the high-pressure of the prize fight industry. He wants to write some more blank verse, too. He fancies himself as a writer. The prize fight business is a means to an end. He has banked enough money to permit him to lure the muse.

We've always regarded Armstrong as something of a paradox. Of his fistic greatness there can be no doubt. In rapid succession he beat the champions in the featherweight, lightweight and welterweight divisions. He was even thinking of venturing into the middleweight class and conceding ten pounds to the men he would meet there. He earned his soubriquet of perpetual motion.

Armstrong's record is liberally sprinkled with knockouts, but we've never gotten a thrill out of his fighting despite his knockout record. Perhaps that is because he doesn't actually knock his opponent out with a sleep-producing punch a la Dempsey and the other great knockout artists of the prize ring. He wears them down and forces them to quit. Armstrong's is an unspectacular type of knockout victory.

He throws more punches than anybody we have ever seen but their effects are more akin to erosion than to explosion. His plan of attack is simple: Keep punching, keep boring in until the other guy is weak from the pace, then claim him. In the process, when his opponent is fresh, Armstrong knows he has to take it, but he has always been willing to do that. There never has been any question of his courage.

With such as Lew Ambers he had trouble because Ambers was a jumping jack, content to pot shot at Armstrong and too smart to stand up and fight from bell to bell. Ambers was the better boxer, but Armstrong never laid claim to much boxing ability. He figured, rightly, that with his boundless energy, there were precious few men who could stand up to him.

The man he is fighting up here on Friday night, Paul Junior, is tough. That suits Armstrong nicely. He loves to fight the tough ones. That means they'll try to stand up to him, and no living man of his approximate weight can do that. Paul Junior will get knocked out Friday night, but it will not be thrilling. Armstrong will simply render him weak from incessant tapping and a humane referee will step in to save the Canadian from further punishment.

Armstrong gave up the featherweigh title because, to tell the truth about it, he doesn't like the fight business. He rebelled at the constant gymnasium and road work that would have kept his weight down to the 126-pound limit. When he lost the 135-pound title to Ambers, he didn't mind much, either. The lightweight crown meant more training drudgery to the little Negro who wanted time to read and to compose.

And when he loses the welterweight crown, as he surely must some day, that will be all right with Armstrong, too. He became a prize fighter merely because of necessity and then discovered that he was abnormally gifted in the art of modified mayhem. But after he won his first title, he suddenly developed an apathy toward the business. It didn't appeal to him.

Evans and Steiner Homer in Succession; Presidents Suffer 2d Whitewashing

Looking every inch the champ, and as much as ever like the "Gas House Gang" of interhigh baseball, Central High launched its 1940 series action yesterday with a 12-0 swamping of Woodrow Wilson.

Less than 300 chilled fans sat in the stands at the losers' new stadium to see Bill Fisher, the Vikings' prospect for the big leagues, fan a total of 15 hopeful Wilson batsmen, giving up only three hits and a single base on balls in the process.

It was the second loss for Coach Carl Heintel's charges, their previous start having resulted in a 2-0 shutout at the hands of Tech. Nino Briscuso, the lanky right-hander who hurled the full nine innings against Tech, was blasted from the mound with one out in the fourth and 10 of the winner's 12 runs charged against him.

Accountable for Briscuso's retirement from the mound, as much as the nine hits he had given up, were the pair of homers slammed by "Stuffy" Evans and Benny Steiner in succession. Evans led the way, scoring Zello Lagos, who had singled in front of him. Then Steiner's powerful blow, the longest of the two, sent the classy shortstop around the bases all alone.

Eastern Defeats Tech Nine, 6-3

Chief Guyon's Eastern diamonders served notice to the other high nines that his club may well be reckoned as the team to beat for the interhigh crown by downing Tech, 6 to 3, yesterday at the Eastern field.

The Lincoln Parkers combined two straight singles, a wild throw, a triple, and a homer for five runs in the fourth inning.

The big blow was provided by Tom Nutwell's triple with two mates on base which put Eastern in front, 3 to 2.

Tech's punch was supplied by Rightfielder Hollidge in the second inning, when he caught one of Erhard't fast ones and slammed it for a home run in deep rightcenter, scoring Keithley, who had walked ahead of him.

Western High Wins

Western High's baseball team made a successful debut in the interhigh series yesterday, defeating Roosevelt, 6 to 5, in a thrilling ten-inning game at Western stadium.

A costly wild throw by Frank Ciango, Roosevelt shortstop, in the tenth inning allowed Ted Bright to score from second with the winning run.

Barham Star, Tech Track Team Scores

Alexandria, April 23.—One of the finest individual track performances seen on Hoxton Field in recent years was contributed by McKinley Tech's Ed Barham this afternoon, as the Manual Trainers came up with animpressive 88-39 dual meet victory over Episcopal High School. It was the visitors' second victory in as many weeks over an Alexandria scholastic team. They drubbed George Washington High by a convincing margin here last week.

Barham, who scored 18 points against G. W. High in his first appearance of the season, bettered his mark today by pacing his team with a 23-point total. Entered in five events, he came through with four first places and one second, topping his afternoon's performance with a 6 foot 2¼ leap in the high jump.

Episcopal scored only three first places in the 14 events, and two were credited to the veteran Billy Willis. The latter won both the 100 and 220 yard dashes, while Lee and Semmes accounted for the Maroons' other victory when they tied for first in the pole vault at 10 feet.

Maryland Shuts Out Randolph-Macon, 5-0

Southpaw Blanks Randolph-Macon; Pedigo Hurls Well but Is Hurt by Mates' Errors; Victory Gives Maryland Even Break on Trip

By the Associated Press

Ashland, Va., April 23.—Earl Springer, University of Maryland southpaw, shut out the Randolph-Macon baseball team with only three hits today, to give the Terps a 5-0 victory. The win gave the Terps an even break on their Virginia trip. Yesterday they lost to William and Mary, 2-1.

The losing pitcher, Henry Pedigo, was in hot water most of the game because of errors made by his teammates. He struck out nine men.

Three Aces Made On Temporary 8th At RockCreekPark

The temporary cup on the eighth hole of B course at Rock Creek caught three more balls on the roll for aces yesterday, Jack Sinclair, Jesie Cook and C. M. Bloodgood hitting tee shots in the bucket-like cup.

Sinclair's shot helped him play the course in 63, four under par. Ross Smith, Joe Murray and Al Miller were playing partners.

Mrs. Nick Altrock and A. E. Johnson witnessed Miss Cook's ace while Bloodgood, who scored 41 for the round, was playing with R. Goodwin, M. E. J. Hodges and H. L. Landolt.

Mt. Rainier Nine Defeats Devitt, 10-4

Mount Rainier's Billy Peek gave the Devitt Prep nine very few good peeks at his high, hard ball yesterday as his mates pounded out a 10-4 victory, their second straight, on their home diamond. Only three safeties were registered off the young speedster in the seven-inning battle.

One run in the second inning started Mount Rainier on its way, three more in the fourth helped out and the big inning was the fifth in which five tallies came over. For good measure a single run was added in the sixth. Three of Devitt's markers came in the fifth and the other in the seventh.

N. B. A. Ready to Recognize Scalzo as Champ

The world may want for peace and brotherly love, but not for featherweight boxing champions. The National Boxing Association saw to that yesterday when it announced it was ready to recognize a third champion, Petey Scalzo.

This leaves two minority faction champions in the field, Joey Archibald, the choice of New York and Maryland, and Jimmy Perrin, the favorite of New Orleans, La.

Both Perrin and Archibald risk their "titles" this month—Archibald May 20 in Baltimore with Harry Jecra, and Perrin May 8 in New Orleans with Irish Bobby Ruffin, of New York.

The N. B. A. yesterday announced votes from some 40 affiliated States indicated a heavy majority in favor of recognizing New York's Scalzo as champion.

"If and when Scalzo is named champion it will be only after he has signed an agreement to defend the title at once against leading contenders named by the N. B. A. and to defend it again in 90 days, both the first and second bouts to be on a percentage basis so the featherweight picture will not again be marred by demands for exorbitant guarantees," the association's announcement stated.

The N. B. A. stripped Archibald of his crown when attempts to match him with Scalzo failed. Subsequent attempts for a Scalzo-Perrin match also failed.

Jeffra, Perrin and Venezuela's Simon Chavez will be given a "final chance" to agree to a Scalzo match, and if refusals again are forthcoming it's the N. B. A. championship for Petey, it was said.

In its initial effort of the season, St. Albans tennis team defeated Tech yesterday, 5-2, on the Columbia Country Club courts. The Saints chose to forfeit the final doubles, Barton and Wathen getting the nod over Quiggley and Moses.

Raise Up Romps Home in Press Feature at Havre de Grace

'Hunch' Bet Pays $17.10 Before 8,000

Glorious Time Second; Bright View Third; Sure Touch Pays $56 in Fourth

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Havre de Grace, Md., April 23.—Today's feature race was named the Maryland Press Association Purse in honor of a group of newspapermen who visited the nearby Aberdeen Proving Grounds for an exhibition of aircraft, parachutes and the like. This afternoon they participated in the sport here. The hunch in the day's big race was Raise Up, a son of Ariel and Parsol. Only a few of the scribes bet the 3-year-old filly, and she proved the best under the conditions, winning by five lengths over excellent company.

Glorious Time, owned by M. M. Morin, was second at the end of the 6 furlongs, and Mrs. H. W. Jackson's Bright View was third. Among others, Raise Up left in her wake the expensive Miss Ferdinand, Sally Pas By and Top Tier. The crowd of 8,000 was only luke warm toward Raise Up and Jockey P. Milligan, and the combination paid a $17.30 mutuel.

The sun, a novelty at the meeting, put in an afternoon of hard work and the track was drying out, although termed slow. Raise Up was clocked in 1:14 and she finished along the rail in the heaviest going.

Glorious Time began as if she was going to gallop along to an easy victory. She opened a two-length lead without effort and on the swing for the stretch she was going nicely. Raise Up, however, always was within striking distance. Milligan waited until the two were straightened out for the final drive and then went to work. Raise Up responded willingly to his urging and the race ceased to be a contest.

The winner performed in the black, red and white of the Tower Stable owned by John E. Clark, of Miami Beach, Fla. The owner, who came up to see his Royal Man perform in last Saturday's Chesapeake Stakes, saw the action.

Favorite players took a lacing in the early races. H. G. Bedwell's Hy-Happy, victor of the first race, was the best played of the winners and paid an $8.60 mutuel while scoring by a neck over Pete's Prince. Long Lane was third in the field of eight juveniles. Hy-Happy set the stage for a $33.90 pay-off in the daily double.

The second race was not a contest. Frank Garrett saddled his Pimlico Lady, and the filly won by eight lengths in a common gallop. Knitetta and Furr Buckle were most energetic of the others and finished in second and third positions in the field of maiden 3-year-olds. The winner paid $12.20.

H. L. Straus, the man who controls the totalizators, saw his La Scala win the third race in a driving finish. The daughter of The Scout turned on the speed in the stretch and wore down Circus Wings, a longshot which lasted to be second ahead of Attracting. La Scala paid $11.60.

Sure Touch, a gelding which has been running at longer distances, surprised the talent in the fourth race and paid $56.10. Grand Duke faded along the rail and finished second in the six-furlong sprint. Miss Fix It closed fast to be third.

Horses to Watch At Havre de Grace

ZAVIN—This one was forced to race on the inside last out. Should leave the maiden ranks at this meet.

CHAUCERIAN—This youngster had all the worst of racing luck in that last start. Will reach the winner's circle before long.

PETIT JEAN—Was jogging throughout in her winning effort. She is capable of beating better horses.

HARD WAY—Appeared to have been best while finishing second to a stablemate, Ringle. Will take the measure of a good field.

Dear Al:

I had a long talk with Sonny Workman yesterday. The Washington jockey, with his lovely wife, was getting a little sunshine before reporting to the jocky's room for his day's work. I might qualify that "day's work,' because he already had worked horses for Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt at Pimlico early in the morning. Workman had just received a phone call from Trainer Tony Pellsteri and they came to terms on his services to ride Andy K. Workman is going to New York to ride the Millsdale Stable colt in the Wood Memorial on Saturday. Sonny will replace Ralph Neves, who had the mount in the Chesapeake Stakes here last Saturday when Andy K. lost his chance by running out at the turns. I asked Workman to, in the event that Andy K. made a good showing in the Wood, he would have the mount in the Kentucky Derby a week from the coming Saturday. Sonny reminded me that the Derby comes on the same day as the Pimlico Oaks. The Vanderbilt stable is counting on Now What to run in the Oaks. Workman as the stable's contract rider, probably would have to take that mount. The rider, who won the Preakness with Victorian when the Whitney colt nosed out E. B. McLean's Toro, would like to get in the Derby. He has never won a Derby. Workman is feeling good now he says. He appeared weak last week from getting down to weight but has regained his strength now and says he can go from this point on. He said that Vanderbilt's Impound, which had been training well, went lame in a workout at the farm yesterday.

In answer to inquiry: Sun Egret ran second in the Bowie Memorial on April 3 and paid $4.30 to place and $3.70 to show. A new rule regarding the starting gate went into effect today. Refunds will not be made in the future. Here's the rule, which is self-explanatory and was printed on the program yesterday for the first time. Quote: "If a horse (or horses) is prevented from racing because of the failure of the stall doors of the starting gate to open, it shall be declared 'no start' and the horse (or horses) recalled to start again. The ruling will be indicated by the recall flag which shall not be dropped; a klaxon-horn shall be sounded and an announcement shall be made over the public address system. All bets stand, the 'tote' windows not being opened until the next programed race."

Cadets Break 3-3 Tie In Fifth and Go On To Victory, Winning Their First Game

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Va., April 23.—Virginia Military Institute won its first baseball game in four starts today by downing George Washington, 6 to 3, in a steady drizzle.

The Cadets broke a 3-3 count in the fifth inning by scoring two runs on three bases on balls and a pair of fielders' choices. They added a run in the seventh by Leech's single which scored Mitchell.

A double by Garber, Colonial third baseman, scored Urick and Redinger in the third. It was one of the three hits he made during the game.

In the V. M. I. half of the third, Leech got on by an error, Spessard and Carney walked, and Heely's single sent in two runs. Carney later tallied on a passed ball.

Anacostia High nine got its first taste of schoolboy competition yesterday when it eked out a 5-4 victory over Washington-Lee High in an 11-inning battle.

Taking a 4-2 edge in the fifth inning, Anacostia saw the Little Generals tie the score in the eighth. Three innings later the knot was broken when W.-L.'s Pitcher Clements walked three men and Bob Nolte singled to deep center.

win this one. Maybe I'm back where I started from now. Anyway I did the best I could."

Everett received a tremendous ovation from the crowd as he left the ring after a game stand, though badly outclassed.

The paying customers, about 1,500, contributed $1,498.46 at the gates. Buck weighed a scant 187; Mann, 188.

In the eight-round semifinal, Washington's Maynard Daniels, 193½, knocked out Gunboat Miller, of New York, in 2 minutes 15 seconds of the fifth round. It started out as a slugfest, but settled down to target practice for Maynard. A right over the heart finished the 6-foot-4, 191-pounder after he had been knocked down three times.

Sammy Magro, Birmingham schoolboy welterweight, came up with the only decision of the night—an eight-round verdict over New York's Girard Delia. Delia was down twice in the fifth and was saved by the bell the second time.

The four-round openers produced a pair of technical knockouts—both in the third round. Wildcat O'Hara, 178, of Washington, was cut down by Jimmy Brock, 170, of New York, in 1 minute 20 seconds. Buck Welch, Cumberland welter, stopped Brooks Bowen, of Richmond, midway of the third.

Purple Makes Good Use of Eight Hits; Errors Hurt Losers

Making eight hits good for 10 runs, Gonzaga bounced back from a first-game loss to Devitt yesterday to defeat Falmouth (Va.) High, 10-7, in a seven-inning game on the South Ellipse.

Joe O'Lone started for the Purple, held the opposition fairly safe for five innings with eight hits and four runs, but was necessarily relieved by Freddy Rice in the sixth with the bases loaded and nobody out. Rice was touched for Falmouth's three runs in the inning but put the invaders down in order in the final frame.

Doubles by Walsh and Schombert sparked Gonzaga's scoring. Walsh's coming in the third to score two men and Schombert's in the first to send in three of the Purple's four runs in the inning. Gallahan went the distance for the losers, giving up only eight safeties.

Rams Defeat Hoyas in Hurling Duel, 5 to 3

Gomez Hits Double, Wins For Fordham

Georgetown's Hopes Of Undefeated Season Blasted by New York Team; Powers Bows

By Jack Munhall

Manny Gomez, Fordham's mighty midget, yesterday ended Georgetown's hopes for an undefeated baseball season by doubling home two runs in the ninth inning as the Rams captured a splendid pitching duel on the Hilltop Field, 4-3

With the score tied at 3-3, two outs and the runners on second and third, the 5-foot 2-inch shortstop slammed a man-sized two-base hit over Joe McFadden's head in left field to decide a close mound battle between Fordham's veteran Gene Bowe and Georgetown's junior Vinnie Powers.

It was the Hoyas' first loss in five games and the Rams' fourth victory against one loss and one tie. Hailed as Eastern champions last year when they won 18 games and dropped only three, the Rams this season have beaten Princeton, Columbia and St. Peter's and tied Seton Hall, 2-2, in a 10-inning affair.

Though the loss was a bitter one for Powers who displayed some of the finest form of his career in silencing the bombastic Fordham bats for most of the well played contest, it was a well deserved victory for the cool, precise working Bowe.

Off to a bad start when the Hoyas scored single runs in the first and second innings, Bowe settled down, scattered five hits over the last seven stanzas and turned back the enemy without trouble except in the sixth when Georgetown picked up its third and final tally.

Powers, mixing a fast ball and a dipsy curve, allowed only one hit in the first three innings and fanned the entire side in the second but he weakened badly in the eighth when only a great fielding play by Third Baseman Lou Ghecas saved him plenty of grief. With the bases loaded and Powers' control obviously shaky, Ghecas raced 50 feet, the last 20 up a steep dirt hill, to make a diving catch of Jim Blumenstock's foul fly along the third base line and retire the side.

But the handwriting was on the wall for the tiring Powers, and he promptly got himself into hot water in the ninth, when John Murphy, fanned on his three previous appearances at the plate, tripled with one out.

Pirates Score Twice in 9th, Beat Cubs, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, April 23.—The Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind today in a ninth inning rally to score two runs and beat Chicago 3 to 2 for their third consecutive victory.

With the bases loaded in the ninth Pinch-hitter Paul Waner rapped out a clean single scoring Arky Vaughan and Deb Garms. The play at the plate on Garms was close and the Cubs protested vigorously but to no avail.

"I was scared to double, not wanting to drive them to four diamonds, but my partner didn't seem to worry about that.

"I opened the ace of spades. Figuring that South must have had the jack guarded three times for his bid, I nevertheless continued with the king, queen and nine. I had almost a sure heart entry to run my other spades. Well, South took the fourth spade. Dummy had discarded four clubs and East had thrown the ten and the small spade (the play of the ten is absolutely necessary, of course), and a heart and a club.

"George now led the ten of hearts and it was passed to East's jack. East returned his last heart instead of a club, which would have knocked out dummy's ace.

"George played small, and so did I. The nine in dummy won, and George now had the entries necessay to finesse the diamonds twice and to cash the established diamonds. He made three no trump, doubled, winning five diamonds, two hearts and the ace of clubs, besides the jack of spades.

"I contend, and can't find much unanimity of opinion on the subjected, that my defense was proper. The best defense is to shift to the king of clubs after winning the ace of spades, but that is definitely double-dummyish, and most of us don't go around making Deschapelles coups at the second trick! Of course if I put up the king of hearts on my partner's lead of the suit, forcing the ace, South is blocked from dummy. The queen is only heart left in his hand. I can see seven hearts between myself and dummy. My partner has shown three of them. George must have three for his no-trump bid, and that makes thirteen. He has played his ten and has followed small on this lead. Therefore, his only remaining heart is the queen. If I played the king, he must play the ace, and he is blocked from dummy in the heart suit.

"That play kills the extra entry he needs for the diamonds. But it was so late at night, and I was awfully tired."

Western and Bethesda Win In Schoolboy Golf Matches

Gonzaga Blanked, 9-0, by Marylanders; Raiders Beat Champion Roosevelt, 5-4

Defending champions batted .500 in the two sections of the Schoolboy Golf League yesterday, Bethesda blanking Gonzaga, 9-0, to regain the lead in the Metropolitan Section, while Roosevelt's interhigh champions lost to Western, 5-4, at Manor.

Gonzaga, leading the Met section with two victories, lost every point to the Bethesdans in a mild upset.

George Vass, of Western, was beaten by Myers, of Roosevelt, in the No. 1 match of the interhigh feature, but the last half of the Western team came through for the victory.

Earle Skinker was the only one over par at Army and Navy as Wilson defeated Central, 5-4, while Blair climbed two notches out of the cellar in the Met loop by blanking Devitt, 9-0, at Columbia. Buddy Clark was 79 for the Blairites.

Wilson now leads the interhigh play with three straight victories while Western is one match back. Roosevelt is apparently out of the running as far as a title defense is concerned as the defeat was their second.

The private and suburban schools are staging a closer race, with Bethesda, Georgetown Prep, Bladensburg and Gonzaga still in the running, with one defeat each. Bethesda has won four matches, for a half-game lead over Bladensburg.

Street's Nerves Quiet Down as Attention Switches to Domestic Affairs, Bringing Small Gains, More Assurance to Trading

New York, April 23.—An average gain of about a quarter point in moderate trading on the stock exchange today indicated that Wall Street's nerves have quited down and that news of domestic affairs is being granted some of the attention which previously had been reserved for the European war.

Group movements, rather than general activity were centered in those issues which are tied by fact or rumor to buying by the belligerents.

Leadership today was centered in the steels. Rumors of foreign inquiries and better news on the home front were responsible. Bethlehem was the day's most active stock, jumping 3⅜ to a new high for the year. United States Steel was up 1⅜, Youngstown common and preferred 1⅝ and 1, the Republic issues ⅝ and 2½, the Crucible issues more than a point each and National a fraction.

Paper Stocks Get a Rest

The volatile paper stocks were given more of a rest than they have had for the last few weeks, but the majority turned in fractional gains and several were at new 1940 tops. Rubbers were featured by a break of 2⅜ points in United States Rubber preferred. Air transport issues continued strong, led by American Airlines, up 2.

The general tenor of business news is favorable, although there was disappointment over the slight drop in steel operations for this week.

Politics is becoming a more dominant influence on trading sentiment as the time approaches for the national conventions. The President's plan to make a swing around the country, while announced as nonpolitical, is seen by many in the Street as a third-term bid.

Firmness Rules Bonds

Firmness prevailed in nearly all sections of the domestic and foreign bond list in today's trading. United States Government issues were again in demand, with the gains scored ranging upward of 5-32 point at the close of dealings over the counter.

Strength was displayed by Belgian, Italian and Japanese issues. Australian government issues were mixed. With the Allies apparently enjoying a measure of success in Norway, obligations of the Norwegian government rallied upward of 5 points.

Norfolk Line To Stagger Board Places

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., April 23.—The Norfolk & Western Railway changed its charter "to effect staggering of terms in the office of its board of directors" today.

It was the first change in the charter of the railway since the General Assembly granted it a license on January 15, 1896. To make the change, the railway had to pay the State Corporation Commission $4,800, because the law provides that a company which alters its charter must pay the difference between the fee originally paid and the amount it would have to pay under present law if it got a new charter.

The railway paid a $200 fee in 1896. It would have been assessed $5,000 if it had obtained a new charter today.

The change will enable the corporation to classify its board of directors according to duration of term in office, and so effect "staggered" terms. W. J. Jenks, president of the railway, petitioned the commission for the charter amendment, which was granted today.

Foreign Markets

London, April 23 (AP).—The stock market improved today despite unwillingness of traders to open new commitments pending the budget message, due after the close. British government bonds advanced around ⅛ points, and most foreign loans moved up. Kaffirs were again supported and coppers and other base metals found a firm footing. Industrial leaders, where changed, inclined higher. Oils slanted forward and domestic rails added an average of around ¼ point.

Paris—Announcement of British successes in Norway cheered bourse traders today and prices held firm throughout. Domestic equities outstripped foreign issues, with gains ranging to around 7 per cent. Rentes advanced 15 to 85 centimes.

Amsterdam—A pessimistic view of possible extension of the war to Scandinavia depressed bourse prices. Domestic issues showed the widest declines while American shares showed only fractional losses.

Liverpool—Cotton futures closed unchanged to 2 points higher today. Traders view current prices as reasonable in view of war complications, and little opposition developed to market stability.

Credit Men Expect Gains In Business

Cyril Upham to Speak To Safe Depoit Unit Of Bankers Association

By Thomas M. Cahill.

A more optimistic feeling regarding the business outlook is reflected in the latest report received by the Washington Association of Credit Men from headquarters of the national organization. Executive Manager Henry H. Heimann, of the National Association of Credit Men, states that action of United States Steel Corporation in declaring a dividend on the common stock gave evidence of faith in the future of business this year and helped in establishment of confidence. A more conservative trend in public affairs is another favorable sign.

Mr. Heimann concludes, "The average businessman with whom I have recently come in contact has impressed me as having reached two conclusions. First, he realizes he must spend more time worrying about his business and less about business regulations, political issues, high taxation and other business barriers. Second, he senses that less time spent worrying about these matters means he can actually work harder to help check the adverse factors."

Construction Advances

Accelerated construction during January through March credited the Washington metropolitan area with a 10 per cent gain over the first quarter, a year ago, dollar value of the improvement being $2,300,000. Dodge reports emphasized in the monthly summary that while residential building and engineering construction created a highly favorable situation here average decreases developed in all classifications throughout the greater part of the country.

A grouping of all types of building in the local metropolitan area, including the District of Columbia, Arlington and Fairfax counties, Va.; Montgomery and Prince Georges counties, Md., reveals that contracts awarded for work and materials during the first three months advanced to $27,080,000 in the 10 per cent rise from last year's corresponding $24,701,000.

Largest local area volume was found under the nonresidential classification, contract total for the quarter being $12,948,000. This is 90 per cent above the level at the same point of 1939, when the figure was $6,792,000. In 1938, the corresponding figure was $3,302,000. An average decrease of 22 per cent in nonresidential building contracts was found in the larger 38 States area.

Residential building contracts in and around Washington during the quarter were valued at $12,012,000 this year. Residential work in the 37 States receded an average of 3.5 per cent under last year's first-quarter total.

Engineering construction increased during the three-months period. The January-through-March total was $2,120,000. Last year it was $1,018,000.

C. & O. Elects 14 Directors, 3 for Young

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., April 23.—Stockholders of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Co. elected 14 directors at a meeting here today, acting on a slate that included three new names.

The three new members were named in what apparently was a compromise between Robert R. Young, chairman of the Alleghany Corporation, which has nominal control of 1,789,199 shares of C & O. stock, and a group of directors with whom Young has differed.

Additions to the board were James G. Blaine, president of the Marine Midland Trust Co. of New York; Harvey D. Gibson, of New York, president of the Manufacturers' Trust Co., and Harry C. Thompson, of New York, vice president of the Continenttal Bank & Trust Co.

Eleven of the directors, including the three new ones, were named by the common stockholders and the others were elected by holders of preference stock, series A. A total of 4,875,380 shares of common stock was represented.

The members of the board reelected were:

By common stockholders—Earl Bailie, New York; Frank B. Bernard, Muncie, Ind.; George D. Brooke, C. & O. president, Cleveland; J. L. Dickinson, Charleston, W. Va.; H. B. Erminger, jr., Chicago; Ralph C. Gifford, Louisville; J. B. Hollister, Cincinnati, and Robert R. Young, Newport, R. I.

By preference stockholders—John M. Miller, jr., chairma nof the board o fthe First and Merchant Bank of Richmond; Joseph A. Dart, president of the Dart Tobacco Co. of Richmond, and Homer L. Ferguson, of Newport News, Va., president of the Newport News Shipbuilding & Drydock Co.

Cotton Steady In Narrow Range, Closes 1 to 4 Up

New York, April 23 (AP).—The cotton futures market concentrated on evening up operations in the May contract today and prices held to a fairly straight course. The final range was 1 to 4 points higher.

Distant deliveries made the best showing in view of mounting apprehension over crop prospects after recent freezing weather which necessitated replanting in many areas. Foreign markets offered little leadership.

Range follows:

Cottonseed oil

Cottonseed oil futures swayed easily with small orders today and closed a narrow session 2 points lower to 1 higher. Slight setbacks immediately brought out speculative support attracted by steadiness in lard and strength in hogs. Consumer demand for refined oil, however, slackened to a hand to mouth basis. Sales totaled 113 lots; May, 6.95; July, *7.02; September, 7.10; October, 7.12. Crude oil was quoted nominally at 6 cents a pound in the Southeast and valley and 5¾ to 5⅞ in Texas.

Credit Holds Key to War Boom in U. S.

Agitation Increases To Relax Cash-Carry Policy to Aid Trade

New York, April 23.—A war boom in this country hinges on one big factor, according to the Financial World, which points out that, though it has been nearly eight months since Europe became embroiled in warfare, the effect of war purchases upon the American economy has been relatively small with the exception of a few industries such as the aircraft manufacturing industry.

"It is no exaggeration to state that this country's 'cash-on-the-barrel-head' policy has been principally responsible," says the magazine in its Wednesday issue. "Had the Allies been able to obtain credits, their purchases would have been substantially greater.

"Agitation in favor of relaxation of credit restrictions is growing, particularly among the farmers, who have been keenly disappointed at the lack of export demand for their products. Several plans have already been advanced for establishing credits through devices which would not violate the letter of the law.

"Although nothing is likely to be done for political reasons until Congress adjourns, it would not be surprising if a first step toward extension of credit should be taken soon thereafter. If this momentous decision should be made," concludes the publication, "it could well be accepted as the signal for the beginning of a major war boom in the United States."

Garfinckel Seeks Exchange Listing

A registration statement was filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday by Julius Garfinckel & Co., Inc., applying for listing of the recently issued common and preferred stock of the corporation on the Washington Stock Exchange.

A large number of local investors purchased the shares which were offered to the public several months ago. There are outstanding 110,010 shares of common stock and $1,250,000 par value of 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred.

Sundlun, president of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, was elected national councilor to represent the association at the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce. John J. Hasley was elected alternate councilor; Mack Langford, delegate, and Theodore D. Sloat, alternate delegate.

Midgley Reelected

Thomas Midgley, jr., vice president of the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, has been reelected chairman of the board of directors of the American Chemical Society. Dr. Charles L. Parsons, of Washington, is secretary.

Listen! with Slocum

Although a slightly erratic beast named Andy K. has earned a bit of my feeble financial support in the coming Kentucky Derby I am now a Dit rooter.

The reason for this sudden affection for Dit can be found in a release from the Columbia Broadcasting System publicity galleys claiming Dit as Ted Husing's choice to win the Derby.

Back in 1938 I was sitting in Husing's office and Theodore stopped talking about his favorite subject long enough to ask me if I had $5. Always cagey, I answered quickly, "Yes and no, why?"

"Well," said Mr. Husing, dreamily, "if you have, bet it in the winter book on a horse named Lawrin. I like him exceedingly well."

Came the Derby and Mr. Husing's description of same. As always, America's most complete sports announcer, was cool, calm, and collected at the start and before the horses were in action he had sketched one of those grand word pictures of the scene that only he can paint.

Came the race and came a driving finish with Lawrin and Dauber battling it out. The faintly sedate Husing ceased his usual academic approach to air reporting and turned into a coast-to-coast rooter and he was absolutely wonderful listening. He described the scene below and for a while I thought his little heart would break, then Lawrin went out in front and won by a length. Husing was always coherent but slightly loud as he finished up his day's work at the microphone. So if Dit's up there he should be well worth listening to a week from Saturday.

LEAP YEAR LADY by ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY

Smoky O'Toole, our Leap Year Lady, married Tex Stacy because Karl Hetrick, the son of the O'Tooles' old neighbor, had jilted her and married Dagne Olsen. After the shock of hearing the news, Smoky had decided in a conference with Clancy O'Toole, her father, to try to get a job dancing. And so, tryouts proved successful, and Smoky obtained a job in the chorus of a new Broadway musical show. Tex Stacy was a cowboy singer with the show and on the night of the opening of the show, Smoky suggested to him that he marry her. She did not tell Clancy until afterward, but he was sympathetic and understanding about it. The newspapers picked up the story and so there was the inevitable publicity the following day even before Tex and Smoky started for the theater.

CHAPTER 16

IT WAS 11 O'CLOCK. For a long time Clancy had been lying on the bed in his room staring at the Hetrick house plunged in darkness.

Since Karl's marriage to Dagne Olsen it had been a house almost without light. Early in the evening there would be signs of life downstairs. Then, for only a short while, a light would appear in the upstairs bedroom. There was an air of tragic mystery about the place since Mrs. Hetrick had gone away and Clancy felt certain it was not a house of happiness.

Why should a young bride shut herself up, never to be seen again after her marriage and her groom come and go like a shadow? So far as Clancy knew, no one had visited the Hetricks since Karl brought Dagne there to live. Not even the girl's own father. Clancy was not given to spying, but often out of a worried curiosity he lay staring at the place next door. Its silence depressed him.

Now he lay thinking of Smoky and Tex and trying to make up his mind what to do. He didn't believe he should be with them. If they were to make a success of their marriage, they should be left to themselves to work it out. And yet, feeling certain Shamrock had not married Tex because she loved him, her father wondered if she would not be better off under his influence.

Clancy groaned in agony when the pain in his back seemed unbearable and the heaviness of his heart was like a stone in his chest. What use was he in the world now? He was a burden to Shamrock and her husband and never again would he be able to work. A man not yet in his fifties, white-haired, broken in health. The fire department had been his life, and when the bells clanged and he heard the trucks leaving the station he felt he could no longer bear the loneliness of being idle.

Staring at the Hetrick house Clancy was lost in memories as he lay on his bed in the dark. When he saw the first faint light that flared against the window of the upstairs bedroom next door he thought it was his imagination.

But when the dull flare burst brilliantly, Clancy raised up swiftly. Automatically he reached for his bedroom slippers, still looking at the window to make sure his imagination was not playing tricks.

In his pajamas and heavy bathrobe and exerting all his strength Clancy made his way through the kitchen and opened the door. By the time he reached the porch flames licked the window above. Forgetting that he was not supposed to walk around or exert himself, Clancy hurried down the steps.

She Saves Dagne

"Karl! Dagne!" he called, but the March wind was blowing so that no one heard his voice in the gale.

There was no time to run to the fire station, even if Clancy had possessed the strength. His first thought was a prayer that the kitchen door would be unlocked.

It was. And Clancy, his bedroom slippers filled with snow that stung at his bare feet, rushed inside yelling:

"Dagne! Karl! Fire. Wake up!"

But there was no sign of life. With the smell of smoke in his nostrils, Clancy forgot his aching back and his pounding heart. He was on the job again, fighting a fire, and he fought his way almost happily upstairs through the smoke that blinded him.

At the top of the landing he stumbled, but would not give up. Holding his robe against his mouth, he found the knob of the bedroom door and opened it. The bed was in flames.

Dagne lay on the floor with the flames licking at her nightgown when Clancy grabbed blankets from the cedar chest and rolled her in them. Then, staggering from the room with his heavy burden, he fought his way painfully through the smoke.

He would have been unable to go on, but he heard the siren and the sounds of his old hook-and-ladder company below. With superhuman courage, Clancy made his way down the smoke-filled stairs and through the hall with the unconscious girl in his arms.

Ross Aids Him

Ross met him at the door leading into the kitchen, and when he saw Clancy he could not believe his eyes. He yelled frantically: "For God's sake, Clancy, what are you doing here?"

The chief took Dagne from Clancy's arms, and ordered one of his men to send for an ambulance.

"Clancy'll be goin' in the ambulance, too," Ross decided quickly. "Have 'em hold it."

But Clancy opened his eyes and shook his head wearily. "Never mind, chief. I won't be needin' a hospital."

"Of course you will," Ross said crisply. "You've swallowed enough smoke to fill a barn."

"No. I'll not go to a hospital. Go back to your fire, chief."

"Bill took over." Ross refused to leave. "Not much use, anyway. The house is goin' up like a pine box."

"What about the girl?" Clancy breathed heavily.

"You got her out in time," the chief assured him. "She'll be O. K. Where's that damn ambulance?"

"Forget it, Larry," Clancy closed his eyes. "This is me last fire. This bum heart of mine. The doc said if I ever took any exercise I'd cash in the chips."

Clancy's Last Words

Ross, looking at his best fireman, knew he was telling the truth. And he could see very little use in trying to deceive him. "Clancy," he choked, "is there anything I can do for you?"

Clancy coughed weakly. Then he smiled. "Tell—the kid," he said with a great effort, "that her old man died with his boots on, after all. Even if they are me old bedroom slippers."

Those were the last words Clancy O'Toole ever spoke. He closed his eyes wearily and, still smiling faintly, went to sleep.

"Too late, doctor. How's the girl?"

"Pretty far gone, I'm afraid." The young man took out his stethoscope and listened to Clancy's heart. "She's just about ready to have a baby."

Clancy was dead. The doctor put his stethoscope back in his bag and prepared to leave.

"A——baby?" Ross said, incredulously. "Why, the girl's only been married about six weeks."

The doctor shrugged. "Well, the preacher just beat the stork by a coat-tail then."

Mystery Explained

So that explained the mystery of why Karl Hetrick had suddenly married Dagne Olsen instead of Shamrock O'Toole. Ross wondered if Clancy had known the truth, and if Smoky knew.

How Smoky would hate Dagne Hetrick now, the chief thought, darkly. First she had taken the man she loved; then her father had given his life to save her.

It was a half hour later that Tex and Smoky came up the street and saw the Hetrick house lying in ruins. Ross was on the steps waiting, and the O'Toole house was blazing with lights.

"Oh, God!" Smokey leaned against her husband for support. "What happened, chief?"

"Your wife," Ross called to him, "has been taken to St. Agnes' Hospital, Hetrick. You'd better get right over there!"

To Be Continued.

Medical Future Being Sought For Marihuana

Standardized Doses Would Be of Value To Psychologists

Scientists pursuing the mysteries of marihuana, the drug the United States Bureau of Narcotics considers as corrupting as opium or morphine, have reason to hope for discoveries important to medicine, the National Academy of Sciences was told here yesterday.

At the end of a day of learned dissertations ranging from why the moon looks largest just as it comes over the horizon to the disclosure that disease-germ killers may be extracted from the soil, the academy, at a banquet last night, presented honor medals to J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureaus of Investigation, and to two scientists.

Hoover won the Public Welfare Medal for "application of scientific methods to the problem of crime prevention." Dr. Frank Rattray Lillie, past preident of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, received the Agassix Oceanograpy Medal. Dr. A. H. Westergaard, Stockholm, Sweden, geologist, was awarded the Walcott Medal and $1,000 honorarium.

Have Desire to Tell All

Because users of marihuana during one phase of their "intoxication" are obsessed with the desire to "tell all about themselves, the drug would be of undoubted value to psychologists if they were able to get standardized doses, Dr. Roger Adams, of the University of Illinois, stated.

Dr. Adams is one of several scientists cooperating with the narcotics bureau in experiments to isolate in a pure state the substance responsible for the "intoxicating" action of marihuana, a product obtained from the resin of the female hemp plant.

Thus far scientists have failed to separate the drug from other ingredients of the resin, so that they are yet unable to analyze it chemically and, consequently, determine possible medicinal uses, Dr. Adams said.

Nevertheless, it is believed the drug, widely used by United States addicts and frequently by school children, will have value for physicians, possibly as an anesthetic.

Dr. Adams likened the drug's effect to that of alcohol and declared that its chronic use brings "deepest degradation."

Soil Bacteria Kill Disease Germs

Soil bacteria killers of germs causing several human diseases and from which effective extracts have been obtained, were described by Drs. Selman A. Waksman and E. Boyd Woodruff, scienists of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.

Bacteria commonly found in soil are natural antagonists of and destroy the undulent fever germ, control the fungi which cause some tumors in man and animals, and kill the soil baccilus which may infect the gall bladder, bile ducts and urinary system, Dr. Waksman said.

Entirely new fields in the treatment of disease probably will be opened by the discovery, scientists attending the meeting said. They reasoned that if disease germs can be killed naturally instead of by heat or chemical means, they may prove more effective in the preparation of vaccines.

Moon Mystery Solved

Two Harvard scientists, Prof. Edwin G. Boring and Dr. Alfred H. Holway, reported that after four years of experiments they have solved the mystery of the oversized appearance of the moon on the horizon, a mystery that has bothered astronomers for years.

U. S. Coal Price List May Raise Costs in D. C.

Schedules Proposed To Federal Agency Call for Increases

Prices charged at the mine for coal burned in domestic furnaces, as well as by commercial and industrial plants, would be increased under the proposed minimum soft coal prices recommended to the Interior Department Bituminous Coal Division.

This was disclosed yesterday by Frederic L. Kirgis, director of the department's Consumers' Counsel Division, who listed a comparison between the prices in 1938 for coals commonly used in this locality and the proposed minimum prices.

The general level of soft coal prices charged at the mine now is not substantially different from that prevailing in 1938, he pointed out.

The price at the mine for domestic mine run, class B coal from the Winding Gulf sub-district of southern West Virginia would be $2.60 per ton, as compared with an average of $2.49 in 1938, an increase of 11 cents a ton. This grade is widely used in local domestic furnaces, it is said.

In one case the minimum price would be lower than the 1938 average. Three-inch top size, double-screened stove coal from the Tug River subdistrict of southern West Virginia would cost a minimum of $3.10 as compared with a 1938 average of $3.20.

Kirgis listed these coals as the ones most commonly burned by Washington domestic users.

The proposed minimum prices have been recommended by three trial examiners following extensive hearings. Howard A. Gray, director of the bituminous coal division, will hear oral arguments in the near future on exceptions to the recommendations filed by interested parties.

Kirgie listed three grades of coal commonly used locally for industrial and steam-raising purposes on which prices would be increased.
